ATTACK CAUSED MYSTERY DEATH, CORONER HOLDS

DAZED VICTIM UNABLE TO EXPLAIN INJURIES

Three Blows on Head Fatal; Lost Hat Is Only Clew in Strange Slaying.

Mystery surrounds the death early yesterday morning of Homer H. Gallentine, 18 years old, at Garfield Hospital a few hours after he had stumbled into his home, 3609 Patterson street northwest, bleeding from his nose, mouth and ears.

An autopsy performed upon the body last night indicated that the youth had received three severe blows upon his head, fracturing the base of the skull from ear to ear.

Verdict Indicates Attack.

Dr. Joseph Rogers, deputy coroner, who made the autopsy, said that in his opinion the boy had met with "foul play." There was a contusion behind the ear and in the rear of the head as though Gallentine had been struck with a "blunt instrument," the deputy coroner said.

Although it might be possible for the young man to have fallen three times and severely injured himself, it is improbable that he did so, Dr. Rogers said, adding that every indication pointed to an assault.

A coroner's jury will be sworn over the body this morning at 11 o'clock at Chambers' Undertaking Establishment where it is being held. The inquest will then be delayed in order to give detectives working upon the mystery time to pursue their investigation.

Returns Home in Daze.

The young man left his home shortly after dinner Saturday evening to go to a battery shop on Connecticut avenue where his father, Homer P. Gallentine, a builder-contractor, was having a radio battery recharged. The son returned home about two hours later dazed and hatless.

Young Gallentine failed to disclose any of the circumstances that led up to his injury despite repeated questioning by his father. As he stumbled into the house he mumbled to his parent something about "just waking up."

A physician was called and after examining the boy ordered him removed to Garfield Hospital, where he died at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

After viewing the body Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered an autopsy performed, as the symptoms indicated, he said, that the boy had suffered a fracture at the base of the skull.

Movements Remain Mystery.

Detectives have been unable to learn of any of the movements of the youth after he left home. A check-up at the battery shop on Connecticut avenue disclosed that he had not been there.

Much of the mystery surrounding his death would be removed, it is believed, with the recovery of the gray felt hat that he was wearing when he left home. This would give the detectives a basis upon which to go forward with their investigation.

The streets and the vacant fields near the home were the scene yesterday morning of a thorough search for the hat, which has the initials H. P. G. on the band. Police, relatives and neighbors joined in the hunt.

Cause Baffled Police.

Until the autopsy revealed the bruises on the boy's head and the fracture of the skull the police were completely baffled as to what caused his death. A "puff" behind the right ear was the only mark brought out by a cursory examination.

The mystery was further heightened by the fact that the boy's clothing on the right side was soaking wet when he returned home. There was no mud, though, to indicate that he had been dragged, his father said.

For a time it was thought the boy might have suffered a hemorrhage from several operations he has had in the past years, but the father said his son appeared in better health when he left home Saturday night than he had in months. In view of the findings of the autopsy, however, the police have discarded that assumption.

Unable to Explain.

His parents were greatly startled when he returned covered with blood. They called his attention to the blood, but the boy was unable to explain.

Mr. Gallentine then took his son to the bathroom and after washing off the blood put him to bed. The cold water slightly revived him, and he told his father that he was "feeling all right."

Mr. Gallentine experienced great difficulty in getting a physician, but finally a "Dr. Morgan" came and had the boy sent to the hospital.

Young Gallentine recently stopped going to school to help his father. At the time he stopped he was a senior at McKinley High School. Besides his father he is survived by a stepmother, two brothers and a sister, and four half-brothers and one half-sister.

ROYALTY WEDS

GREEK PRINCE WEDS PRINCESS OF FRANCE

SPLENDOR MARKS RITES

Palermo, Italy, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Prince Christopher of Greece, husband of the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, and Princess Francois were united in the civil bands of matrimony by the Podesto of Palermo at 8 o'clock this evening in the Orleans Palace in the presence of a royal and princely throng. The palace was where the Duke of Orleans, predecessor of the bride's father as claimant of the French crowd, died in 1926.

The witnesses for the bride were former King Emanuel of Portugal and the Duke of Aosta, brother of the King of Italy. The bridegroom had as witnesses Crown Prince Humbert of Piedmont, and the former King of Greece, George II. These same witnesses will serve tomorrow at the religious ceremony at 11:30 in the Palatin Chapel.

The bride was given away by her father, the tall Duke of Guise, "heir of the kings who in a thousand years made France," as his royalist supporters proclaim him.

Others in the wedding party included the bride's aunt, the Duchess of Aosta (nee Princess Helene of France), and her son, the Duke of Apulia. The Countess Bruno Diharcourt, born Princess Isabelle of France, elder sister of the bride, was the only one of the children of the Duke of Guise absent from the gathering. A child was recently born to her.

The distinguished company included former Queen Amelie of Portugal, Queen Mother Olga of Greece, mother of the bridegroom; former Queen Elizabeth of Greece, Prince Nicholas of Greece, the Princesses Marguerite, Theodora and Irene of Greece, sisters of Christopher; Princess Mother Helen of Roumania, mother of the boy King Michael; Infanta Isabella of Spain, Prince Knud of Denmark, Prince and

MOB AT PRISON MAKES DEMAND FOR NORTHCOTT

Father of Boy Victims Is Leader; Sheriff Defies Throng of 250.

PRISONER, IN TERROR, BEGS FOR PROTECTION

Riverside, Calif., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Gordon Stewart Northcott, convicted of slaying three boys on his Wineville, Calif., chicken farm, saw the shadow of an untimely noose cast on the walls of his cell here early today as 250 men surrounded the jail and N. R. Winslow demanded of Sheriff Clem Sweeters that he be allowed to see the prisoner to get the actual truth.

Through a pall of smudge smoke at 2 o'clock this morning 55 automobiles suddenly appeared on the streets by the county jail.

Wants to Find Grave.

Winslow, for the murder of whose sons, Lewis and Nelson, Northcott will be sentenced to hang tomorrow, walked to the jail door and rang the night bell. Sheriff Sweeters and three deputies answered. Winslow offered quit claim deeds to all his property as security that the men would not harm Northcott, and asserted that he wanted to get the truth from the prisoner concerning the burial place of his boys.

Five armed men had advanced from the crowd in the street, and followed Winslow into the jail.

"I know we are outnumbered 50 to 1," Sheriff Sweeters said, "but you men can get Northcott only over our bodies. We are here to safeguard the prisoner. The same law which demands that we do that will take Northcott's life. Bloodshed now would be foolish."

No hcott Begs for Aid.

Northcott, who had been awakened by the noise, began shrilly pleading for protection.

"Sheriff, we believe you are right," Winslow said after conferring with the others in the corner of the jail waiting room, and he shook hands with Sweeters and left the jail. The mob shortly dispersed.

Sheriff Sweeters summoned 20 additional deputies and a constant vigil was maintained through the night. None of the crowd returned.

Central American Quake Recorded at Georgetown

(Associated Press.)

An earthquake lasting for two and a half hours was recorded yesterday on the seismograph of Georgetown University. Father F. A. Tondorf, director of the observatory, expressed the belief that the temblor occurred somewhere in Central America, 1,800 miles south of Washington. He said the first shock was recorded at 10:45 a. m. and the quake reached its maximum at 10:57 a. m.

Miguel De Rivera, Son Of Dictator, Departs

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Miguel Primo de Rivera, 24-year-old son of Spain's premier, sailed for home today on the liner Marques de Comillas after a six month's visit to the United States.

De Rivera, who was here to establish a Spanish government information bureau, said the royal decree in Spain against free speech and for press censorship was necessary in view of "certain conditions in Spain" which he was "not at liberty to discuss."

BEAUTY DIES

MRS. IDA WYNNE FRENCH.

MRS. IDA W. FRENCH DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Wife of British Army Officer, 36, Was Belle of Society on Two Continents.

EXPOSURE AT CLUB FATAL

Mrs. Ida Wynne French, a beauty of Washington, whose fame spread to the far corners of two continents, died yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, the victim of pneumonia.

Although but 36 years of age, Mrs French had enjoyed a social career that was the envy of many.

The daughter of the late R. J. Wynne, Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet and Consul General to England, and the wife of Capt. Hugh S French, wealthy British army man and sportsman, she had been acclaimed in the courts of St. James and the capitals and high places of many nations She had had the thrill of wealth in her own name, having been awarded $5,000,000 following a separation from her husband.

She had been reunited with her husband following a romantic meeting during the World War, when she was a nurse and he the gallant army officer, ready to make the great sacrifice, and she had enjoyed the pleasurable knowledge that she was the belle and beauty of many social functions, one of which Washington society will recall, being the occasion when she was proclaimed the beauty of the Southern ball.

An attack of influenza, suffered in England, a drenching while a storm-tossed passenger on an Atlantic liner, and subsequent exposure at a reunion of the Wynne family at a Congressional Club affair only a fornight ago were contributing causes of her death.

Her husband was not at her bedside when she died. He is somewhere on the Indian Ocean, en route to India for duty, and probably will learn of her death through radio dispatches while at sea or via cable when he lands. Neither was a daughter, Miss Valeria French, in attendance, she being at school in France.

Her brothers and a sister, however, were with her. They are John Shriver Wynne, manager of Hoover Field; Charles Wynne, of the Riverside Apartments, and Mrs. Ruth Wynne Everard.

Mrs. French's mother was the former Mary E. McCabe, a Washington belle of her day. She was born in Washington during the period when her father, a newspaper man by profession, was correspondent in Washington for a New

CARAWAY SEEKS TO OUST HESSE AND DOUGHERTY

CITY MANAGER FORM OF CONTROL SOUGHT

Expects Hoover to Replace Men He Opposes; Search On for Mrs. Bialock.

Expressing impatience with what he termed the inaction of the District Commissioners and police officials in the Burlingame case, Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, last night declared he would seek "to aid the people of Washington in getting rid of the District Commissioners and Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police," by asking Congress to abolish the present form of commission government here and establishing in its place one under the direct control of a city manager.

Senator Caraway said he is convinced Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty and Maj. Hesse are unable to exert proper control over members of the police force, which, he said, is marked frequently with instances of brutality, drunkenness and general unlawfulness which go upwhipped of justice.

Suggests Boy Scouts.

"The people of Washington would have a better police force if the Boy Scouts were running it," the senator said.

Senator Caraway made it plain that he was not contemplating the conducting of a crusade against the police and District Commissioners, feeling confident he said, that President-elect Hoover would replace the present Commissioners and Maj. Hesse after he took office the 4th of next March. Senator Caraway added, however, that he would likely have something additional to say regarding the charges preferred against Police Capt. Guy E. Burlingame by Mrs. Helen Bialock, a palmist.

Senator Caraway said he has been following conditions in the Police Department closely and decided to intercede only after he had become convinced the heads of the local government were failing to provide the proper form of government.

Bitter Against Hesse.

Senator Caraway was particularly bitter in his denunciation of Maj. Hesse. The senator said he did not know Hesse personally and that on the half dozen or more occasions he found it necessary to write him about police matters the chief of police was always very courteous.

"But," the senator said "I have received nothing in the way of action from my requests for action from the chief of police and his letters to me are vague, rambling and listless."

Mrs. Bialock Hunted.

The entire Washington police force has been ordered to look out for Mrs. Helen Bialock, occuser of Capt. Burlingame, it was learned last night.

Department of Justice agents and deputy marshals also are searching for her, making three agencies involved in the hunt.

"All the resources of the department are being used to locate Mrs. Bialock," Maj. Hesse, superintendent of police, said last night. "The men understand, of course, that they can not arest her if she is found the district attorney will be notified so that he can have a

100,000 LINE STREETS; TROOPS HALT RIOTERS

PRIESTS HOLD RITES GARBED AS CIVILIANS

Mexico City, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The body of Joe de Leon Toral, who was executed by a firing squad yesterday for his assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, was buried at 5 o'clock this evening in the Spanish cemetery on the outskirts of the capital.

Three persons were killed, 30 injured and about 25 arrested, according to police reports, in the struggle of thousands of persons to see the cortege as it passed, or to witness the brief services at the grave.

Only a few hundred persons were permitted to enter the cemetery, but probably 100,000 lined 3 miles of streets, shouting "Viva Toral!" and throwing flowers on his casket as it passed. Several thousand police and soldiers were stationed along the route.

A police cordon extended five blocks in every direction around the residence of the parents of Toral, where the body had been brought last night. Only relatives and close friends were allowed to aproach the house.

Firemen Drench Crowds.

The firemen frequently played their hose on the crowds near the home during the day and the crowd retaliated in a few instances by throwing stones.

Catholic priests in civilian dress conducted services beside the grave. A squadron of mounted police with drawn sabers charged into the cemetery and galloped up the main driveway just before the body was lowered into the grave, as a precaution against last minute disorders.

The graveside crowd, mostly women, treated these police with shouts of "Viva Toral!" which was taken up by the thousands outside the cemetery.

Toral's parents and his wife did not accompany the body to the cemetery. A small group of other relatives and friends left the home at 4 o'clock. The body was in an automobile hearse while the mourners were in a bus. Hundreds of persons along the streets fell into the funeral procession and many more attempted to do so but were held back by the police lines. Traffic was at a standstill in every cross and parallel street through the entire distance.

A squad of firemen with a hose truck accompanied the hearse in readiness to drive back the crowd if it became obstreperous.

Many persons darted between the police as the cortege passed to snatch a flower from the hearse or coffin. They crossed themselves with them and then placed them in their pockets for preservation.

PRESIDENT PORTES GIL.

SHIP, 34 MEN ABOARD, AGAIN CALLING HELP

OFFERS TO RESCUE CREW

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Abandoning all hope of towing the distressed freighter Alloway to Dutch Harbor or Davidson Banks, Alaska, the Bronnoy late today offered to take off the crew of the helpless ship. The Bronnoy was forced to give up attempts to tow the Alloway when the vessel became unmanageable in a 90-mile gale in the North Pacific, radio dispatches received here from Dutch Harbor said.

The message for help from the Alloway, picked up at Dutch Harbor, said in part:

"Position latitude 53.13, longitude 163.16. Can not hold steam. Praying for assistance. Unless we get tow soon don't know what the consequence will be. South-southwest wind. Fires dying out. Large swell."

Capt. H. Throckmorton, in command of the Alloway, which carries 34 men and officers, reported the Bronnoy had passed near them early today, but had gone on, evidently not realizing the vessel was in peril. A later message picked up at Dutch Harbor said the Bronnoy had learned of the condition of the Alloway and was returning to give them a tow.

The Alloway was first reported in distress Friday morning. Her engines were disabled, and she was being badly battered by a gale.

Several vessels started toward her, but continued on their course when it was reported she had been able to get up steam again and was sailing for Dutch Harbor for repairs.

Late last night the Alloway again was reported in trouble, and asked a tow. The freighter Montauk was reported about 150 miles from her and rushing to her assistance, expecting to reach her some time today. Radio advices from Dutch Harbor today indicated the Montauk was in the vicinity.

NONE OTHERS INJURED; ESCAPES ARE NARROW

Dynamiters Had Set Trap on Bridge; Only Part Was Exploded.

LUCKY, SAYS RULER, AS HE SEES WRECKAGE

Army of Troops Start After Perpetrators; Police Are Without Any Clews.

Mexico City, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil today narrowly escaped the fate of the man to whose place he was elected. The train on which he was returning to the capital was dynamited, a fireman killed and two coaches and the engine derailed. Gen Alvaro Obregon, who would have become president last December, was assassinated last July and his slayer was executed only yesterday.

The president was returning from the State of Tamaulipas, where he had formerly surrendered his office of governor to his successor. The presidential special, one of the finest in the world, was within 150 miles of the capital, between the stations of Comonfort and Rinconcillo, in the State of Guanajuato, when a terrific blast threw the leading cars from the rails.

The dynamite had been placed on the track at a point where it ran over a bridge. The fireman was killed instantly as the engine turned over.

President Inspects Damage.

The first car was a Pullman, containing several members of the official party, and the second car was that of the director general of railroads. Although these cars were severely damaged, none of the occupants was injured. The president calmly descended from his private car farther back in the train and, accompanied by the secretary of war, walked forward to inspect the damage.

Portes Gil, when he saw the destruction, merely shrugged his shoulders and said, "the revolution is in luck." (The president is a member of the so-called Revolutionary party.)

A scout locomotive, which, as always, preceded the presidential train, had passed over the bridge without incident. Just as the locomotive and the first cars ran upon the bridge structure it was blown to pieces beneath them. The remaining cars of the train remained upright on the rails.

Second Bomb Is Dead.

Investigation after the explosion showed that another bomb containing two sticks of dynamite had been fixed to the track, but had not exploded.

About 50 yards from the scene was found the remains of an open-air meal and a receipt for a telegram filed at Tampico, from where the train had come. A bottle of sulphuric acid also was found.

The president, accompanied by his wife and baby daughter and Secretary of War Amaro and Mrs. Amaro, shared the private car.

There was a large group of congressmen on the train, as well as newspaper men.

An immediate search for the perpetrators of the attack was begun by the military escort of the train, and further troops were sent out from Mexico City. A relief train started to bring in the presidential party.

The presidential party reached Queretaro tonight safely on the train which went to their relief.

Only three days ago President Portes Gil had refused to commute the sentence of death imposed on Jose de Leon Toral, which the highest courts of the land had found to be without legal flaw.

Toral had killed President-elect Obregon. Portes Gil, who only a short

Lindbergh Flight Violated Postal Ruling, Glover Says

Carrying Mail From Panama, With Foreign Stamps, in One of Planes Inaugurating Canal Zone Service May Draw Fine or Lose Contract for Company.

(United Press.)

The inclusion of 170 pounds of mail from Panama in the consignment which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and a pilot of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., are bringing to this country violates the instructions of the United States Postoffice Department, with which the Pan-American company has a contract, W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, told the United Press last night.

Officials of the company, Glover said, will be called upon immediately for an explanation. Violation of their contract with the Government makes the company liable to a fine, or their ten-year contract with the Government may be canceled, although Glover indicated that such drastic action as the latter is unlikely.

When Lindbergh took off on his present air tour for the Pan-American Airways, Inc., that organization was authorized to transport mail only from the United States to the Canal Zone and return. As official arrangements had not been completed for exchange of air mail between this country and the Central American countries, including the republic of Panama, which Lindbergh would touch, they were forbidden to carry on the return trip any mail except from the Canal Zone.

Because of hundreds of inquiries received from philatelists, who desired to arrange for transmission of letters from all the countries on Lindbergh's itinerary, the Postoffice Department took special precautions designed to prevent violations of its instructions. With the intention of insuring fair treatment to all interested stamp collectors and dealers, the department last week advised an official of the Pan-American company to cable his representative at Cristobal, Canal Zone, emphasizing that no mail except from the Canal Zone was to be transported in its planes.

Canal Zone mail bears United States stamps and the foreign stamps which presumably are carried by the mail Lindbergh is bringing from Panama are expected to acquire a greater value for collectors and dealers—both because of their foreign origin and because they will be fewer in number than the domestic stamps carried on the historic flight. As they are a part of the first consignment and Lindbergh is piloting one of the two planes, it will be natural if their value exceeds that of any stamps from mail carried on subsequent flights over the same route.

Police Chief Slain In Gambling Raid

Posse of Hundreds Hunt for Assailant in Windsor, N. C., Swamps.

Windsor, N. C., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Police Chief White, of Windsor, was shot and killed late today by a negro when he went into a tobacco warehouse here to halt a dice game.

The police chief was shot six times and died in a few minutes.

Police officials here said the name of the man they are hunting is Percy Moore. He fled after the shooting in the direction of the swamps, and when the bloodhounds arrived they had little trouble following the trail.

Armed with every available weapon and carrying lanterns and flashlights, the searchers, numbering several hundred, were slowly beating their way through the swamp a few hours after the killing, while a cordon of automobile lights was placed around the section.

3 Found Dead in Auto, Monoxide Gas Victims

Batavia, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Three persons were found dead in an automobile near Williamsburg early today, the victims of monoxide gas, according to Coroner Joseph Curliss.

Elmer Richards, 21, Mrs. Mildred Carson Storer, 17, and her 8-months-old daughter Frances Jeane, had gone riding in a small machine heated by a tap in the exhaust pipe. Their bodies were found by Richard's father. The motor was still running.

Two Girl Aviators Seek New Records

Miss Crosson Tries for Altitude—Bobby Trout Up After Three Marks.

Los Angeles, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Two girl fliers launched assaults on existing women's aviation records here today Miss Marvel Crosson piloted her Travel-air plane to an altitude above 20,000 feet in an effort to better the 20,270-foot record now held by Miss Louise McPhetridge, of Oakland, Calif., and Miss Bobbie Trout went aloft in her Golden Eagle plane at 5:30 p. m., bent on breaking the night flying, the endurance and the nonstop distance records.

Miss Crosson was aloft 2 hours and 30 minutes. She said that the last time she looked at her altimeter, which was graduated to 20,000 feet, she had passed that mark. Whether she bettered the record will be determined by an official reading of the barograph.

2 Men Killed by Wall Of Fire-Swept Theater

Mansfield, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Two men were killed today in the collapse of a wall of the Madison Theater building which was swept by fire shortly after its Saturday midnight show.

The dead are, Charles Reiser and Sidney Hinderline, employes of the Mansfield Structural & Erecting Co., who with coworkers and firemen, were tearing down the walls of the ruined building. They were buried under a pile of debris.

Damage to the theater is expected to total $250,000.

Prince of Wales, Nearing Kingship, Gives Up Horses

Royal Hunting Stable to Be Sold as Duties of Heir Increase, It Is Said.

London, Feb. 11 (Monday) (A.P.).—The Express today says that the Prince of Wales has decided to abandon hunting and point-to-point racing and will sell all of his hunters. His decision was said to be due to his rapidly increasing duties in consequence of the illness of his father.

It was understood that the sale would take place in Leicester in about a fortnight. The newspaper, however, implies that the heir to the throne does not intend to abandon his favorite sport permanently, saying that he is giving it up "for the time being."

In emphasizing his well-known delight in hunting, the Express describes the abandonment as an act of self-denial entailing considerable sacrifice.

Although the Prince of Wales was said to be a better rider than his three younger brothers, his daring and his constant following of the sport have given him many hard tumbles in the past. He has several times been injured and has broken his collar bone at least twice.

Because of his prominent station in life, these narrow escapes from more serious hurts had caused general apprehension among the British public before the serious illness of the king,

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Since his hurried trip home from the hunting fields of Africa to be with his father, the prince has joined the hunt on several occasions. On February 1, during a fast run with the Quorn hounds at Melton-Mowbray, one of his favorite hunters cut a foreleg while taking a hedge. The prince was not unseated, but was forced to drop out of the hunt.

time before had been appointed minister of the interior in the cabinet of President Calles from the governorship of Tamaulipas, was elected provisional president by congress to serve for about a year. In the meantime a president will be chosen for a regular term by a national election.

Gen. Anselmo Macias, chief of military escort, started immediately with troops seeking the perpetrators of the crime. He issued orders to execute on the spot if the person or persons were caught.

First news of the outrage was received in Mexico City from a special correspondent of El Universal who was accompanying the president. The relief train and more troops to aid in the pursuit were rushed from the nearest large stations, among which was Celaya, where, according to testimony at the trial of Toral, it was once plotted to assassinate President Calles and Gen Obregon. At San Miguel Allende, where there has been recent bandit and rebel disturbances, troops also were recruited.

With the exception of the fireman, El Universal correspondent said, no one was injured, although the two Pullmans were very badly damaged.

It was understood here that the president would resume his journey to the capital as soon as the train and track damage had been repaired.

Toral's Body in State.

While the attempt on the life of the president was being made, the body of Toral, surrounded by flowers and burning candles, rested in his father's home, while a constant stream of people filed past.

The funeral was to be held this afternoon, and the authorities had adopted extraordinary measures of precaution in order to prevent any disturbances whatever.

American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow once traveled as a guest of President Calles upon the same presidential train which was dynamited this morning. The president and ambassador on that occasion also passed the very spot where the bomb was placed. This general region is one where attempts upon passenger trains from the border have been frequently made in recent years, sometimes by placing bombs on the track, sometimes by tearing up the rails and also by placing obstructions for the purpose of causing derailments.

(Associated Press.)

President Coolidge sent a message of congratulations last night to President Portes Gil of Mexico upon his escape in the dynamiting of his train.

"I wish to congratulate you on your fortunate escape in the train accident," the President's message read. "I am sincerely happy to learn that you are safe and well."

Secretary Kellogg also instructed the American Embassy at Mexico City to convey to President Portes Gil the "sincere felicitations on the part of the Government and people of this country at his escape."

which had succeeded in entering the cemetery remained singing hymns and praying until darkness fell.

There was one minor alarm during the funeral service when volleys of rifle fire were heard a little distance away. Police had fired over the heads of the crowd in the streets near the cemetery to discourage a threatened charge.

Capt. Fernandez Raviela, of the mounted police, who commanded the firing squad at the execution yesterday and who himself gave Toral the coupe de grace with his pistol, was in command of the police guards around the residence of the elder Toral and also those which surrounded the coffin en route to the cemetery.

The modest house in which the body had lain was filled with flowers which were piled high in every room as well as that in which the coffin stood under burning candles.

Catholic priests were permitted in the house throughout the day, and they were permitted to hold a service in the cemetery chapel before interment.

EMBARGO IS ASKED TO BACK PEACE PACT

SENATOR CLEARS PLAN

(Associated Press.)

Described as a response to "an insistent and well-nigh unanimous public demand," the text of a proposed resolution was made public last night by Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, by which the United States would institute an armament embargo against any country violating the Kellogg treaty to renounce war.

The resolution, to be introduced today, would stipulate that when the President of the United States determines and by proclamation declares that any nation has violated the Kellogg pact it shall be unlawful "to export to such country arms, munitions, implements of war or other articles for use in war until the President shall by proclamation declare that such violation no longer continues."

Furthermore, any citizen of the United States found giving "aid and comfort" to a country that has committed a breach of the treaty would not receive the customary protection of this Government, and the resolution would request the President to negotiate with other nations which ratify the Kellogg pact with a view to having them adopt a similar policy.

To Safeguard Peace.

"The purpose of this resolution," Senator Capper announced in an accompanying statement, "is to put the Government of the United States on record, in response to an insistent and well-nigh unanimous public demand, by taking the next step toward safeguarding international peace, following the ratification of the pact of Paris.

"The moment it becomes clear that a nation which has solemnly promised to renounce war as an instrument of national policy, but which nevertheless provokes or invites war, will not be able to buy munitions or supplies from the American people with which to carry on the war, then that war will come to a sudden end. In fact, I doubt whether it will ever be begun.

"In other words, I believe the adoption and effectuation of this resolution would tend to make the peace pact effective. It will, in a measure, underwrite the peace pact without compelling us to police the world."

Wants Public Opinion.

The Kansas senator, who is a member of the foreign relations committee, declared that he did not necessarily expect consideration of the resolution by either the House or the Senate during the current session, but that its introduction at this time would tend to stimulate public discussion which, he believed, would manifest itself in favor of the proposal by "an overwhelming, if not unanimous" vote in Congress.

"It is in defense of the honor of this Nation that it should not give aid and comfort to a treaty-breaking state," Senator Capper declared. "It is of vital interest to this Nation that it should seek to prevent the outbreak of war by warning possible treaty-breaking nations of the attitude the United States will take.

Cut Off Arms Trade.

"The spirit of the pact should be borne upon the mind of the citizens as well as that of the statesmen. It should be impressed that war will not be a means of carrying on a profitable trade with the belligerent nations—a profitable trade that in the end will cost the lives of our own youth and saddle another tremendous war debt upon the surviving people of the Nation.

"Rather it should be impressed upon the consciousness of every citizen and every statesman that the effect of the pact will be to diminish or cut off that trade, so that it will no longer be in the interest of armament makers or the private traffickers in blood money to connive with a government which, in defiance of its obligations, lets loose upon the world the pestilence of war."

Only 10 Will See Signing Of Papal Concordat Today

Rome in Readiness for Conclusion of Pact That Will End Historic Controversy; Agreement on Education of Youth Is Included.

Rome, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—All was in readiness tonight for the signing of an historic concordat between the Holy See and the government of Italy, officially recognizing the Pope's temporal power and establishing his sovereignty over a three-mile- square papal State.

Only ten persons will be present in the Lateran Palace at noon Monday when Cardinal Gasparri for the Holy See and Premier Benito Mussolini for the government, affix their signatures to the accord which ends more than 58 years of controversy.

Latest reports in reliable circles, made it virtually certain that the government will pay the Holy See a total of 1,580,000,000 lire (about $79,000,000) indemnity for church property seized with the fall of the Pope's temporal power in 1870. After the accord is ratified by the government, 750,000,000 lire will be paid in cash, the remainder, 1,000,000,000 lire, will be paid in State bonds, which would be 830,000,000 lire on current quotations. Premier Mussolini will issue a loan for 1,000,000,000 lire to provide Vatican payments.

The premier also is credited with having made a decision to proclaim broad amnesty to political refugees as a seal on the accord.

It was learned former Minister Pietro Fedele is scheduled to be the first Italian Ambassador to the Vatican, and Mgr. Giuseppe Pizzardo, assistant papal secretary of state, will be the first papal nuncio to the Quirinal.

Pope Pius XI will be able to fulfill many previously impossible desires after the concordat is signed, but it is said the one nearest his heart is to bless the Knights of Columbus Recreation Center, which forms part of the new state. The Pope had intended to inaugurate the buildings in 1923, but at the last moment discovered that, while they adjoined the Vatican grounds, they were outside Vatican territory. The present accord ends the Pope's voluntary imprisonment.

In addition to the previously announced provisions of the concordat, it was learned Mussolini and the Vatican representatives have reached complete agreement on the method of education of Italian youths. This problem has been a delicate one and recently the Vatican newspaper criticized the Fascist system of education. Special provisions are made for the religious instruction of young Italians under the Fascist government.

The ten persons who will be present at the signing tomorrow include four representatives of the Vatican, four government representatives and two official photographers.

2 Trainmen Killed As Boiler Bursts

Engineer and Firemen of Freight Locomotive Die; Bodies Hurled Far.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—William Baumgardner, engineer on a New York Central train, and L. P. Hibbs, fireman, both of East Cleveland, were killed instantly today when the boiler of their locomotive exploded at Carson, south of here. The train was made up of two locomotives and a string of empty coal cars. Baumgardner and Hibbs were in the cab of the first engine.

C. E. Fisher, of Wesleyville, Pa., a brakeman, had just climbed over the tender of the first engine when the blast came. He suffered severe lacerations about the face and chest.

The boiler of the first locomotive was hurled about 100 yards ahead and the wrecked cab landed four cars back. Baumgardner's body was found on the seventh car of the train. The crew of the second engine was uninjured, although the force of the blast was felt for a mile around.

Hand of Daughter Reward for Bomb

Flint, Mich., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A murder plot in which Amos Jury, 36, offered his 17-year-old daughter to a mechanic for contriving a bomb to kill Jury's rival was unfolded here today when Jury, according to police, confessed to his part in the plot and also implicated John Carrigan, 41, of Hasslet. Jury was arrested yesterday and Carrigan this morning.

The bomb was mailed to Everett Bailer, whose bride of a week had been Jury's sweetheart, with instructions to open it when alone. Bailer opened it, but noticed in time a chain which would have set off three sticks of dynamite.

Jury, according to police, planned to marry Mrs. Bailer after killing her husband. Carrigan was to have Jury's aid in winning Irene, Jury's child.

Jury confessed after hearing his roommate, Malcolm Cameron, tell of writing the note which told Bailer to be alone when he opened the "present."

Men Will Quit S-4 At 110-Foot Depth

Aboard U. S. Tender Mallard Off Key West, Fla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—With the ill-fated submarine S-4 in tow, the tender Mallard tonight rested in the blue waters of the Gulf Stream, where tomorrow an attempt will be made to demonstrate that men can escape from submersibles without outside aid at a depth of 110 feet.

Already safety devices with which the tests are being conducted have proved that men can rise to the surface after leaving the submarine at depths varying from 40 to 76 feet. A leaky periscope last week prevented the tests at the 110-foot level and forced the Mallard to take the S-4 to Key West for repairs.

Aboard the tender to witness the tests was Frank Hobson, civilian engineer and coinventor of the oxygen inflated mask or lung with which the successful escapes have been made. Alberto Lais, Italian naval attache, did not arrive today to join the observers, but was expected to reach Key West tonight and come out tomorrow morning.

OKLAHOMA WILL TRY ITS GOVERNOR TODAY

POLITICAL STORM CLIMAX

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A political storm which has for two years swirled about Henry S. Johnston, suspended Democratic Governor of Oklahoma, and his former confidential secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, dividing the Democratic party of the State into disputing factions and drawing into its eddies several departments of State, reached its climax with Johnston facing trial on eleven articles of impeachment tomorrow. Which charge first would be tried was in the discretion of the senate court of impeachment to elect.

To obtain acquittal on any of the charges, preferred against him after a prolonged investigation by a committee of the house of representatives, Johnston must muster at least 15 votes in the senate court, comprising 44 senators.

Whether the suspended governor can muster the fifteen votes will, of course, be determined by the judgment of the senators on the evidence adduced in the trial. Many observers have pointed as an indication that the senators were not predisposed to be swayed by previous political friendship to the vote of the court of impeachment Friday, which denied Johnston access to a transcript of the evidence, with only three senators voting to accede to the request.

Quarrel Splits Party.

The trial is the culmination of opposition in Johnston's own party, which had its inception almost from the start of his administration and which gradually assumed such proportions as to divide the party in the State into two well-defined factions, one defending and the other assailing him. His office first drew heavy fire two years ago, when angry opposition was expressed in the senate and house of representatives to his employment of Mrs. O. O Hammonds as confidential secretary Resolutions were drawn up in the senate demanding her dismissal, as it was contended that she exerted an undue influence on the governor to the detriment of his cooperation with the general assembly in a legislative program The governor weathered the storm of protests against the woman secretary which extended to the house of representatives, only to find it revived in an attempted special session of the legislature in December, 1927.

House members at that time voted purported impeachment charges against the governor, Chief Justice Fred P. Branson, of the State Supreme Court, and Harry Cordell, president of the State Board of Agriculture. Thursday, Mrs. Hammonds resigned, stating that she did so in the belief that her resignation would benefit the governor in his fight for retention of office.

Johnston, soon after his inauguration, found that he was not firmly in command when the senate rejected his nominations for highway commissioners. His entire administration has been fraught with strife, extending into criticism of several departments of State, and the State Supreme Court, all of which are under investigation by the house of representatives.

Alleged in Articles.

The articles of impeachment allege corruption in the issuance of a pardon to R. D. Crosthwaite, escaped life term convict; diversion of funds in the employment of J. W. ("Buck") Eldridge as an "undercover" man in the pay of the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification; diversion of funds in the issuance of deficiency certificates for the State Banking Department and Issues Board for 1927, 1928 and 1929; unlawful expenditure of State money in the employment of Kirby Fitzpatrick as an attorney in an effort to collect on surety bonds of defunct State banks; unlawful interference, by calling out the militia, with the assembling of legislators for the attempted impeachment session in 1927; the issuance of deficiency certificates for the employment of C. B. Cochrane and D. Hayden Linebaugh as attorneys for the State Supreme Court in the trial of H. Bart Martin for alleged contempt of that court, and incompetency.

The case will be prosecuted by a house board of managers, of which John Head, Democrat, is chairman.

Hubler resigned his post as assistant district attorney in charge of narcotics in 1926. He formerly practiced law in Pennsylvania, and is a former member of the legislature of that State.

Blanche Sweet, Film Star, Saves Neilan from Death

Actress, Worried at Husband's Long Delay in Garage, Breaks in; Finds Famous Director Overcome by Gas; He Is Recovering in Hospital.

Hollywood, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Marshal "Mickey" Neilan, screen director, was saved from death in a gas-filled garage today by his wife, Blanche Sweet, heroine of the films.

Neilan was overcome by deadly carbon monoxide gas after they had returned from a round of visits and dancing. After being found by his wife he was revived by doctors and firemen. No one was permitted to see him at California Lutheran Hospital tonight, but he was reported recovering rapidly.

Miss Sweet, who had stepped from the automobile as the private garage was reached and proceeded to her room, became worried by her husband's non-appearance.

"When I returned to the garage I heard the motor of the car running, but the doors were locked," the actress said. "Mr. Neilan must have planned to leave by the rear door.

"I called for help and the servants aided me in breaking the doors down. Mr. Neilan was lying on the floor, unconscious. I ran to a telephone and asked an operator to send help and police officers, firemen and doctors all were there a few minutes later. I was so excited I don't know what happened then."

Firemen said they worked 15 minutes to revive Neilan. They reported that his nose was bleeding when they reached him.

PRINCE NOT SEEKING REUNION WITH WIFE

Suad Bey Chakir Says All Is Over in Marriage to American Woman.

VISIT IS ON BUSINESS

San Francisco, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Prince Suad Bey Chakir bobbed up incognito in San Francisco today, but not for the purpose of inducing the runaway princess, the former Sidi Wirt Spreckels, to return with him to his castle on the Bosporus.

"We have come to the parting of the ways," said the prince, a grandson of the late Sultan of Turkey. "I am disillusioned, hurt and disgusted. I have been played with and humiliated long enough. It is the end."

The prince said he was here on business with bankers, but he did not reveal the nature of his mission. He said he would not make an attempt to induce the former Kansas University girl, who married him in Paris, to return with him to Turkey.

Some surprise was expressed by the visitor when he learned that Princess Chakir had been naturalized in the United States District Court here recently, thereby regaining her American citizenship and preventing an attempt to order her back to Turkey.

"I can only believe that her citizenship was regained on false pretenses," he said. "She entered the United States on a temporary visitor's visa granted by the American consular offices in Paris in July, 1927.

"In July, 1928, the American consul general at Paris wrote me that it would be impossible for Mme Chakir to regain her citizenship until she left the country and reentered on an immigration visa, which would entitle her to remain indefinitely and take the steps necessary for the restoration of her citizenship.

"She wrote me a few months ago that Senator Shortridge was arranging for an extension of time so that she could conclude business matters relating to her daughter's (Geraldine Spreckels') inheritance. It seems very strange."

Despite the fact that dispatches from Turkey previously said a divorce proceeding had been instituted by the prince, he revealed that after promising to join him in Paris he received from her a cablegram:

"All is over between us."

Low Price of Imports Cause Trade Balance

The billion-dollar favorite balance of trade shown by the export and import statistics compiled by the Department of Commerce for the calendar year 1928 was largely the result of an increased demand abroad for American manufactures and a decline in the price of imported rubber, silk and other important raw materials.

This is shown by an analysis of last year's exports and imports made by Lawrence B. Mann, assistant chief of the division of statistical research.

ATTACKS ON WOMEN ARE LAID TO FATHER

SECTION WAS TERRORIZED

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Police today announced that with the arrest of E. A. Merritt, 25 years old, they believed they had brought to an end a series of attacks on unescorted women, which for three months had terrorized a residential section of the city.

Lieut. T. O. Sturdivant, in charge of 100 police department operatives, who had been stationed in the Ponce de Leon and Highland avenue areas of the city since January 31, said Merritt's arrest came last night through identification of a hat and clothing which had been torn.

Denied bond, Merritt told H. O. Foster, plain clothes man, credited with his arrest, that he had been drunk and in an automobile accident last Wednesday night, explaining muddy and torn clothes and a hat found on Edgewood avenue and in a pressing club He professed no knowledge of the attacks.

Thirty Attacks in Three Months.

Lieut. Sturdivant said that 30 attacks had occurred within three months, and that five of them came in rapid succession last Wednesday night. The lieutenant said five women early today had selected Merritt from a line of ten prisoners and were positive in their identification.

Merritt was first arrested Friday night. Confronted with the clothing, he admitted ownership, but his automobile explanation was accepted and he was released. Foster said he then found that the hat also was the property of Merritt by tracing it through a clothing store and rearrested him last night.

Explaining identification, Foster said Officer W. P. Harmon had discovered that after one of the five attacks of last Wednesday the attacker's trousers were ripped in a jump over a fence. The hat was found near the scene of another attack of Wednesday.

Has Baby Daughter.

A stockroom employe of an automotive concern, the prisoner is married and the father of an 8-month-old baby. Mrs. Merritt was quoted by Lieut. Sturdivant as saying her husband was away from home during the evenings frequently.

The North Side sections were said to have been on the verge of organizing a vigilance committee when the arrest was made last night. Women so feared to go out, particularly at dusk, that merchants complained of poor business. Victims of the attacker were said by the police to have ranged in age from 12 years upward.

Police Chief J. L. Beavers announced last week that the police were searching for an imbecile or clique of gangsters as the perpetrator of the neighborhood reign of terror.

As the attacks became more frequent more men were detailed to the case, until more than 100 were in the vicinity when attacks were made last week.

TOLL IN RELIGIOUS WAR MOUNTS TO 109

CURFEW ORDER ENFORCED

Bombay, India, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Bombay was a city besieged tonight, its streets patrolled by regular British and Indian troops and its hospitals overcrowded with victims of the religious warfare between Hindus, Moslems and Pathans, which has taken a toll of 109 lives since last Sunday night.

The official death toll, announced today, included 32 natives, killed in street fighting within the last 24 hours. Twenty-one of these were Hindus, who started the week of rioting by attacks on Pathans suspected of kidnaping boys for sacrificial purposes.

Hundreds of persons have been injured, many of them seriously, in the last week. Even tonight, with armored cars, machine guns, mounted troops and civilian guards on hand, the fighting continued to break out from time to time in isolated districts.

Peace Party Attacked.

Rioters attacked a city party which was attempting to bring about peace between the factions this afternoon, injuring seven persons. One of the injured died later.

Six additional deaths were reported this afternoon in isolated parts of the district. All railway stations were congested with Hindu families leaving the city with all speed.

The largest clash today was started by a gang of Mohammedans, who attacked Hindus on a tram car. More than a score of persons were severely beaten before the attackers were dispersed by the troops.

Curfew Order Enforced.

Strict measures have been taken in an effort to end the native conflicts, troops being ordered to enforce the magistrate's curfew order and to prohibit assembly of more than five persons at one spot in the disturbed industrial areas.

The warlike atmosphere of the city was increased this morning with the arrival of more troops The auxiliary units now in the city include the Bombay Light Horse (all Europeans), the Bombay Infantry, a brigade of field artillery, a company of engineers, two railway battalions (partly mobilized, and a large number of European business men who have been enrolled as honorary magistrates for duty with troops. As a result, a considerable part of the city's European and civilian population is doing duty among the bazaars and temples, where the rioting has been most disastrous.

LINDBERGH SPEEDS MAIL TO MANAGUA

Only Field Personnel on Hand to Greet Pilot, Hours Early, on Return Flight.

TWO PLANES REACH GOAL

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying one of two mail planes which left Panama this morning, arrived here this afternoon.

Lindberg swooped down on the landing field at 1:35 p. m. (2:20 p. m. Eastern standard time), three hours before he had been expected. There was no one at the field to greet him except the Marine aviation personnel.

Brief stops were made at David, Panama, and Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, after leaving France Field, Canal Zone, at 6 o'clock this morning. The colonel had as a passenger Vice President John Hambleton, of the Pan American Airways. Another plane accompanied them and shared the burden of [illegible] pounds of mail.

Col. Lindberg will spend the night here and depart at daylight for Tela, Honduras. He will be accompanied by Lieut. Christian Schilt, U. S. M. C., who is going to Miami on a three-month leave of absence to become temporary district superintendent of the air mail route.

After a few days' rest in the Canal Zone, during which he watched the naval maneuvers off shore and went fishing with fellow aviators, Col. Lindbergh is winging his way home. He has been invited to attend the inauguration of Herbert Hoover on March 4.

On his three-day southward flight from Miami by way of Havana, Belize, Tela, Managua, Punta Arenas and David he covered 2,100 miles over sea, land and high mountains, a journey heretofore requiring nearly two weeks. In reversing his route, he bettered his time for the Canal Zone-Managua leg by about two hours.

Poincare Sees Reparation Problem as Task for U. S.

French Premier Wishes Americans Success in Settlement; Young Certain to Head Parley; Coolidge Not Opposed to His Selection as Chairman.

Paris, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Owen D. Young, of the United States, will be chairman of the experts committee when it meets at 2 p. m. tomorrow for its first official session to grapple with the great problem of reparations revision. Premier Raymond Poincare is quoted by the Journal des Debats as saying "we wish to extend to the United States delegates our most ardent wishes for success in their work."

This rather detached manner accentuates the American share in the work. With the approval of President Coolidge expressed, there can no longer be seen any difficulty to prevent the chairmanship of Mr. Young despite his reluctance.

The French viewpoint, as either of the French experts, Moreau or Parmentier, may put it tomorrow afternoon, is: "France wants $10,000,000,000; $5,990,000 for reconstruction of northern France and for pensions and $2,000,000,000 each for payments of war debts to the United States and Great Britain." This entails sacrifice of the original total amount demanded by France, but she is entering the committee prepared to make these, providing a similar reduction is made on her debit side by Britain and the United States.

Germany desires a speedy decision with the emphasis on evacuation of the left bank of the Rhine. It is understood that Germany might be willing to sign measures which might make the Dawes plan payments appear small for the next ten years, providing the left bank of the Rhine is evacuated immediately. Germany will argue that 11,000,000,000 gold marks in railroad bonds and 5,000,000,000 industrial debentures must be mobilized immediately, with the United States accepting 45 per cent.

A preliminary skirmish on this angle between the Germans and Americans is expected early in the sessions.

Shorn of all diplomatic niceties, it appears that both France and Germany are preparing to put the question of reparations squarely up to the United States, with Great Britain as indorser. It is expected that the committee will subdivide itself as soon as it organizes tomorrow. Like the original Dawes committee, a subcommittee will be intrusted with the task of settling once and for all what is to be the total amount paid to the allies by Germany and then fixing the annuities. Germany is desirous of ridding herself of payments to France on the shortest schedule possible to arrange, without actual transfer of currency and gold if possible.

It is understood that the committee will sit in Paris in a general way and will remove to Berlin only when necessary. The meeting tomorrow will be in the Hotel Astoria, formerly headquarters of the reparations commission.

Mr. Young, J. Pierpont Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont were luncheon guests of Ambassador Herrick today, as were Commandatore Pirelli, of Italy, and Emile Franequi, of Belgium. Later Ambassador Herrick said:

"We got together. This problem does not see mto be unsolvable."

Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, was said in French financial circles tonight to hold the key to the situation as "the man who has penetrated deepest into the reparations problem."

(Associated Press.)

The unanimous demand expressed by the committee of experts in Paris that Owen D. Young, unofficial American delegate, act as the permanent chairman during their meeting to settle the German reparations problem meets with the approval of President Coolidge.

Although Mr. Young demurred in Paris Saturday to the suggestion that he head the conference, the committee communicated to the Washington Government for the information of the President their unanimous desire to have the American delegate act in that capacity.

The attitude of the President was set forth yesterday by a high official of the American Government as being that, while he had hoped for the selection of one of the European delegates as chairman, he found no objection to Mr. Young acting as the head of the committee as such action seemed necessary to promote the success of the conference.

The United States has refrained from any official participation in connection with the selection of the American experts, and has made it plain that it will not be bound by any action of the conference. President Coolidge did, however, inform the reparations commission after the inquiry was made through the British Ambassador here that the American Government had no objection to Mr. Young and J. P. Morgan acting unofficially as American experts on the committee.

Young is the head of the American delegation to the conference, which, besides Morgan, included Thomas Nelson Perkins, of Boston, and Thomas W. Lamont as alternates. Mr. Young was a member of the first reparations conference in 1924, which framed the Dawes plan.

Planes Aid Icebound Ships.

Copenhagen, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Twenty-five vessels which are icebound between here and the Island of Ruegen were provided with food by airplanes today. The government has warned small ships not to attempt to reach open water.

RELIGIOUS QUERIES BANNED BY EDISON

Birthday Interview Today Is to Be Secular; Hoovers Will Be Guests.

PARADE TO MARK EVENT

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Thomas A. Edison has banned religious inquiries from the interview he will give tomorrow as usual in connection with the celebration of his birthday.

It is not that the wizard of American invention, who will be 82 tomorrow, lacks views on religion, but he wants to avoid any renewal of a controversy he raised once before.

The interview, normally the outstanding event of Edison's birthdays for the public, will be but a preliminary part of his program tomorrow, the outstanding event being his reception of the President-elect of the United States, Herbert Hoover, and Mrs. Hoover, who will be his guests at luncheon together with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, old friends and annual birthday comrades.

Many Questions Written.

Outside of religion, Edison has indicated he will discuss any other subject. The written questions prepared for the interview in advance embrace prohibition, radio, politics and other subjects, including an inquiry as to his prescription for happiness in life.

Fort Myers, which knows Edison and Ford as old neighbors, is rather on tip toe for the visit tomorrow of the President-elect and Mrs. Hoover, and the meeting of the three symbols of America's machine age.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were cruising leisurely off the west coast today. The Sauntere will anchor tonight somewhere along the west coast. There was a family reunion aboard the yacht today. Herbert Hoover, jr., who arrived at Miami this morning, motored to Everglades, a town along the west coast, and there joined his father and mother, according to word received here. He arrived at 7 a. m. by train from Atlanta, where he had abandoned his flight from Washington because of unfavorable weather.

The President-elect, Mrs. Hoover and members of the party, will debark at the Edison estate and go immediately into the home for the luncheon. Besides their son, other members of the party are Jeremiah Milbank, owner of the Saunterer, and Edgar Ricard of New York, an old friend, and Mrs. Ricard.

Parade Is Arranged.

A parade which had been arranged for 11:30 has been scheduled instead for 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after the luncheon. Only a few automobiles will be in line. Local officials will ride at the head of the parade, followed by a car carrying the President-elect and Edison, another with Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Edison, and a third with Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Firestone.

Present plans are for Mr. Hoover and his party to return to the yacht after the parade for a fishing trip. Edison, it was learned tonight, may ask the President-elect to remain over and speak briefly over a radio hookup arranged for his birthday celebration tomorrow night. Edison himself will make a short radio talk.

Will See Rubber Farm.

Though he will be here only a short time, the President-elect will inspect with Ford and Firestone the ten-acre miniature plantation adjoining Edison's estate, where the aged inventor is experimenting with all sorts of plants to develop a new species producing rubber which can be grown in this country.

Edison's ultimate aim is the independence of this country from Great Britain's control of the world's rubber supply, a problem in which Hoover, Ford and Firestone and vitally interested. Both Ford and Firestone are backing Edison financially in his new venture.

Both, besides, have other projects under way with this end in view, Ford in Brazil and Firestone in the Philippines and Liberia. Hoover sponsored legislation as Secretary of Commerce, which, though failing of enactment, was credited with Great Britain's easing of rubber production restrictions under the Stevenson act. Hoover likewise inaugurated a campaign for development of rubber substitutes.

MRS. BLALOCK SOUGHT BY CAPITAL POLICE

Decline to Act.

The missing palmist, who has charged Burlingame with threatening her life and property, declared in an affidavit that she was afraid to return to Washington lest the captain kill her, but both Maj. Hesse and Asssitant District Attorney Collins have promised to provide her all the protection she wants if she will appear in person as a complaining witness.

Stung by the charge of Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, that they are "protecting" Burlingame, the District Commissioners will meet again this morning to determine what they are going to do about the affair.

At the same time the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee will be in session, deciding what they are going to do about a letter that was received from the Commissioners Saturday.

Protection Is Promised.

In that letter Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty told Representative Ernest W. Gibson, of Vermont, that he and his colleagues had determined to stand on their decision not to do anything to Burlingame until Mrs. Blalock comes out of hiding. The letter was in response to one from Gibson's subcommittee demanding that Burlingame be suspended pending an investigation.

Late Saturday night, however, Commissioner Dougherty issued a statement saying that he had no intention of letting the Burlingame matter drop and promising that the case would be brought to a conclusion as soon as practicable.

Today is District of Columbia day in the House, and it is possible that Representative Blanton, of Texas, and others interested in the Burlingame affair will use the occasion to set off some oratorical fireworks.

To Name Conferees.

The action of the Senate in voting to cut off Capt. Burlingame's pay is to be followed today by the appointment of the Senate and House conferees on the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, will head the Senate conferees, and Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, the House conferees.

It will be up to them to decide whether the amendment sponsored by Senator Caraway shall remain in the bill. This amendment, which was adopted without a dissenting vote, provides that Burlingame's pay shall be withheld until he is vindicated of the charges pending against him.

Capt. Burlingame yesterday declined to comment on Senator Caraway's charge that he is "crooked," and Commissioner Dougherty maintained the same attitude in the face of a statement that he was "utterly unsuited" for the job of handling police affairs here.

COLD CAUSES DEATHS IN CENTRAL EUROPE

Extreme Suffering Reported in Constantinople as Snow Halts Trains.

HUNGRY WOLVES FEARED

London, Feb. 10 (United Press).—A new cold wave throughout central Europe and extending as far as Constantinople, where conditions of greatest suffering were reported, was revealed tonight in dispatches from a dozen capitals.

Influenza epidemics in various countries were adding considerably to the distress, especially in England, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia.

The United Press correspondent at Berlin reported that one person was found frozen to death and 120 were treated for frozen noses, feet or hands in the German capital. The streets were deserted tonight because of the severe weather—about 13 degrees below zero throughout Germany.

Several German towns, including Koenigsberg and Breslau, reported 20 below zero.

The North Sea coast was blocked with ice and more than 40 vessels were ice-bound in Lubeck Bay. The navy department has ordered German battleships, the Schleswig-Holstein and Elsas, to the rescue.

Advices from the Schleswig-Holstein said work was progressing and that 30 of the vessels had been liberated. A giant Lufthansa airplane cruised the Baltic coast throughout the day locating icebound vessels. Shipping was at a standstill.

The Daily Express correspondent at Vienna reported "terrible conditions" at Constantinople, which has only wireless communication with the world, since all telegraph lines were broken down by snow storms. Trains were snowbound and a fierce tornado held ships in the harbor, the advices from Constantinople said.

"The danger of attack by wolves—which has spread throughout central Europe recently—was increasing, the dispatches added, and the suburbs were covered with several feet of snow.

Many persons were frozen to death in the streets, it was said, and famine threatens the population.

A dispatch from Vienna said the Orient express, which is long overdue in Constantinople, is snowbound in eastern Thrace. It has not been able to move for ten days and wolves were reported surrounding the passengers, who are running short of food.

Brattislavia, Czechoslavia, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Forced from their lairs by extremely heavy snow, wolves continue their depredations in the rural sections and small towns, attacking both humans and animals. Reports from Galanta, near here, say villagers have had to barricade themselves in their homes.

A 19-year-old boy was torn to pieces by a pack after he had exhausted himself in flight and used the last cartridge in his pistol. A woman also was killed and several persons badly mutilated.

Athens, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Extremely severe weather is prevalent throughout Greece.

Four women died at Thessaly, where 16 feet of snow completely demoralized all transportation and made virtual prisoners of the inhabitants.

King George Aided By Sea Air and Sun

Bognor, Sussex, England, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Already, in the first 36 hours of his stay at Craigweil House, King George is feeling the beneficial effect of the invigorating sea air and sunshine, in contrast to the fog and the damp of London, where he had been chained by his illness for eleven weeks.

Lord Dawson of Penn today motored down and, after consultation with Sir Stanley Hewett, was able to issue a bulletin this afternoon saying, "His majesty had a good night. The improvement continues." Lord Dawson drove back to town, leaving Sir Stanley in charge.

Bolivia Residents Flee Flood of Mamore River

La Paz, Bolivia, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Two-thirds of the houses of Trinidad, capital of Beni Province, are faced with destruction by flood of the Mamore River, which has been inundating the city for several days. Villages were said to be threatened also and all of the field crops have been destroyed.

The inhabitants of Santa Ana are leaving the town. Launches and small steamboats are being used to evacuate the stranded inhabitants of Trinidad. Relief measures have been taken, but distance and interrupted communications make them difficult.

Broadway Limited Train In Wreck; 100 Shaken

Hobart, Ind., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Nearly 100 passengers aboard the first section of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Broadway Limited, bound for New York, were shaken up today when seven cars left the rails near here.

No one was injured. Pennsylvania officials, who said an investigation was under way, thought the derailment was caused by the second car in the train. The engine and first car did not leave the rails. A substitute train was dispatched from Chicago to pick up the passengers and continue to New York.

JOHN D., JR., IN FINAL ATTACK ON STEWART

72-Page Pamphlet, Dealing With Oil Scandal, to Be Sent Stockholders.

CLAIM VOTING MAJORITY

New York, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—With less than a month to go before the opposing armies in the financial battle of the century line up for action in Whiting, Ind., on March 7, the Rockefeller interests have launched their final drive to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from his firmly intrenched position as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Tomorrow a 72-page pamphlet, containing a complete review of Col. Stewart's connection with the oil scandals and the transactions of the Continental Trading Co., will be forwarded to all stockholders of Standard Oil of Indiana by Winthrop W. Aldrich, who, with John D. Rockefeller, jr., and William Roberts, is a member of the committee which is soliciting proxies to be voted against Col. Stewart at the annual election in Whiting.

In a letter prefacing the exhaustive summary, Mr. Aldrich, who is a member of the law firm of Murray, Aldrich & Roberts, explains that all the facts set forth are matters of public record in the minutes of the hearings before the Senate public lands committee.

May Swing Some Votes.

This review, bringing out, as it does, Col. Stewart's conflicting testimony before the Senate committee concerning the Continental Trading Co. and the United States Supreme Court's statement that "the company was created for some illegitimate purpose," is expected to swing stockholders, who have not as yet gone deeply into the situation, over to Mr. Rockefeller's side.

It was not the charge of contempt of the Senate and perjury which "caused lack of confidence" in Col. Stewart, Mr Aldrich said, but "his conduct over a period of years in connection with the Continental Trading Co. and his attitude toward his own company, toward the public and toward public authority."

Claims Rockefeller Edge.

Mr. Aldrich reiterated his recent announcement that a majority interest of the stockholders already have sent their proxies to the committee, headed by Mr. Rockefeller. However, these proxies may be revoked before the meeting March 7. The booklet to be issued tomorrow will, it is believed, counteract in some measure the psychological advantage gained by Col. Stewart a week ago when a 50 per cent stock dividend and an extra cash dividend of 50 cents a share was voted to stockholders.

The review sent out by Mr. Aldrich begins with a dramatis personae of individuals and corporations figuring in the sensational dealings of the Continental Co. There follows a chronological table from June 1, 1921, to May 1, 1928, charting the events dealt with. Then begins the story itself, marked by many pages of Col. Stewart's testimony. An appendix contains the characterization of the Continental Trading Co. quoted from an opinion by the United States Supreme Court.

"On April 20, 1928, Stewart called together the directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and told them of the fact that he had in his possession the Continental Trading Co. bonds which he had received, and the directors decided that these bonds should be turned over to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., and this was done," Mr. Aldrich's report states.

Statement by Sinclair.

"On May 1, 1928, Mr. Sinclair appeared before the committee (Senate) and testified that he had received somewhat in excess of $750,000 of Continental Trading Co. bonds 'for my company' and that in the latter part of April, 1928, he had turned over to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. an amount in bonds equal to the Continental Trading Co. bonds which he had received.

"At the time of his first appearance before the Senate committee Stewart refused to testify on certain points and justified this refusal on the ground that he might be called to testify in the proceedings against Sinclair which were then pending.

"In his later testimony, however, he denied ever having discussed the Continental Trading Co. transactions with Sinclair, or having any knowledge of the disposition of Sinclair's bonds Stewart never appeared as a witness at the trial of Sinclair.

"From his testimony on April 24, 1928 it appeared that Stewart had in his possession bonds which he knew as early as November 26, 1921, belonged either to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. or the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, and instead of disclosing this fact to his board of directors and turning over the bonds immediately, he created a secret trust, making a subordinate employe of the company trustee, and did not himself keep, nor did he require the trustee to keep, any record whatever of the transaction except the trust agreement written in pencil which was kept in his (Stewart's) own safe deposit box.

Bonds Kept in Safe.

"The bonds covered by the trust were placed in a safe, the combination of which Stewart had and to which he had access, and he did not turn over these bonds to their true owners until April 20, 1928.

"Moreover, Stewart participated with Sinclair in guaranteeing the performance by the Continental Trading Co. of the contract between the Continental Trading Co. and the Humphreys companies, which guaranty made it possible for the entire Continental Trading Co. deal to be put through, and he did not use the power which he undoubtedly had as chief executive of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the parent company, to prevent Blackmer, an officer of the Midwest Refining Co., the subsidiary company, from making a profit out of the Continental Trading Co. transaction."

The facts surrounding these events, Mr. Aldrich said, are all matters of public record in the minutes of the hearings of the Senate public lands and surveys committee.

Blasts Sink Tug; Oil Barge Burned

One Man Injured and Windows Broken by Explosions in Jamaica Bay.

New York, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two explosions in the boiler of a Standard Oil Co. tugboat today set fire to her and a barge moored alongside in Jamaica Bay at Inwood, Long Island. The tugboat, valued at $75,000, sank, and the barge, valued at $80,000, was practically destroyed. Windows of houses in a radius of about 2 miles were shattered.

The barge had arrived with 5,000 barrels of airplane oil and gasoline aboard. Except for 1,000 gallons of gasoline, the contents had been pumped into tanks ashore when at 3 o'clock operations were suddenly halted by a loud blast.

The fire spread rapidly from the tugboat to the barge and both were quickly enveloped in smoke. Oiler William Shea suffered severe burns about the hands and was treated by an ambulance surgeon from St. Joseph's Hospital.

BILLION IS INVESTED IN AVIATION SHARES

FOUR LEADING GROUPS

New York, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Popularity of commercial flying, following Lindbergh's New York to Paris flight of May, 1927, has caused more than $1,000,000,000 to be poured into the aviation industry by bankers and the public and lifted the price of many air shares skyward with a speed comparing favorably with the pace set by the machines thmeselves.

The growth of the automotive industry is being used as a yardstick for measuring the financial progress of aviation. Bankers recall the beginings of the automobile industry and the difficulty manufacturers had to contend with in financing their business. It was hard to sell even motor bonds. There are no compound aviation securities and it is easy to sell air shares.

Automobiles, excluding parts, accessories and bodies, had an invested capital of $1,000,000,000 in 1913 and now have about $3,000,000,000. Aeroplane companies were few and total invested capital small—much under $200,000,000—in 1919 as against 900 incorporated companies and around $1,000,000,000 at present.

Investment Trusts Formed.

Aviation has had in its favor great technical progress, a nation of investors to buy securities, investment trusts which have invested in aeroplane firms, managed them, advised them and financed them, and the cooperation of established transportation companies.

Then along came the British investment trust idea just at a time when the public began to take an interest in aviation. The investment trust in 1924 had a capital of $500,000. They have a capital today in excess of $2,000,000,000. Six aviation investment trusts, all organized in 1928, have played an important role in the financing and development of aviation and the advancement of such securities.

These six investment trusts—National Aviation Corporation, North American Aviation, Inc., Aeronautical Industries Inc., Airstocks Inc., Aviation Securities Corporation and Air Investors—are formed to invest in air securities, hold air shares, and finance new companies or those in need of funds. These trusts were not formed with the idea of merely trading in air securities nor buying control of other companies.

Earnings of some of these trusts are remarkable. Recent earnings report of the National Aviation Corporation for instance shows the company earned a net surplus of $236,879, after deducting $44,137 for organization expenses and cost of equipment, on a capital of $3,600,000 between June 23, 1928 and December 31, 1928.

Four Huge Groups.

Financially the industry is divided into four huge groups with hundreds of small companies. The four major groups in order of their size are: Curtis-Keys, United Aircraft and Transportation Corporation, Wright Aeronautical Corporation and Keystone Corporation.

Wright Aeronautical, when listed in 1921, had a market valuation of $1,458,-835, against an indicated market valuation at present of $67,282,290. Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Corporation in 1920 was selling in the open market at $634,048. Shares of the same company today are worth $59,312,150. The thirteen companies in the Curtiss group have a present market value of $183,-864,950, against $72,754,048 in 1920.

The United Aircraft & Transport Corporation is the biggest single corporation, its assets approximating $156,000,-000. Unlike the Curtiss-Keys group, which is a linking of companies together through management, the United Aircraft is one corporation, consisting of three companies.

These larger companies, as well as some of the small but sound concerns, look for considerable competition within the next few years. They believe their products will have to face keen competition. Investors when selecting air securities will have to remember that inferior offerings will be interspersed among sound issues.

GREEK PRINCE WEDS PRINCESS OF FRANCE

Princess Viggo of Denmark, Prince Paul and Princess Olga of Jugoslavia, the Count and Countess d'Orleans-Chaponya, and all their gentlemen and ladies in waiting.

Owing to the recent death of the queen mother of Spain and the subsequent court mourning decreed by King Victor Emmanuel, the festivities tonight and tomorrow were considerably curtailed.

The religious ceremony will be celebrated by Mgr. Cozzoli, assisted by the Palatin chapter. Thereafter the party will return to the palace for a reception and wedding breakfast. The couple, after a protracted honeymoon, will return to Rome and live in the palace of Queen Mother Olga.

Efforts of the ecclesiastical authorities to dissociate the ceremony from the French royalist movement were unavailable. The bride was the proud recipient of gifts from monarchist leaders, together with an album containing thousands of signatures of sympathizers of the cause of the pretender. The Italian tricolor and the white flag of the house of Orleans were displayed together outside the palace.

The bride, Princess Francois Isabelle Louise Marie, was born in Paris on Christmas Day, 1902. She has received the traditional education of a daughter of the French nobility, and additional training in languages, being, like her sisters, thoroughly conversant with English, Italian and Spanish.

Prince Christopher is considerably older than his bride, having been born in the Chateau of Pavlovsk, near what was then St. Petersburg, July 29, 1888. On February 1, 1920, he married the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the Cleveland (Ohio) magnate, at Vevey, Switzerland, and with her visited the United States. Princess Anastasia, as she was styled, died in London, August 29, 1923, survived by her son, William B. Leeds, jr., who married Princess Xenia of Russia.

Capt. W. R. Dobbs and the crew of eight men were rescued, the reports said. The vessel was en route with a cargo of bananas from Mexico to Los Angeles.

Meanwhile the tug Sea Rover was speeding to the assistance of the freighter Suspeario, stranded since Thursday night off Magdalena Bay on the coast of Lower California.

The Suspeario, carrying a general cargo and manned by a crew of 25, was en route from New York to San Francisco when her fuel supply became exhausted in a severe storm. The Rover will tow the disabled vessel into this harbor.

WHOLESALE TARIFF REVISION OPPOSED

RESUME HEARINGS TODAY

(Associated Press)

With opinion solidified more than ever against a wholesale revision of the tariff at the special session of the new Congress, the House ways and means committee today will enter its sixth week of hearings on the subject.

Silk, paper and books and sundries will demand the attention of the committee for the next five days. Next week will be devoted to sundries and the free list, with the administrative provisions coming up for consideration February 25. This will conclude the open sessions, at which, to date, 680 witnesses have pressed hundreds of proposals for changes in the import duty structure, mostly increases.

That a majority of these suggestions will be ignored is the opinion held rather generally among Republican congressional leaders. They hold that only in isolated instances outside the agricultural rates will there be a necessity for upward revision, and openly declare that many of the witnesses recommend higher duties, not expecting them to be granted, but in the hope that present rates will not be lowered or that compromise higher duties might be agreed upon.

While there have been some predictions that the entire tariff wall would be raised, the return of Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee from Florida, where he conferred last week with President-elect Hoover, with the opinion that there should be no tinkering with rates other than those applying to agriculture, except in a few scattered instances, has served to allay the fears of the moderate revisionists of the House.

Speaker Longworth, Republican; Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican House floor leader, and Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, have been in accord all along that schedules other than those dealing with products of the farm should be readjusted only where inequities are definitely shown. They have read reports, however, that the Senate would open up the entire tariff to radical change and it is against this proposal that Senator Smoot has now taken a stand.

The Utah senator, whose committee will have charge of the tariff bill in the Senate, says that, while there is no way of limiting consideration to any special items and all may be subjected to revision once the bill reaches the Senate floor, he will oppose all efforts to change rates in wholesale fashion.

He believes the farm duties generally could well stand increases, but moderate ones. Aside from this he sees little need of changes except perhaps in the sugar and cotton textile schedules. He believes the world sugar duty of 2.2 cents a pound and 1.76 cents against Cuba will be raised as well as the rates on fine cotton yarns and cloths.

U. S. PLOT TO OUST GEN. BOOTH CHARGED

Smith, Commissioner Here, Is Sure American Envoy Is Cause of Trouble.

SEES HATE OF BRITISH

London, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—America against Great Britain is the real issue in the Salvation Army fight, former Commissioner Frank Smith, formerly commander in chief in America, declares in a feature article published in the Sunday Express.

Under the heading, "The Booth Plot," he hints that John D. Rockefeller's gift of $1,000,000 to the army, announced January 5, "to indorse his appreciation of Evangeline Booth" and to indorse suggested reforms show that Rockefeller knew in advance of the present struggle, and says "American money is being used to oust the British general."

According to Smith, the "plot" against Gen. Booth was formed in America.

"I know America thoroughly," he writes. "I was commander in America, holding the position Evangeline Booth now holds. I know American aspirations, American envyings and American intolerance of anything the British control, and with that absolute knowledge I say the general's troubles began in America."

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Defection within the Salvation Army from the cause of Gen. Gramwell Booth was said by high army officials tonight to be strengthened considerably by the cablegram sent by Col. Walter Jenkins, "on behalf of the whole staff of the Salvation Army in the United States," regretting the general's resort to the law courts. It followed close on the heels of similar sentiment expressed in a letter from the Swedish officers of the army.

Commander Evangeline Booth received a copy of the Jenkins cablegram and in comment said:

"These renewed assurances of restful trust in myself and other members of the high council strengthen us to contend with unflinching courage for the bedrock teachings of our faith and service."

Lady Grace Drummond Hay, first woman to fly the Atlantic from Europe to the United States.

"The fact that we were not permitted to smoke from the time the Graf Zeppelin left Friedrichshafen until we landed at Lakehurst only increased my appetite for a Lucky Strike. Oh, how good that first one tasted! I'm really keen for Lucky Strike—the toasted flavor is delightful. I smoke a Lucky instead of eating sweets—that's what many men have been doing for years. I think it high time we women smoked Luckies and kept our figures trim."

GRACE M. HAY DRUMMOND HAY

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

Members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition selected Waterman's as a matter of course

In the selection of every item of equipment for the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, absolute dependability was the all-important factor. Simply as a matter of course, therefore, Waterman's fountain pens were supplied to every member.

It was to be expected, too, that Waterman's Blue Black would be the official ink. And, to meet the rigid exactions of the Antarctic continent, itself, we supplied a non-freezing ink made by a special formula.

Because Waterman's No. 7 is made in seven different styles of pen point, each identified by a distinct color inlay band on the cap, it is the "Ideal" pen for fitting perfectly, the many different types of writing. Price $7.00.

CHURCHMEN DECRY COMPANIONATE IDEA

Federal Council's Committee Issues Its Initial Report on Love and Home.

SEX RELATIONS ANALYZED

Companionate marriage, as sponsored by Judge Ben Lindsay, was decried in a report on "ideals of love and marriage," issued by the committee on marriage and the home of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The report is the first in a series that will deal with the problems of marriage and the home. The committee, of which Bishop James Cannon, jr., is chairman, and the Right Rev. Howard C. Robbins vice president, has stated its conclusions "without hesitation."

The report reviews the causes of restless conditions surrounding marriage, for which "the church has much to answer," and then strikes out boldly against institutions of "freer sex relation."

"Mind and Sex Degraded."

"The chief danger of companionate marriage," the report says, "is that it puts sex desire first. To do so is to degrade not only the mind but sex itself. Sex experience is elevating and wholesome to body and mind only when it is under moral restraint and when it is transmuted into a spiritual experience by love and devotion.

"Companionate marriage gives a wrong start to marriage by the ideal which it holds before the young. Instead of the life-long companionship which purposes to overcome all difficulties and welcomes children, it starts with self-regarding motives and raises doubt as to the future. This is psychologically unfortunate and puts marriage on a distinctly low level.

"Objects Not Accomplished."

"The question also arises whether there is likelihood that companionate marriage would really accomplish the objects which it seeks, especially with the young, and whether it would seriously diminish illicit relations. What youth needs is greater maturity and longer acquaintance before marriage, better training for its responsibilities and a stronger voluntary discipline over the impulses of sex."

The committee then denounced easy divorces and other practices that help destroy the home and the "Christian ideal of marriage."

"Divorce, even when allowed by the church, must be looked upon as a tragic and humiliating failure," the report declares.

The World War and the emancipation of women were some of the underlying causes, but the "church has much to answer for in the present unsettled condition of the home," the report says.

"Church Should Be Clinic."

"The church has spent its energies too largely in abstract teaching and institutional activities, to the neglect of instruction and pastoral oversight in these matters. Preaching until recently has been disproportionately doctrinal, and churches have been slow to recognize the redemptive character of social work in the field of family welfare.

"Too many pastors are careless about safeguarding the marriages they celebrate. Still less have many of them taught the meaning of Christian marriage and the help which lies in religion to attain the ideal. In numerous communities there is a 'marrying parson' who commercializes his sacred office."

In conclusion, the committee recommended that the church "emphasize the sterner obligations of marriage, the difficulties which may be expected and develop the will to meet them."

"The chief problems of marriage are subject to spiritual treatment," the report continues. Every church, at its best, would be a kind of clinic to which people would come for guidance and for help to overcome their troubles, as they now go to physicians for their physical ills."

Fingerprints Link Man To 10-Year-Old Murder

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Finger prints found on a club, used in killing a man ten years ago, duplicated those taken on a robbery suspect and police believe they may have solved the slaying of a man who revealed a plot to blow up the City Hall in 1919.

Frank Moran is the man suspected of killing James Patterson, soft drink parlor proprietor, February 20, 1919. He denied the killing, but is held for questioning. The plot to bomb the City Hall, Union League Club and Army headquarters was discovered a day after the slaying and police learned Patterson was one of three men chosen to plant the bombs, but had refused at the last moment.

Salesman Ships $100,000 Jewelry, Foiling Bandits

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—By shipping jewels valued at $100,000 to Chicago instead of carrying them to Minneapolis, Max Henkin, New York gem salesman, frustrated two bandits last night.

The bandits accosted Henkin in a corridor of a downtown hotel in Minneapolis, forced him into his room, searched him and then beat him severely when they failed to find the gems. They desisted only when they found the express receipt for the shipment which had been made a short time before. Henkin was able to continue his journey to Chicago.

Sage Report Bares Scores Of "Marriage Mart" Towns

Survey Shows 57 in 29 States, Disclosing "General Neglect" of Laws on Matrimony; Backed by One Chamber of Commerce; Reform Asked.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The Russell Sage Foundation reported today that a study of marriage law administration in 30 States has revealed the existence of 57 "marriage market towns" in 29 States.

The report states that these towns constitute the most conspicuous, though not the most serious, result of "the general neglect of marriage laws in this country."

The communities styled marriage market towns are those that have more than twice as large a marriage rate as that of their State, or which draw more than half their marriage candidates from outside license districts.

"We are so little inclined to advertise these places," says the foundation, "that we are suppressing their names throughout this report."

In one marriage market town the report says that social workers were told by the justice of the peace that his regular fee was $3, but if the principals wanted their marriage kept out of the papers he charged $3 extra.

In this town runners for the justices were found who went so far in soliciting business as to board moving automobiles if they thought the occupants looked as though they might get married if properly approached.

In another town two justices of the peace advertised in street cars running from a nearby city, displaying car cards reading, "Sweetheart: Be ready at 4 o'clock—we'll go to * * * just a short ride, and Justices * * * and * * * will tie the knot."

In a third town ministers rather than justices were found to be profiting by the business, splitting of fees with taxi drivers who brought them couples to marry having been charged against several.

In one marriage market town the chamber of commerce spoke in its printed circulars of the town's advantages for weddings and expressed its desire for "legitimate resort marriage business."

The report includes a study of exploitation of marriage, which it says is by no means limited to marriage market towns. In one city where license applications may be received by any notary public a jeweler had himself appointed a notary and then advertised free marriages for all who bought rings in his store.

Other means of exploiting marriage were listed as weddings at public expositions, in floats in street parades, in ferris wheels, in airplanes, theaters, swimming tanks and at midnight on June 1 to win prizes offered by merchants for the first June bride.

The Foundation says that exploitation of marriage is rarely illegal and suggests that only public opinion can stop the "unseemly procedure," which the report says destroys the solemnity of the marriage vows and tends to eliminate a conscientious attitude among the officiating justices.

The study was made for the Foundation by Fred S. Hall, of the Russell Sage staff, and the late Mary E. Richmond.

Farmer Killed in Fight With Private Policemen

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—John Bereskie, a 41-year-old farmer, was beaten to death today following a fight, police said, that occurred on property of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., on the outskirts of the city. H. P. Watts and Frank Slapikas, employed as private policemen by the coal company, were arrested tonight in connection with the death.

Police said Watts admitted attacking Bereskie with the butt of his gun, after the farmer had drawn a knife to prevent the company's officers from entering his mother-in-law's home to purchase liquor and raid the place.

Balkan Town, in Snow Blanket 9 Days, Saved

Serajevo, Jugoslavia, Feb. 10 (A.P.) The Moslem town of Gradsko, near here, today was dug out of the snowy sepulcher in which it had been buried for nine days. The army rescued the half-frozen, famished and delirious population of 3,000 persons.

For more than a week the government had sought to reach the isolated town. All expeditions failed until the army sapper corps packed its way through the snow, taking food, medicines and blankets to the population, many of whom had resigned themselves to death. The last ounces of fod and fuel had been consumed.

PROSECUTOR SEEKS PANZRAM'S RELEASE

Massachusetts Official to Come to Capital; Wants Prisoner in Murder.

SALEM BOY WAS VICTIM

District Attorney William A. Clark, of Gloucester, Mass., will ask Washington authorities to release Carl Panzram in order that Massachusetts may try him for the murder of 12-year-old Henry McMahon at Salem nearly seven years ago, dispatches received last night from the Massachusetts city stated.

The attorney yesterday at his home in Gloucester, where he has been confined for ten days by illness, announced that he intends coming to Washington as soon as the criminal sessions of the Essex Superior Court recess, probably in about three weeks, to see what he can do about bringing Panzram back here.

"Panzram will wait for me, I guess," the district attorney said. "He is doing 25 years in Washington for housebreaking and a couple of weeks won't make any difference."

Clark already has the report of State Detective William F. Murray, of Lynn, attached to his office, and Capt. Gideon Pelletter, of Salem, who accompanied by witnesses, came here for interviews with Panzram after the convict had confessed to the killing of boys in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Four women and a boy identified Panzram as the man they saw walking along the Salem highway on the afternoon Henry McMahon disappeared, and these, together with statements made by the prisoner, apparently solved what had been a six-year-old mystery.

Essex County authorities regard their case as much more complete than that presented by the Pennsylvania authorities, and District Attorney Clark believes the District of Columbia authorities will surrender Panzram to him as a convict, in the event of Massachusetts' failure to convict him of the McMahon boy's murder.

75 Motorists Stalled In Wyoming Snowdrifts

Sheridan, Wyo., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Between 75 and 100 persons were reported marooned in automobiles and buses near Banner, Wyo., 17 miles south of here, in snowdrifts.

The Casper-Sheridan bus was stalled, as were cars bringing the Gillette Basket Ball Team to Sheridan, where they were to play.

Beggers of Hungary Must Pay Income Tax

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 10 (A.P.). All beggars in Hungary must henceforth pay taxes on their incomes, the same as all other citizens; must register their names and addresses with the police, and prove their inability to work.

It all came about when the government discovered that the president of the National Association of Hungarian Beggars had called a meeting of the association, to be held at Zeggededin today. The meeting was promptly banned, and dissolution of the organization demanded. When investigation proved that many beggars made more money than respectable working men, the government came out with its drastic regulations.

It was during the latter period that he and her sister were presented at the Court of St. James and that she met Capt. French, whom she later married.

The matrimonial bark, however, went on the rocks in little more than a year and the couple was divorced. Mrs French returned to America and Capt. French continued to serve the king. Then came the war. Capt. French went to France. Mrs. French also went to France as a war nurse. They met and were reconciled. After the war Capt French inherited a large estate and, returning to the United States in December, 1922, Mrs. French confirmed advices from England that she had been awarded $5,000,000 by the English courts in settlement of the estate.

Since the reconciliation with her husband Mrs. French had resided off and on in London, New York and Washington. She maintained an apartment in New York and often visited in Washington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at St. Matthew's Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MEANS OF VIOLATING DRY LAW UNDER FIRE

Representative Sproul to Ask Inquiry Into All Methods in Use.

NEW OIL IS QUESTIONED

(United Press.)

Demand for an investigation of methods of violating the Volstead act by a joint Senate and House special committee cooperating with the Federal Trade Commission is contained in a resolution to be introduced in the House today by Representative Sproul (Republican), Kansas.

According to Sproul, the investigation will include inquiry into reports that an oil company is producing an oil designed primarily to convert industrial alcohol into beverage alcohol.

"We understand that boiling of this oil with industrial alcohol will remove denaturants as the oil has the ability of attracting the denaturing substances put in the alcohol."

The resolution is intended as a general investigation of all means of violating the prohibition laws, Sproul explained. It will include sale of malt compounds, wine cakes and other ingredients for manufacturing intoxicating beverages, he said.

The investigation, he points out, is in general line with the Nation-wide prohibition inquiry suggested by President-elect Hoover.

No appropriation of funds is provided in the resolution, as the Federal Trade Commission has authority to conduct such an investigation at the direction of Congress, Sproul said.

The congressional committee will cooperate with the commission if the resolution is passed, he added.

THE SENATE'S UNJUST ACT.

The Senate has made a bad matter worse by adopting an amendment to the District bill providing that Police Capt. Guy E. Burlingame's pay shall be withheld "until he shall be vindicated from the charges now pending against him."

This amendment should be stricken from the bill in conference, as a matter of decency and obedience to constitutional law.

No one knows whether Capt. Burlingame is innocent or guilty of the allegations made in a committee of the House. In the absence of formal charges he is not only warranted in keeping silence, but he would be foolish to make public his defense. Like all other citizens of the United States, he is entitled to the presumption of innocence until and unless he is proved guilty by a fair trial. It is certainly unfair to publish damaging allegations against a man and then fail to produce a complaining witness or evidence before a grand jury.

Apparently senators were utterly indifferent to this case, and permitted this improper amendment to be inserted in an appropriation bill. The Senate contains many able lawyers. Not one of them can show that the amendment is not in violation of a citizen's constitutional rights. If this amendment should be accepted in conference, Congress will have polluted the source of law by trying to throw the burden of proof upon a citizen entitled to the presumption of innocence. President Coolidge would be compelled to veto the bill, in order to prevent an attempt by the law-making power to break down a safeguard that surrounds every American citizen.

Capt. Burlingame may be guilty of crime and of conduct prejudicial to the good name of the Police Department. But until he is proved guilty, neither Congress nor the District government has any right to punish him, by withholding his salary or otherwise. It is strange, or would have been strange in the days when the Senate commanded greater public respect, to call attention to the sixth amendment to the Constitution:

> In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury * * * and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

TRAFFIC SPEED AND SAFETY.

Automobile traffic is becoming continually faster. Not many years ago 20 miles per hour was considered "speeding" and the fast driver was universally considered a menace on the road. Today many States allow motor cars to run as fast as 40 miles per hour on unobstructed stretches of highway, and under favorable conditions even 50 miles per hour may be considered safe speed. A new criterion is coming to be accepted as the basis of traffic movement, and officials are learning that there is no definite rate of speed at which all motor vehicles may safely travel.

Chicago is building a highway from the border of Indiana into the heart of the city on which cars may drive at any desired speed without interference from crossroad traffic. Pennsylvania and other States have recently raised their speed limits. The most recently developed plan to solve the speed problem has been devised in Westchester County, N. Y., where traffic organizations have approved a sliding scale of speed, ranging from 10 miles per hour in front of schools to 35 to 40 miles in the open. The action was taken on report of the sheriff that "speed is the least cause of our accidents." The chief sources of danger, he said, are pokey drivers, those who wobble across the entire street, and those who attempt to drive while intoxicated.

A slow driver was recently arrested in New York on a charge of obstructing traffic. In congested districts the highway creeper may be much more of a nuisance than the person who exceeds the speed law, driving carefully and efficiently. Some machines may be driven 40 miles per hour with a greater degree of safety than others can be driven at half that rate. The test of safety is not in the speed but in the efficiency of the machine and the skill of the driver. As driving ability becomes more universal, speed laws will likely be supplemented or supplanted by less arbitrary regulations requiring the motorist to keep within the bounds of safety at all speeds.

Cleveland has the reputation of moving its traffic faster than any other city in the United States and yet its death rate from automobile accidents is lower than that of many other American cities. Traffic moves with amazing speed in Paris, and the fatality rate is only a fraction of what it is in our large cities. In Washington traffic is sluggish because of the low speed limit and the high percentage of amateur drivers. Motorists can not lawfully travel faster than 22 miles per hour in Washington, even on the broad boulevards and arterial highways. In spite of the fact that Washington has more street space than any other city in America, the traffic becomes congested at busy periods, resulting in serious delays. With so many inexperienced drivers, it would no doubt be unwise to raise the speed limit at present, but it is not too early to start tightening up the regulations against inexperienced and careless drivers who make more expeditious movement of traffic impossible.

EDISON'S BIRTHDAY.

"Few men in the history of the world," said Secretary Mellon in an address delivered last October, "have effected profound changes not only in the lives of their contemporaries, but of all succeeding generations. Thomas A. Edison is one of this small but illustrious company. In the space of a single lifetime he has changed the conditions under which men live; and, more than any one else now living, has helped to bring about a new social order, based upon the achievements of modern science."

Today is the eighty-second anniversary of the birth of Thomas A. Edison. The entire world sends its felicitations. The career of Edison is remarkable in a country of remarkable careers. He stands alone in the field of applied science. The incandescent lamp was his creation exclusively. He played an important part in making practicable the telephone. The phonograph, the stock ticker, the mimeograph, the motion picture camera, the alkaline storage battery, and numerous other devices are the products in whole or in essential parts of his genius. Each of them exerts a profound effect upon civilization. Each has contributed materially to the economic and social development of the Nation and the world.

"Tom" Edison, at 82, still labors upon his inventions and discoveries with the enthusiasm of youth. No one doubts that he will produce other marvelous devices. The world today not only sends its congratulations, but it adds a fervent and perhaps selfish wish, for many, many happy returns of this anniversary.

NAVIES NOT OBSOLETE.

Lieut. Comdr. J. M. Kenworthy, M. P., and George Young, Englishmen, have published a book entitled "Freedom of the Seas." In it they discuss naval warfare and types of ships, and come to the conclusion that navies have already been rendered obsolete by aircraft. The cruiser, they say, is a tactical weapon that is fast losing, or has lost, its military importance; and the battleship, in their opinion, has become only a costly white elephant. The next war, they conclude, will be won by air bombardment and blockade, with sea power and surface ships counting scarcely at all.

There is a good deal of talk going around regarding the value of this ship or that weapon in the "next war." Some of it is the result of misinformation; some of it is based on fact. In attempting to forecast the future, it is not difficult to see that which one wishes to see. Navies can only hope to keep pace with the present, attempting as best they can to make provision for the future.

The only actual test of naval weapons lies in their performance in maneuvers. The United States Navy, operating off Panama, is at the present moment engaged in such a test. Although the maneuvers are not yet completed, Admiral Wiley made a statement to the press the other day that is of interest in this connection. The statement is not official, nor does it pretend to give a summary of the knowledge gained during the war game. The maneuvers have brought out, in Admiral Wiley's opinion, the following valuable points:

(1) They have accentuated the fact that cruisers that can keep the sea and make speed under all weather conditions are vitally necessary to the successful conduct of any naval campaign.

(2) They have proved that the necessity of various types of surface and subsurface craft has not been lessened and that the battleship remains the backbone of the fleet.

(3) They have proved that aviation has introduced an element into military and naval operations whose value can not be ignored.

(4) They have proved that aviation has added a very valuable component to the fleet and that its development in the United States fleet is progressing satisfactorily.

In other words, despite Commander Kenworthy's assertion, naval safety is based upon well-rounded development of all types of craft and weapons. There may be a day when naval vessels will be as obsolete as the pikestaff, but that day has not yet arrived.

A STUDY OF THE TRUST LAW.

Attacks upon the Sherman antitrust law have become increasingly common. American radio and cable interests, for example, point to the recent amalgamation of British communications interests into a single company operating wire, radio and cable services, in support of the claim that if American communications interests are to meet the threat of competition they, too, must be permitted to merge. Under the antitrust laws such mergers are unlawful, and it is likely that Congress sooner or later will be asked to grant such interests exemption from the law.

The Sherman law was passed in 1890 because of general fear of the great industrial trusts that were springing up throughout the Nation. Necessarily the language of the law was broad, requiring judicial interpretation in order that business and industry might ascertain how far the law made practices unlawful that never before had been legally challenged. Despite numerous interpretations and decisions, however, the statute never has been made thoroughly clear. The need exists today for a study of antitrust legislation in connection with its intrinsic soundness and economic necessity.

The National Civic Federation has formed a commission on industrial inquiry to study, among other matters, antitrust legislation. Professional men, industrialists, representatives of labor and consumers are numbered in its representative personnel. Of the antitrust study, Matthew Woll, chairman of the committee on plan and scope, says:

> The purpose of the investigation is to study economic factors and policies upon which wide differences of opinion exist, to ascertain if an impartial presentation of facts will disclose basic principles acceptable to the three great groups representing American industrial life. It is believed to be difficult for any one group to see all factors which must be considered in reaching conclusions; but it is believed to be equally true that policies must be based upon deliberate consideration of facts representing the points of view of all concerned. We are living in an age characterized by associated human endeavor; and if there is to be uniform opportunity for progress, plans for associated undertakings must consider the welfare of all groups affected.

His statement outlines an excellent foundation upon which such a study can be built. With the letter in which it is contained, which was mailed to 25,000 lawyers, bankers, industrialists, manufacturers and officials of labor and agricultural organizations, there is inclosed a statement of the results of the operation of the antitrust laws as well as a questionnaire upon which it is hoped to obtain a compendium of information and suggestions regarding "the nature and form of the proper regulation of industrial organizations by the Government."

The obvious advantages which have accrued to all classes from the existence of many organizations formed since the World War have allayed the fears of "big business" prevalent during the last decade of the nineteenth century, and have developed an entirely new public attitude toward such combinations. In addition, the chronic distress of the coal industry, the long-continued depression in the textile industry, the waste of irreplaceable natural resources in the petroleum industry, the disorder among the smaller competing units in other industries, and the uncertain status of organizations of labor are unmistakable signs of the need for a reconsideration of the whole problem of large-scale cooperative organization.

The National Civic Federation has launched a worthy enterprise. It is to be hoped that tangible results will be obtained from the survey of its commission on industrial inquiry.

A FAMOUS TENNIS COURT.

More than fifty years ago Julian Marshall inserted in his "Annals of Tennis" a single sentence forming part of a description of King Henry VIII given by Sebastian Giustiniani in a book in which he dealt with the four years he had spent as ambassador from the Venetian republic at the English court. Marshall extracted enough for his purpose, which was to show the fondness of Henry for the game of tennis; but the passage, as Giustiniani wrote it, is interesting enough to be quoted, in translation, at greater length:

> His majesty is 29 years old and extremely handsome; nature could not have done more for him; he is much handsomer than any other sovereign in Christendom; a great deal handsomer than the King of France; very fair, and his whole frame admirably proportioned. On hearing that Francis I wore a beard, he allowed his to grow, and, as it is reddish, he has now got a beard which looks like gold. He is extremely fond of tennis, at which game it is the prettiest thing in the world to see him play, his fair skin glowing through a shirt of the finest texture.

That last sentence, which is the one used by Marshall, has been generally taken to represent the Tudor monarch playing at Hampton court; but the dates make that impossible, for Giustiniani is referring to the year 1519, and the tennis court at Hampton Palace was not built by Henry until 1529. The Venetian Ambassador must have seen the king in action at the earlier date at either of the royal palaces of Richmond or Greenwich, each of which then possessed a tennis court.

The quarter-centenary of the establishment of the Hampton tennis court is therefore being celebrated this year. Restored by Wren and largely rebuilt under William III, this tennis court has continued to be a playground for royalty and for distinguished subjects of the British crown to the present day. It is recorded of Charles I that he used to rise at 6 o'clock in the morning to play tennis there, and Pepys tells us that Charles II was a fine player, although, as the diarist is careful to add, he did not merit the "beastly flattery" with which the sycophants of his court greeted some of his more telling strokes. "The merry monarch," in fact, liked the Tudor tennis court so well that, when he caused another to be built at Whitehall, he took care to have it made an exact replica of the earlier one. Prince Albert also played at Hampton, as did Edward VII; and the list of the present members of the club is headed by the name of George V.

Many men famous in the world of literature and art or of politics have played, and still play, tennis at Hampton. Shakespeare, in "Henry V," uses the technical terms of the game so glibly—"rackets," "hazards," "chases," "a set"—that it is supposed by some that he was himself an expert player. Be that as it may, there is no evidence that he ever played at Hampton.

The game spoken of here is, of course, not the modern one of lawn tennis, which is sometimes—undeservedly, indeed—looked down upon by the votaries of the older sport. Tennis proper is played with racket and balls in a walled court and against the wall. Success in it calls for great skill and stamina. This is the game of which a Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, wrote, in 1584, that it "exercises all parts of the body alike and greatly delighteth the minde, making it lusty and cheerfull, all which commodities may be found in none other kind of exercise."

Ford freight planes flew 3,198 hours in 1928—about the same length of time it takes to get by automobile from the White House to the Bureau of Standards at 5 o'clock any afternoon.

President-elect Hoover has become a Boy Scout. Let's hope he doesn't try to become a cowboy!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

What Is True Valuation?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The accepted basis of valuation for public utilities and other corporations seems to be reproduction cost.

I gather from the current news that when it comes to selling the public property there must be an entirely different basis of valuation.

The Shipping Board proposes to sell the public steamships for $16,000,000. The replacement cost of these vessels has been estimated at $110,000,000.

Will you please explain to farepayers and taxpayers why there should be one basis of valuation for rates, which the public has to pay, and another basis of valuation for the sale of the public's property?

WILLIS J. RUTLEDGE.

Sell Off Useless Ships.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial today, "American Shipbuilding Declines," you say that "construction of merchant vessels in this country shows a serious decline * * * more hips are needed * * * needs of the Nation is a greater merchant fleet."

If a nation's merchant fleet consists of many merchant vessels, this country has such a "merchant fleet," but the trouble with this "merchant fleet" is that hundreds of these vessels are not operating.

The efforts of the Shipping Board to salvage the war-built cargo ships is very commendable, but the ships that are not being operated should be disposed of either for scrap or for operation under the American flag and the loss written off. All these ships were built as a war measure, and after ten years of effort, the unsold ships should be taken off the market by scrapping, if necessary.

If all inactive ships owned by the Shipping Board were at once sold (at the rate they are now being sold, it will probably take fifteen years to sell them) the shipbuilding industry would be stabilized. It is questionable if the cost of taking care of the inactive ships, including the overhead, is equal to the amount taken in through sales, and if this is so, the holding of these ships is not profitable to the Government.

MERCHANT MARINE.

Compulsory Automobile Insurance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Agitation for compulsory automobile insurance in New York State has reached the stage of action in the present legislature. Under orders of the Republican majority, a bill is being drafted which will provide for State insurance, each driver automatically to be insured for $2,500 when he takes out his automobile license. Under the plan $3 of each license plate fee would be placed in a fund from which claims for damages would be paid. "The bill," says its author, "is not designed to take care of drivers with a sense of responsibility, but its purpose is to make the 'tin-can drivers' responsible financially."

The bill unquestionably would accomplish this end, but it would do it at the expense of the responsible motorist. A rather large percentage of motorists in all probability are financially irresponsible, but they are not the majority, and it is not equitable to tax the majority for their insurance.

An alternative suggestion, which apparently the legislature has turned down, was that any driver involved in an accident should be required to post a bond, or give proof that he had taken out liability insurance, before his drivers' license would be restored. There is a sensible suggestion. Under it responsible drivers could carry insurance or not, as they saw fit, whereas those who by their actions had proved that they were a menace on the highway would be made to give proof of financial responsibility.

The Lover Is Afraid He Can't Win Her

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TWO college boys, bored by the easy routine of a soft existence, began to rob drug stores at night.

One victim offered resistance and was shot.

Now the boys must pay the piper.

Critics blame youth for its follies, or blame the older generation for its example of lawlessness, but the chief fault lies at the door of prosperity.

Where life is soft, morals are loose.

Youth runs wild through no fault of its own, but because its energy requires an outlet and all outlets have been blocked by prosperity.

We may moralize as we please, but the hard fact remains: Youth pampered in idleness will go to the devil.

Many advertisers in the December magazines offered their wares with the shrewd line: "Here is something unusual for the girl—or the boy—who 'has everything.'"

In that phrase is revealed the cause of our trouble; the youngsters have everything.

Almost before they reach their teens they are surfeited with life. They have had so much and seen so much and done so much that appetite has deserted them.

They have exhausted their capacity for thrills.

It isn't the fault of the youngsters.

Young or old, we take all we can get.

But the child with too many toys loses the capacity to appreciate any of them; where wonders are abundant, nothing seems wonderful.

Because we were poor and now are rich, we give our children the things we once longed for in vain, and by giving too abundantly we rob them of the zest of life.

We doom them to boredom, and to the follies and excesses inspired by boredom, as certainly as night follows day.

Every folly of youth can be traced back to the greater folly of a too-fond parent, or the environment of loose morality resulting from easy prosperity.

We pay a great price for our follies, but we could easily avoid it.

Knowing that an artificial civilization violates the wise ways of nature, we take voluntary exercises, buy sun lamps, take sweat baths, eat bran.

Where there is abundance, there must be restraint, denial, rationing.

Where life is soft, there must be artificial hardships.

Give the boy all he wants and he will search the world for something he can't have.

The only way to save youth is to starve it.

(Copyright, 1929.)

PRESS COMMENT.

He Finds It.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The man who is looking for trouble is never in need of an oculist.

Tut, Tut.

Hopkinsville New Era: President Coolidge increased the tariff duty on peanuts. The elephant must be fed.

And Coonskin Coats.

Dallas Morning News: The only limit to the progress of education in this country is the supply of football stadiums.

Consolation.

Atlanta Constitution: Things are not as bad as they seem. While only 169 were killed by gun and bomb in Chicago last year, 1,600 were killed by automobiles.

And Always Will.

Gloversville Leader-Republican: Before talking pictures people used to wonder what the actors in the film dramas were saying—and in certain cases still do.

Some Improvement.

Topeka Daily Capital: New York's police commissioner is trying to establish one-way walking in parts of the city, which at least is an improvement for the pedestrian over no-way walking.

Surprising.

Houston Post-Dispatch: The surprise is not that a Montana woman had her legs frozen, but that so many Northern legs escape being frozen. There's no reason why they shouldn't all freeze, as far as we can see.

Maybe.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The latest prophet—a Kansas man this time—says that the world will positively come to an end in 1932. Maybe he has a Democratic victory figured out for that year.

Maybe It Did.

Louisville Times: Democrats, according to the Ohio State Journal, should consider the popular vote their candidate received, and not think so much about the electoral vote. To be sure, if consolation's what the party wants, but maybe it wanted the Presidency.

Don't Forget the Mileage.

Indianapolis News: An early special session of Congress is now urged; and, in fact, there is no reason why the interval between the end of the regular session and the beginning of the special should be more than enough to justify the members in collecting their mileage.

Would Have Been Awful.

Boston Transcript: Meals in New York City's penal institutions last year did not displease a single prisoner, says Richard C. Patterson, Jr., commissioner of correction. Congratulations! It would have been a sad state of affairs had there been a single prisoner who did not like the food.

Logical.

Philadelphia Inquirer: A New York court has ruled that an engagement ring doesn't belong to the girl until after she is married. Well, that's logical; we have known cases where it didn't belong to the man, either.

What to Do?

Ohio State Journal: If you have any firm moral convictions at all, they say you're narrow-minded on the subject, and that's another evidence that virtue simply has to be its own reward.

Looks Like It.

Philadelphia Record: An expert has produced an electric light so small that it is invisible to the naked eye. Such a device is being used, we suspect, by some of the scientists who have undertaken to illuminate the Einstein theory.

After a protracted run on Broadway—just how long, you can usually tell by the costumes—and a session on the road, "Manhattan Mary" put in its appearance at Poli's last evening. So far as musical comedies go, "Manhattan Mary" is just another musical comedy; but it has Ed Wynn, weaving in and out of the picture—and that, to the Ed Wynn fandom, stamps this as a piece de resistance.

They call him the perfect fool, and he is, but such delightful tomfoolery, and such whimsical nonsense that even the serious-minded can forgive him for being so downwright nutty; his stock in trade. If a staid old world might borrow the notebook of Ed Wynn all would be well with diplomacy and the League of Nations functioning. Some one in the State Department should speak to Ed Wynn about this.

As it happens, "Manhattan Mary" has the semblance of a plot, and a lot of good snappy music. The story has to do with a little girl from down the village way, south of Eleventh street, whose mother runs a ham-and-eggery. It is there that Crickets, Mr. Ed Wynn, waits and waits. He is the waiter.

Now, a waiter, as a rule, has to deal with a lot of strange customers. Crickets "serves 'em off the arm" to a bunch of boy bandits who travel under the banner, the Hudson Dusters. Tough as they are, they all flee before the advent of "Two Gun" Terry. Only Crickets, the waiter, remains—scared to run. "Two Gun" Terry announces the fact that he is so hungry he could eat a horse. The obliging waiter comes in from the pantry leading a stallion, and asks: "Would you rather have mustard or catsup, sir?" Outgoing, after that, Crickets sends in the chef, and the swinging door between the kitchen and dining room hits "Two Gun" Terry a blow in the jaw that fells him. When the Hudson Dusters return to the restaurant, there stands Crickets in triumph over the prostrate form of a bad man—and the waiter, forthwith, is elected leader of the gang. From then on Mr. Ed Wynn has a merry time of it for himself, and for all who follow his drolleries.

It would be unfair to several others in the cast to state that Mr. Wynn is the whole show. He ought to be, but he is not. He is only two-thirds of the show.

In the title role, Doree Leslie proves a dainty dancer who is supposed, in character, to have stepped from the ranks of the chorus into the leading role of Mr. George White's "Scandals," making an overnight hit. Then, there is a young singer, of pleasing voice and personality, George Goff, who is Mary's sweetheart, and a minor comedian, George Mayo, all of whom, with a bevy of chorines, help fill out those open spaces so noticeably wide when Mr. Wynn is not on the stage.

"Manhattan Mary" gets away to a good start, with an opening scene that picks up Broadway bodily and places it on the stage—lights and all. It rolls along in goodly fashion, although some of the girls last night seemed a little tired after a long road trip—from wherever they came to Washington.

THE STRAND

In formal manner the Strand Theater's program this week advances the information that "Joe Catalano submits Broadway's favorite entertainer, Miss Mae Dix, and her 'Flapper Follies,' with Jack Montague." In less formal manner, all folks "submitted" by Mr. Catalano yesterday afternoon went about their frolics and fusses with a zip fit to jam glee into the most melancholy person in all Washington town.

Mr. Catalano is to be commended. He has the names of capable and earnest burlesquers on his pay-roll. Miss Dix zestfully shows her well-rounded scope of abilities. They range from a show-stopping bit of character work to an intimate telling of yarns, with numerous way-stations between.

This Montague chap does his clowning in a style that would make even the longest-faced Jersey cow break her phiz into a wide-open grin.

J. Ragland, known more familiarly as "Rags," has a pair of legs that show the result of a fine training as he careens, veers, jigs and flops his way into a just claim to the title of "a dancing fool."

Tom Fairclough turns loose a fine voice. In this regard he is far from being alone, for Mr. Catalano certainly had an ear for the voices, as well, as an eye for the dances when he hired his folks. By the way, two lassies step out from the "chorus line" to harmonize in a bigger and better way. Only one of the pair, Anna Rose, is programmed.

Ruth Hamilton, May Malben and several other bundles of ability also contribute to a pleasant state of affairs.

BELASCO

"Queen High," the current attraction at the Belasco, is full of good, genuine comedy, catchy songs, pretty girls and good acting.

Overlooking long waits between acts and a few minor lapses, the performance last night was about the best the Savoy Musical Comedy company has produced here.

A new comedian joins the cast—John Cherry—and his work places him in the spotlight. Miss Thelma Parker is back again, but does not put in an appearance until the second act. She is again well cast.

The lead honors are shared by Miss Helen Ault, Robert Capron, Mr. Cherry and Frank Gallagher, with splendid support by Miss Renee Hamilton and Miss Betir Franklyn.

Mr. Capron has splendid opportunity to bring out the humilitation supposed to be his when he must serve as butler to his partner, played by Mr. Cherry, whose comedy work stands out. Miss Hamilton, as the real "up-to-date" girl, does creditable work. Miss Beth Franklyn, though weak at times, shines in her crying scene when she upbraids her husband for his supposed unfaithfulness. The musical is built on an old comedy.

The song hits of the show are many, but among the outstanding ones are "Everything Will Happen For the Best," "Who? You?" "Cross Your Heart," "Who'll Mend a Broken Heart?" and "Springtime."

The costuming of the show, as well as the settings, need especial mention, as also the improved unison with which the chorus works. The dances this week are noticeably better than those in some of the previous performances.

Miss Randolph and Miss Huntington, as the garter girls in the first act, with their song of "It Pays to Advertise," a song by Mr. Gallagher and the girls, and the eccentric dance of Miss Parker and Mr. Capron in the third act, are the specialties.

NATIONAL

A warmer and far more colorful picture of Britain's great capital than dwelt there before surely was implanted in the minds of Washingtonians by E. M. Newman yesterday in the fourth of his "Romantic Ramblings" travel-talks at the National.

Mr. Newman's camera caught London from the top of a motorbus, from airplanes, from a perch on "Big Ben's" tower, and from scores of odd vantage points. It portrayed the huge city by "still" and motion pictures alternately. It glimpsed it from medieval landmark to today's coster mart, even throwing in motion views of the royal family a-calling, and of Big Bill Tilden and Helen Wills winning trophies from our "British cousins."

Indeed, the wealth of subject matter treated was almost confusing. It was when the lecturer retired to an unusual vantage nook and snapped one of his quainter subjects in repose, with marvelously artistic color photography, that he scored most heavily with his audience. Such glimpses were Trafalgar Square, softened by the London fog, yet gleaming with raindrops; the Houses of Parliament framed in a foreground of greenery; Westminster Abbey and the Thames. These drew the applause of the large house.

As special treats, Mr. Newman brought views of the interior of the House of Lords and House of Commons, and of Westminster Abbey, which he succeeded in photographing only last summer after twenty years of effort. Here were, perhaps, the high points of interest, and worthily so.

There were miles of jammed streets in old London, with adequate interest to make them worth while, but notably this set of pictures and its talk placed a glow and a color of romance on the old city which perhaps gives it its real due and refreshingly revises the rather drab stock conception of the City of the Great Fog.

PICKFORD VISITORS SEE MOUNTAIN PASS

Coquette Special, With Post Contest Victor, Runs By Famous Peak.

CATHEDRAL RITES HEARD

Special to The Washington Post.

Dodge City, Kans., Feb. 10.—Sunday on the Coquette Special, which is taking Janet Coon, Washington Post-Mary Pickford contest winner and 24 other American girls to Hollywood to be guests of Mary Pickford culminated at midnight with a moonlight view of the Raccoon Pass, New Mexico, 7,680 feet high.

Earlier in the day the party had listened to the Peoples Evensong at Washington Cathedral, broadcast from the National Capital and picked up by a radio receiving set on the moving train. The music of the cathedral service, which was picked up outside of Newton, Kans., was fairly distinct, but the voices were not clearly heard.

At Kansas City yesterday morning Miss Coon and Miss Elisabeth E. Poe, of The Post staff, who is accompanying her, went on a short sightseeing trip around the Western metropolis. The weather was 14 degrees below zero, but so crisp and clear that it was invigorating.

At Kansas City the party was augmented by contest winners from Southwestern cities, whose newspapers had sent them on this gala journey to Hollywood.

News was received yesterday that a welcome will be broadcast Monday night from Los Angeles from the press of that city to the newspaper women approaching the city on the Coquette Special. Stirred by the report that Mary Pickford was aboard the Coquette Special in person, huge crowds gathered at several of the stations where the train stopped, to get a glimpse of her. Much amusement was afforded when the crowds mistook certain of the travelers for her.

Janet Coon, The Washington Post girl, is making herself very popular by her whistling at the informal stunt parties held every night in the observation cars. She has rehearsed a number of special whistling selections to whistle for Mary Pickford after her arrival at Hollywood.

Today the train will stop for several hours at Albuquerque to allow the visitors to inspect the Indian museum.

LITTLE NEW UNDER SUN.

NEARLY 200 years intervened between a letter on sleep written by Benjamin Franklin and an article on sleep written by Dr. George Dorsey. Read them and see how little there is new under the sun. The brand-new in Prof. Dorsey's article relates to the motor and skin sensation and sleep. This he bases on very up-to-the-minute work by Johnson, done at the Mellon Institute.

Prof. George Dorsey: "Sleep is a suspension of all sensory motor activities whereby during waking hours we sense our environment and keep in touch with it. It turns hot during the night. The blankets weigh me down. I kick the blankets off. I awake and I may try to find a cooler room or an electric fan."

He quotes Johnson as saying: "We move about in bed on an average of once in fourteen minutes. We move when our muscles become tired of one position or some sensation of discomfort sent in by muscles or skin nerves registers on the switchboard."

Benjamin Franklin: "Fidgetiness during sleep is occasioned by uneasiness of the skin. One important cause of insomnia or bad dreams is having the air around the body too hot. One preventive is to use lighter bed clothing. When I am sleeping poorly, or have bad dreams, I get up and beat the pillow. I shake the bed clothing. If I can not rest well I leave the bed and get into a fresh and cool bed. Another method to be used is to get out of bed and throw the bed clothes back for a few seconds. This should be done twenty times."

In the main this relates to what Dorsey and Johnson term the sensory activities, and particularly those of the skin.

Now, let's put Franklin back on the stand and have him testify as to motor activities. On this point, Franklin advises that a person maintain an easy position in bed, that he get up and beat his pillow and move the bed clothing, and, sometimes, that he change to another bed.

Sensations which come from digestive organs is another point well covered by Dorsey. Again Franklin is put on the witness stand. "Indolence with full feeding occasions nightmares. Restless nights follow hearty suppers after full dinners. A full supper may not be bad if we have not dined."

UNDERDRESSED WOMEN.

J. C. H. writes: A cold appraisement of appearances seems to make plain that, within the last twenty years, our women have discarded at least 50 per cent of the protective value of their habitual wearing apparel. Will you kindly let us know whether or not such action on their part has been reflected in increase of illness? But perhaps health has been promoted by curtailment of raiment; if such is the case, how much farther, in your opinion, can similar curtailment safely be extended?

REPLY.

The attached answers the first part of your letter. It represents one man's somewhat extensive observation any way.

R. S. K. writes: "I appreciate reading your article, "Blame for Colds Is Put on Women."

"There is no doubt about the facts set forth therein and they are fully corroborated by the large percentages of absences in the various governmental departments due to colds during the winter season. The offices are usually overheated because of the fact that women insist on coming to work in their summer wear and are always cold unless the temperature in the room is somewhere in the neighborhood of 80 degrees.

"I sincerely hope you will continue to bring to the attention of your women readers, and some men, too, the fact that it is to their best interest to dress properly, and inure themselves to a lower degree of temperature while at their work.

"A gentleman from New York, who was recently a visitor to some of the governmental departments expressed surprise that the Government clerk did as good work as he did in view of the overheated conditions under which he worked. He said he almost suffocated in some of the rooms, although he was in each one for only a short time, and I fully agree with him since, as Government clerk, I have experienced the same feeling more than once."

The Children

By Edith Wharton

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by its leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affair of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hitherto, "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died.

CHAPTER V.

"MR. BOYNE—could we have a quiet talk, do you think?" Boyne, driven from the deck by the heat and glare, and the activities of the other passengers, was lying on his bed, book in hand, in a state of after-luncheon apathy. His small visitor leaned in the doorway, slender and gray-clad: Terry Wheater, with the faint pinkness on his cheek-bones, the brilliance in his long-lashed eyes, that made his honest boy's face at time so painfully beautiful.

"Why, of course, old man. Come in. You'll be better off here than on deck till it gets cooler."

Terry tossed aside his cap and dropped into the chair at Boyne's bedside. They had shared a cabin for nearly a fortnight, and reached the state of intimacy induced by such nearness when it does not result in hate; but Boyne had had very few chances to talk with the boy. Terry was always asleep when the older man turned in, and Boyne himself was up and out long before Terry, kept in bed by the viligant Miss Swope, had begun his leisurely toilet. Boyne, by now, had formed a fairly clear idea of the characteristics of the various young Wheaters, but Terry was perhaps the one with whom he had spent the least time; and the boy's rather solemn tone, and grown-up phraseology, made him lay aside his book with a touch of curiosity.

"What can I do for you, Terry?"

"Persuade them that I ought to have a tutor."

"Them"

"I mean the Wheaters—father and mother," Terry corrected himself. The children, Boyne knew, frequently referred to their parents by their surname. The habit of doing so, Miss Scope had explained, rose from the fact that, in the case of most of the playmates of their wandering life, the names "father" and "mother" had to be applied, successively or simultaneously, to so many different persons; indeed, one surprising little girl with black curls and large pearl earrings, whom they had met the year before at Biarritz, had the habit of handing to each new playmate a typed table of her parents' various marriages and her own successive adoptions. "So they all do it now; that is, speak of their different sets of parents by their names. And my children have picked up the habit from others, though in their own case, luckily, it's no longer necessary, now that their papa and mamma have come together again."

"I mean father and mother," Terry repeated. "Make them understand that I must be educated. There's no time to lose. And you could." His eyes were fixed feverishly—alas, too feverishly—on Boyne's, and his face had the air of precocious anxiety which sometimes made Judith look so uncannily mature.

"My dear chap—of course I'll do anything I can for you. But I don't believe I shall be seeing your people this time. I'm going to jump into the train the minute we get to Venice."

The boy's face fell. "You are? I'm sorry. And Judy will be awfully sold."

"That's very good of her—and of you. But you see——"

"Oh, I can see that a solid fortnight of the lot of us is a good deal for anybody," Terry acquiesced. "All the same, Judy and I did hope you'd stay in Venice for a day or two. We thought, you see, there were a good many things you could do for us."

Boyne continued to consider him thoughtfully. "I should be very glad if I could. But I'm afraid you overrate my influence. I haven't seen your parents for years. They'd hardly remember me."

"That's just it: you'd be a novelty," said Terry astutely.

"Well, if that's an inducement. * * * Anyhow, you may be sure I'll do what I can * * * if I find I can alter my plans. * * *"

"Oh, if you could! You see I've really never had anybody to speak for me. Scopy cuts no ice with them, and, of course, they think Judy's too young to know about education—specially as she's never had any herself. She can't even spell, you know. She writes stomach with a "k.' And they've let me go on like this, just with nurses and nursery-governesses (that's really all Scopy is), as if I wasn't any older than Bun, when I'm at an age when most fellows are leaving their preparatory schools." The boy's face colored with the passion of his appeal, and the flush remained in two sharp patches on his cheeks.

"Of course," he went on, "Judy says I'm not fair to them—that I don't remember what a lot they've had to spend for me on doctors and climate, and all that. And they did send me to school once, and I had to be taken away because of my beastly temperature * * * I know all that. But it was a sell, when I left school, just to come back again to Scopy and Nanny, and nobody a fellow could put a question to, or get a tip from about what other fellows are learning. Last summer, at St. Moritz, I met a boy not much older than I am who was rather delicate too, and he'd just got a new father who was a great reader, and who had helped him no end, and got a tutor for him; and he started Caesar, and was getting up his Greek verbs—with a temperature every evening too. And I said to Judy: 'Now, look at that.' And she said, yes it would be splendid for me to have a tutor. And for two weeks the other fellow's father let me work a little with him. But then we had to go away—one of our troubles," Terry interrupted himself; "is that we're so everlastingly going away. But I suppose it's always so with children—isn't it?—with all the different parents they're divided up among, and all the parents living in different places, and fighting so about when the children are to go to which, and the lawyers always changing things just as you think they're arranged * * * Of course, a chap must expect to be moving about when he's young. But Scopy says that later parents settle down." He added this on a note of interrogation, and Boyne, feeling that an answer was expected, declared with conviction: "Oh, but they do—by Jove, they do!"

BORN FOR PLEASURE.

I studied medicine and law—
My efforts were in vain;
Why I failed on the violin
Is too much to explain.

To paint and write I've always tried—
Success was never claimed;
I've surely been a sad misfit
At everything I've aimed.

A bookkeeper I'd never be
Because I know not math;
My talent's all for singing songs
When splashing in the bath.

XXII—VISUAL INSTRUCTION.

Aims and Purposes.

Visual instruction aims to vitalize the teaching of every school subject lending itself thereto by providing a great variety of valuable experiences for the pupil. It is the purpose of visualization to establish clear, lasting concepts as early in the school life as possible, to correct inaccurate ideas already formed and to arouse curiosity which leads to investigation and constructive activities. Other objectives accomplished by enriching the child's experiences are the training of his powers of observation, imagination and concentration, the development of power to interpret what he reads, sees and hears and to give him a background for understanding and meeting life's situations as they arise.

Methods of Instruction.

In the classroom teachers use such visual aids as charts, maps, graphs, diagrams, models, loose pictures, stereographs and lantern slides. In the use of all these visual aids care is taken that the material is secondary in importance to thought-getting. Only as much material is presented as can be used profitably in this way. Thus lessons do not degenerate into mere picture shows. Most visual aids used during lessons, particularly stereographs, are employed as study tools. It is ideal to bring into use whatever visual aid best serves at the moment to produce the results desired. Demonstration lessons by special teachers are given to help the regular teacher in a proper use of the wealth of available material. A central library of stereopticon slides, carefully classified and cataloged, may be drawn upon by teachers who desire such illustrative material. Film lessons are taught by special teachers in group assemblies in neighborhood theaters offered for that purpose, the essential preparation and subsequent follow-up lessons being handled by the classroom teachers. Pupil participation forms an important part of the film lesson. In the selection of films effort is constant to make close correlation with the course of study in social sciences, health education and nature study.

Time.

The time devoted to visual instruction varies with the grade and type of child. Because of the fact that visual aids are used in teaching the social sciences, reading, literature, art and general science, the time consumed by instruction is included within the time allotment of these subjects.

Results.

While the nature of visual instruction precludes an exact measurement of results, visual aids undoubtedly made for improvement in classroom instruction in the following ways: By arousing and sustaining the attention of the pupils, by quickening their interest and appreciation, by stimulating and increasing their powers of expression, by removing the abstract elements from such subjects as history, civics and geography and by providing an impetus for investigation and work along creative lines. Thus it has been the mission of visual instruction to make the child's work in the classroom more enjoyable and to contribute more realness to the subject matter presented to the child.

What Today Means to' You

FEBRUARY 11

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 11 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., from 5:45 p. m. to 6:45 p. m., and from 9:15 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 7:15 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

Psychic cross currents will endanger all enterprises today conceived with the idea of "doing the other fellow." It would be wise to remember the old saying. "Do unto your neighbor as you would that he would do unto you" and do not translate this to mean "do your neighbor, or he will do you!"

The child born today will, in early years, show great aptitude for any profession in which a voluable tongue and ready wit is desired. In scholastic years, it will shine forth as an orator in debating societies. Encourage this penchant as much as possible!

You are fussy, rather obsequious to those in authority over you, rather overbearing to those over whom you have authority. You are a hard worker, but a great deal of your activity and industry is wasted for the lack of a definite purpose or aim; you never chart your course, and know not where you will land.

Your life promises to be full of ups and downs; more, possibly, of the latter than the former. You are not without ambition, but uncertain of accomplishment, as you are too ready to agree with the last person with whom you have spoken. You are not a creature of conviction, but a self-made victim of environment and shape your views to suit the convenience of the moment.

Your disposition is an amiable one, and you do, in all sincerity, go to great lengths in avoiding the hurting of other people's feelings. Your friends are legion and though they lament the weakness of your character, they all appreciate the strength of your attachment.

Easily dominated and extremely susceptible to flattery, your conjugal relations promise to be placid and serene, especially if your mate be gifted with instincts of bossism.

Successful people born on February 11:
Daniel Boone, pioneer of Kentucky.
Melville W. Fuller, jurist.
Josiah W. Gibbs, chemist.
Alexander Herrmann, prestidigitator.
Thomas A. Edison, inventor.
Franklin W. Hooper, scientist and educator.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Concert Bill From West Is Featured

Oregon Orchestra Slated to Play Over Coast-to-Coast Hookup Through WRC; "Two Orphans" on WMAL Program.

The Portland Symphony Orchestra, of Portland, Oreg., will be the first organization of its kind to be broadcast in a nation-wide hook-up from the Pacific Coast at 10:30 o'clock tonight. This orchestra is offered during "The Empire Builders" program, which is broadcast through WRC. Willem Van Hoogstraten, well known to the Eastern radio audience through the stadium concerts broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co. last summer, will conduct the orchestra in its first coast-to-coast concert. The Portland orchestra was organized about twenty years ago and is one of the leading symphony units on the Pacific Coast.

The program includes Schubert's "Rosamunde Overture," the Strauss composition, "Artist's Life," and "March of the Sirdar," from the "Caucasian Sketches" of Ippolitoff Ivanov.

"The Empire Builders" is a new feature on the air, having been heard only three weeks or so, and is sponsored by the Great Northern Railway with the object of acquainting Southern and Eastern listeners with the Northwest.

Lucrezia Bori, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be the featured artist of the Family Party at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Miss Bori will be supported by an orchestra under direction of Eugene Goosens, English composer-director.

"The Secret of Suzanne," a one-act opera by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari, will be broadcast at 11 o'clock tonight by the National Grand Opera Company. This radio presentation will be directed by Cesare Sodero, maestro of the company, and will present Frederic Baer, tenor, in the role of Count Gil, and Rosalie Wolfe, soprano, in the role of Countess Suzanne.

Franklin Baur, tenor, regularly heard in the "Voice of Firestone" programs, will sing Dvoraks' "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Little Boy Blue" and "The Rosary." Vaughn deLeath will sing "In the Gloaming" as her contribution to the program.

Emil Velasco, one of the youngest organists in America, will be heard in recital during the Roxy broadcast at 7:30 o'clock through WRC.

Capt. Taylor Branson will conduct a concert by the United States Marine Band between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon for the WJZ network, including WRC.

"School Daze," the humorous burlesque of the trials of a Dutch school master with a class of bad boys, will be shifted temporarily from Tuesday nights, starting tonight, and will be heard from WMAL at 8 o'clock.

"Henry Burbig, humorist, will give a burlesque of Kipling's 'Boots" at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The first number after the theme song will be "My Lucky Star," to be followed by "If I Had You," "You Wouldn't Fool Me Would You" and "There's Something About a Rose."

"The Two Orphans" will be produced by Hank Simmons and his Show Boat Company at 10 o'clock tonight. This drama was first played 30 years ago, starring Kate Claxton, who portrayed the role of the blind sister. Since then it has had numerous revivals, with many prominent actors and actresses in the cast. The last moving picture version of the play was called "Orphans of the Storm," with Lillian and Dorothy Gish as the sisters.

David McWilliams Dance Orchestra will close WMAL's broadcast.

WOL will be on the air this morning for the regular periods, followed by a broadcast lasting from 6 o'clock to 7:11 o'clock, during which period the piano recital by Warner Kennedy, dinner music, Doug Porter's Orchestra and "Amos 'n' Andy" will be heard.

Colonial dance music will be the feature from 10 o'clock until midnight.

Thompkins Corners has among its citizens two Civil War veterans—old Col. Weatherbee, of the Confederate Army, and Grandpa Overbrook, who fought with the Union forces. These two will be guests of honor at the Lincoln's Birthday celebration. For the patriotic music, speeches and personal reminiscences, tune in on WJZ, WBAH or WLW, at 9:30 o'clock.

Army Band's Concert Will Help Accord

Music of Nations Visited by Hoover on His Trip to South America Will Be Broadcast Thursday With Unique Program.

An unique program to be picked up by a coast-to-coast network of Columbia stations, will originate in station WMAL, in Washington, Thursday night, when the Army Band will carry its audience to the American republics recently visited by President-elect Hoover. It will be known as a good-will program and, by way of furthering Mr. Hoover's friendly mission, Capt. William J. Stannard, leader of the band, in arranging it, has followed the course of the Hoover cruise. So the first selection will be identified with Honduras, where the Maryland anchored in the harbor of Amapala.

The band will play a march "Feliz Ano Neuvo" (Happy New Year), composed by J. V. Galcano, a native of Honduras. On the same day Mr. Hoover visited La Union in Salvador, and the second number on the evening's program will be a march, "Festival," the composer of which is Manuel E. Munoz, of Salvador.

There will follow a waltz, "Los Amores de Abraham" (The Loves of Abraham), by Jose Cruz Mona, of Nicaragua; Valse Intermezzo "Leda," by Julio Fonseca, of Costa Rica; "Bolero Lojanito" (A Little Boy From Lojan), by S. Bustamente, of Ecuador; "Cashua and Hyayno," "El Condor Pasa," by D. A. Robles, of Peru, indigenous of the Incas of Peru, a people possessing a remarkable culture long before the coming of the Spanish explorers, depicting the flight of the condor above the snow-covered peaks of the Peruvian Andes; a drum interlude, a genuine Inca rhythmical figure, leading into the "Huayno," a native dance.

The march, "San Lorenzo," by C. A. Silva, an Argentinian, then will be played, followed by another march, "Coronal Gonzalez," by Gubitosi, a Chilean, and the celebrated overture, "El Guarany," by A. Carlo Gomez, of Brazil.

The concluding number will be "Stars and Stripes Forever," by Sousa.

The United States Army Band has, with the cooperation of Franklin P. Adams, of the Pan-American Union, for the last three years been receiving steadily from the Latin-American lands band arrangements in manuscript of the leading compositions by native composers. These arrangements have been loaned to it by leaders of the military bands and, after being copied, have been returned. In this way the Army Band has acquired an unique repertoire of compositions from the other American republics.

Thirty complete programs made up of music from the New World will be played by the Army Band next spring at the Ibero-American Exposition in Seville, Spain.

What Caused This Style of Writing Is Explained by Professor.

Havana Declares War On Its Army of Cats

Havana, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Havana is looking for a pied piper to save the city from cats. Stories of marauding felines who raid homes and grocery stores have indicated serious congestion of the cat population.

The city authorities are considering measures designed to exterminate all except those of good family and unblemished reputation. The only opposition to this project has come from those who argue that cats are better than rats.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

FEBRUARY 11.

THE publisher of the first children's monthly periodical in the United States, Lydia M. Child, was born this day, 1802.

Mrs. Child's genius soon made her the foremost American novelist of her time, but when, at the height of her reputation, she espoused the cause of abolition, she was ostracized by the publishers and denounced by the press. With her husband, she edited "The Anti-slavery Standard" and "Letters From New York." She published one of the first antislavery books, "An Appeal for That Class of Americans Called Africans." She suffered severe privations while carrying on her fight to end slavery, but her only comment was:

"I never work on the winning side, because I know there will always be plenty to do that work."

Her Juvenile Miscellany, the first children's monthly magazine in this country, was published in 1826.

Other noted women born this day include Agnes C. Laut, Canadian autnor, 1871; Elizabeth B. Wetmore, American author, 1861, and Eliza Calvert Obenchain, American author and suffragist, 1856.

Irene Castle, Dancer, Protested at Marathon

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A distinguished looking pair of visitors to a public hall started to dance. They were so good, particularly the lady, that they attracted attention. Then came protests from 15 other couples.

These were marathoners and the competition was too much for their tired feet. The visitors courteously retired to the sidelines and watched. They were Frederick McLaughlin of Chicago and Mrs. McLaughlin, the former Irene Castle.

WORK ON BRIDGE

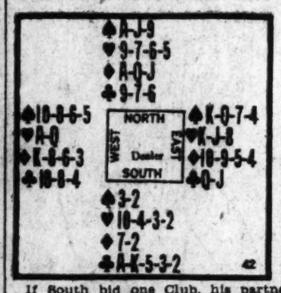
THERE are many Bridge sayings like "Always cover and honor with an honor," "Never signal with an honor," "Always take out a Dealer's No Trump," which would be fare more accurate if the advice were reversed. The Auction Bridge vocabulary contains no such words as "always" and "never:" and advice couched in those terms should be viewed with suspicion.

To be sure, an honor should be covered with another honor when covering may make up a card in the hand of the coverer or his partner, but not otherwise; and while it would be difficult to give a definite rule, it is safe to say that a player who consistently broke a rule to "always cover an honor with an honor" would be a gainer in the long run over a player who invariably observed it.

The absurdity of refusing to signal with an honor is self evident in a case like this: Holding Jack and one small or Ten and one small, and desiring the suit to be continued for ruffing purposes or otherwise, why play the small card first when obviously the honor is not going to take a trick, and the small card may induce the leader to shift the suit.

The worst precept of all is the one about taking out Dealer's uncontested No Trump. Correctly stated, it would read: Do not take out Dealer's (partner's) No Trump unless you have a constructive reason for doing so."

Another piece of misapplied advice is: "Never bid an Ace-King suit initially without a side trick." This is sound when the Ace-King suit is a four-carder, but does not apply to five-carders. A Dealer, or Second Hand after Dealer's pass, should bid a five-card Ace-King suit even when the rest of the hand is absolutely worthless. Look at the following deal.



If South bid one Club, his partner will bid one No Trump and make game (four Club, three Diamond, and two Spade tricks); but if South pass, the deal will be passed out, as Second Hand is not strong enough to bid initially, and neither Third nor Fourth Hand is strong enough to bid after a pass from partner.

235 Miles an Hour Claimed for Rocket Sled

Munich, Germany, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Max Valier, who has been experimenting with rocket cars, today attained what he claimed was an average of 235 miles an hour in testing a sled equipped with eighteen rockets on frozen Starnberger Lake.

The rockets were fired in five series at intervals of one and a half seconds.

New York, Feb. 10, 1929.

BLOUSES are back again! Not that they ever entirely disappeared, naturally—but they do seem to be in for a considerable increase in popularity. Plain blouses, fancy blouses, pleated blouses, embroidered blouses, light blouses, dark blouses, figured blouses.

One of the most interesting developments in the blouse that we have seen of late has been in those displayed by Martial et Armand. These are in a great variety of colors and styles, all made of the same sort of heavy silk used for men's ties, which drapes most attractively.

• • • •

Another novelty of the Martial et Armand blouses is that many of them tuck inside the skirt—a fashion we have not seen in many years, but a rather logical outgrowth of the tendency toward a higher waistline.

For the girl who works and yet wants to preserve the utmost smartness in her appearance, the vogue of the blouse will be a welcome development, for it gives her the practicality and comfort of the blouse plus the new chic the Haute Couture is putting into it.

We made a bag—oh yes, we made a bag, which doesn't crush, which doesn't lose its shape, which didn't wear out in two years—and which was ex-treemely chic and tailored and well done!

Yes, and we waited two whole years to tell you how to make it—just to prove to you that we do investigate things thoroughly. At last—you may send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make this wonderful bag—and several others, too. Hurry!

Wee Mamzelle.

Of course, we start with Petite Adorable herself in playing the "type-'n'-color game we have been teaching her and her little friends.

She is a "brunette" because she has dark hair and eyes. As wee brunettes grow older, they separate into more definite brunette types, but not now. Brunette is enough now, and all little brunettes wear the colors in the first half of the rainbow best. Reds, not too vivid, usually; all pink and rose shades; oranges, usually tinged with red; yellows, white, silver or gold, and one certain vivid green-blue.

They can wear the other colors, of course, but why bother when these mentioned are so becoming and appropriate for brunettes?

Animals of Long Ago

VI. THE TYRANT LIZARD

DURING visits to the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh, two sights have caught my eye more than any others.

Skull of "Tyrant Lizard" in American Museum, New York.

One sight was a pair of skeletons of dinosaurs which were cousins of the Thunder Lizard. I wish you could see that sight—it is hard to believe your eyes when you behold the bones which form the long necks and tails. The animals were about 70 feet long, and weighed 25 or 30 tons apiece as well as can be estimated.

The other sight was the skull of a dinosaur known as the Tyrant Lizard. That skull is about 4 feet from end to end. The teeth are from 3 to six inches long, thick at the base, but coming to sharp points at the ends.

Other bones show that the Tyrant Lizard had long hind legs, and very short front limbs. Judging from the way the bones fit together, this fellow must have run around on his hind legs, using his front paws only for holding or clawing his enemies.

Scientists declare that the Tyrant Lizard was the most terrible engine of destruction ever made by nature. He held his head 18 or 20 feet above the ground, and must have been a swift runner.

The teeth of the Tyrant Lizard are well fitted for seizing and tearing flesh. For that reason, and from the way the jaw is hinged we can safely say that he was in the habit of eating animal flesh.

The long dinosaurs, on the other hand, have left broad, flat teeth fitted for chewing leaves, twigs and herbs, but not for tearing flesh. The long dinosaurs were larger than the Tyrant Lizard, but they could have been no match against him in a fight.

Perhaps the Tyrant Lizard had trouble in battles with the dinosaur we call "Three Horns." Three Horns may have let his enemy rush the fight in the hope that the horns would halt the attack. Yet Three Horns was rather clumsy, to judge from the way he was built, and the Tyrant Lizard probably rushed him from the sides or rear, avoiding the long, sharp prongs.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Eternal.

It seems more probable that death is a new birth
Than that it is the end of soul and clay.
Nothing, they say, can wholly pass away;
Things change, but are not lost unto the earth.
If things do this, is man of lesser worth?
Is he to be denied another day,
Another realm in which to dream and play
With understanding gained from grief and mirth?

It can not be that man is just a brute
Gifted above all other brutes to rise.
If life continues from the ripened fruit
Man's soul may ripen, but it never dies.
Surely the spirit, filtered through the clay,

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Marriage Vows."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a young mother 26 years old, with two children. My husband is 33. We have been lovers from childhood, and happily married for nine years.

One year ago we bought a home, and, hoping to pay for it that much sooner, I took into my house a young woman to board at $30 a month. This lightened our burdens to such extent that we became as gay as two children. We live quite a way out, and in bad weather my husband started taking the girl to her school. She taught, and her school was on his way.

Well, I am told now that I ought to have expected it. But I did not, and not until my husband told me while she was home on vacation at Christmas time could I believe such a thing of either of them. As soon as she went home he told me, so that I would not have her here again.

He has confessed everything, and says he will never see her again and that he loves only me. It has been going on for two months, yet he asks me to forgive him, and let everything be as it was. How can I do this? She has returned to school, but is living at the hotel instead of here. I have not seen her, and need not. But I see him, and that is enough. I feel such repugnance for him now, I know it will be no time until he is entirely hers, which has not happened as yet.

Now, my babies are so young, and we were so happy, it seems almost impossible that our life together should be ended like this. But what can I do? I can not trust him again. I feel I can never stand a caress from him. What is the answer?

HEARTBROKEN.

Dear girl, I have often wondered just what people understand by the well-known words "love and cherish" in "sickness and health." I have sat in courtrooms, where amidst great ado a husband triumphantly proved that a moment had come when his wife needed "cherishing" if ever she did, a moment when for some reason she ceased to be mistress of herself and her destiny and became the tool of folly. And the man who had worn a white flower in his coat as he vowed to love and to cherish was duly absolved of all responsibility where she was concerned. Now that is not my idea of marriage. Far be it from me to champion loose living, lax morals, or depravity of any sort. But humans are as the Creator made them. And humans make ghastly mistakes.

You undertook the care of a man and his children. He has met with a great misfortune. True, he has committed a "sin," whatever that may be. But he has begged forgiveness, asked for mercy, and if the vows you hold him to so rigidly mean so much to you, then you, too, made some vows and should abide by them.

Your husband is not a libertine because he fell like the just man in the book. He is just a human being, ashamed at his fall and asking for help.

You, not I, are his wife. But in your place I feel sure that our life together would, indeed, not be ended. For me there is no "sickness" like the sick disgust of remorse and futile regret.

Do as you please, but if vows mean anything, remember yours, to love and to cherish in sickness and in health, until death, not until the first misfortune.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Historians With Axes.

WHAT made George Washington famous? That's easy. He cut down a cherry tree and then said, "Father, I can not tell a lie; I did it with my little hatchet."

At least that's the answer from almost any youngster under ten. If we draw him out a bit we learn that Washington was also a great general and became the first President of the United States. Nevertheless, it's the cherry tree episode that remains uppermost.

Then along came these cruel, disillusioning historians of the present day and tell us that little George did not cut down the tree. Thus another idol is shattered.

Either scientific research or clever writing is taking the Santa Claus out of almost everything in history which children hold dear. Nowadays every showcase holding a historical personage is having the glass kicked in. We are told Franklin didn't discover electricity by flying a kite, that Columbus didn't crack the egg to make it stand up, that Priscilla never said, "Speak for yourself John," and—horrors, think of this one—that Barbara Frietchie didn't own a flag, that she probably never saw Stonewall Jackson and certainly that she never performed the famous "Shoot-if-you-must" stunt.

We are only waiting now for smart Aleck writing revealing Famous Days of Infamous People. Then publicity-seeking historians and biographers will be as happy as the hard-boiled readers for whom they write.

But how about the children? As yet they are not 6-minute eggs. It's the little incidents connected with famous characters which interest the youngsters. The incidents stick in their minds and very possibly form the basis for serious study.

If we are going to destroy the cherry tree and the hatchet, let's not substitute the story of the size of George's wine cellar. The fact that Franklin didn't fly the kite is not necessarily improved by giving detailed accounts of Franklin's love affairs. Sidelights on Queen Elizabeth's amours and intrigues do not particularly appeal to a child's mind. Remember children are not gossipy and are quite clean-minded. No public service is rendered by those who clamor for popular attention under the pretense of seeking Truth wherever she may abide.

Naturally, we don't want our histories cluttered up with untruths, picturesque though they may be, but when they happen to be just the things that interest the youngster and set wholesome standards for him, it seems a poor policy to take them away and not substitute something which is romantic instead of amorous, brave instead of cowardly and sweet instead of sour.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
A Great Discussion Starts.

Yes, I, too, have read "Undergraduates." But these reports on sex, study, faculty and foolishness of college life are nothing as compared with the "doings" of boys and girls of high school age in more than half of the communities of what was once our fair land. I applaud what you said. Why don't you attack this situation?

CONSTANT READER.

Answer—I never peeped one little idea of mine in last week's article on "Undergraduates." I simply commented on the book without expressing an opinion of modern college youth. I think youth is pretty fine and I've obtained my ideas by meeting and teaching thousands of them.

Now you are attacking high school boys and girls. All right, let's have a battle. I suggest that you—and others who can state facts which show the true state of affairs in high schools—write your views and supporting facts to this column. The column is also open to youth to present its side. I only ask that contributors to this discussion limit themselves to: (1) The social relationship between boys and girls; (2) moral and religious practices and beliefs; (3) fraternity and sorority experiences; (4) honesty in money affairs, and (5) classroom honor.

Tightwad.

My sweetheart is a tightwad. How can I get him to open up?

TWENTY.

Answer—Now, don't start any gold-digging game. He may be saving money to provide for your support when you are married.

I know a young school teacher who had a steady. One Sunday afternoon he took her for a walk. The extent of the entertainment consisted of buying a 5-cent bag of peanuts for the elephants. The park was free, looking at the animals was free, but the young man generously said: "You may have half the peanuts, my dear." Thereupon she turned him down. She is still single and he rides to his banking office behind a chauffeur.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS OF BOUT VIRTUALLY ASSURED

Busiest Week For College Quintets

9 of 12 Games Booked for Washington Gymnasiums.

West Virginia and Duquesne Among Invading Fives.

THE appearance of the Duquesne and West Virginia University Teams features the full program in waiting for District collegiate basket ball fans this week. Twelve games in all are carded, and nine will be served up to the hungry lovers of the court game on home floors.

Duquesne and West Virginia are among the strongest collegiate basket ball teams in the East. The former, from Pittsburgh, which is grouped with Eastern cities in collegiate athletics, will make a two-day visit here, playing American U. tonight at the Eagles' gymnasium and Catholic U. tomorrow night at Brookland.

For several years the Pittsburgh institution has sent its court representatives here, and usually with good results. The indications are that Duquesne will take both of the local clubs, with American U. having a better chance than Catholic of spilling the dope. Tonight's game will start at 8 o'clock.

West Virginia to Invade District With Good Team.

West Virginia, beaten only by Geneva College, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and Washington and Lee, the latter apparently the strongest team in the South, will oppose Georgetown Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the American U. court. This game was moved up to the afternoon because the American Five has a home game at night with Virginia Medical College, of Richmond.

In addition to the Duquesne-Catholic tussle for tomorrow night, George Washington will entertain Bucknell on the H street floor. For the seventh time George Washington will strive to break into the win column. Georgetown also will be in action in a game with Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, the second clash of the season between these two.

Maryland will be the only active team on Wednesday, being due to face Navy at Annapolis. So far the Tars have defeated three Washington clubs and should make Maryland their fourth victim from the Capital, judging from past performances.

Catholic U. Five to Play Loyola at Baltimore.

On Thursday Catholic will play its first game away from home, meeting Loyola in a return encounter at Baltimore. Three contests are booked for Friday night, with Maryland engaging Western Maryland at College Park; American taking on Juniata, of Huntingdon, Pa., on the Massachusetts avenue floor, and George Washington acting as host to Virginia Medical.

Gallaudet will swing into action on Saturday with Juniata as it foe at Kendall Green. Virginia Medical will meet American on the latter's floor at night while Georgetown will use the same court for its contest against West Virginia.

This week's court card:

TONIGHT.

TOMORROW.
Catholic vs. Duquesne, at Brookland.
George Washington vs. Bucknell, at George Washington.
Georgetown vs. Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore.

WEDNESDAY.
Maryland vs. Navy, at Annapolis.

THURSDAY.
Catholic vs. Loyola, at Baltimore.

FRIDAY.
Maryland vs. Western Maryland, at College Park.
American vs. Juniata, at American.
George Washington vs. Virginia Medical, at George Washington.

SATURDAY.

Cochran, Schaeffer in Deadlock for Second Place.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—To all intents and purposes the field still in the running for the world's 18.2 balkline billiards championship has been reduced to three—Kinyey Matsuyama, of Japan, and Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer, of the United States.

Of the three other participants in the round robin tournament in progress at the Level Club, Felix Grange, the French champion, has completed his schedule and failed to win one of his five starts. Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, the defending champion, still have a mathematical chance of figuring in the title chase, but it is nothing more than that.

The end of the first six days of the eight-day tournament today found Matsuyama leading the field, with three victories in as many starts. Schaefer and Cochran, two outstanding favorites, were in a tie for second place, with a brace of wins and one defeat.

Horemans, Defending Champ, Practically Out of Race.

Horemans and Hagenlacher were in another deadlock for fourth position, with an even break in four games.

With four matches yet to be played, three of them involving the trio of contenders, the championship still hangs in the balance. Matsuyama, the little Japanese sensation of the tournament, of course, holds a decided advantage, even though he still must play Cochran tomorrow night and Schaefer probably on Tuesday night.

In addition to these two matches, Cochran and Schaefer yet must play each other, and that's another break for Matsuyama. The fourth match will pit Hagenlacher and Horemans against one another. Horemans has virtually lost his chance.

Billiard Body to Extend Event To Include Wednesday Night.

Officials of the National Billiard Association announced tonight that they had decided to extend the tournament an extra day. Under revised plans there will be no afternoon match tomorrow, but the Matsuyama-Cochran game will be staged in the evening as scheduled. Tentatively the schedule for Tuesday would bring together Horemans and Hagenlacher in the afternoon and Cochran and Schaefer in the evening. The final match between Schaefer and Matsuyama then would be held Wednesday night.

In the event however, that Cochran defeats Matsuyama the program probably will be switched around in this fashion: Tuesday afternoon, Horemans and Hagenlacher; Tuesday evening, Schaefer and Matsuyama; Wednesday night, Schaefer and Cochran.

The standing:

	W.	L.	H.R.	Best Ave.
Matsuyama	3	0	110	30 10-13
Schaefer	2	1	205	40
Horemans	2	2	193	36 4-11
Hagenlacher	2	2	264	40

Conger's Victory Smothered Nurmi and Wide Ballyhoo

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Ray Conger, of the Illinois A. C., has smothered the ballyhoo for a race between Pavo Nurmi and Edwin Wide, the Swede, which was to have been the Dempsey-Tunney event of the indoor amateur track and field season. Running from scratch, Conger tore past Nurmi in the last lap of an eleven-lap mile in the Millrose games at the Garden and beat him by 8 yards going away, although his time was five and two-fifth seconds behind Nurmi's old record for the mile indoors. Thus are champions sometimes hit on the chin while engaged in the apparently harmless business of taking suckers.

To be sure, R. M. Conger has a very respectable reputation as an American middle-distance man, but American middle-distance runners have not been very important since Nurmi's first trip to this country four years ago. No candid announcement was made because it does not pay to be candid about such things, but I believe the amateur track and field promoters regarded Nurmi's field as a sucker field in this mile, and looked forward to a subsequent race between Pavo and Edwin at 2 miles with rich expectations. The victory over the native runners would serve to stimulate the ballyhoo and finally, when Pavo and Edwin jogged on the boards at the K. of C. games or the Finnish-American meet in March, there would be a large attendance and gate receipts in proportion.

The times of Conger's mile, 4 minutes 17 2-5 seconds, was such that Nurmi was made to look somewhat like Thomas Heeney on the occasion when James Lawless and James J. P. Braddock, his sparring partners, knocked him out on his feet in his training camp at Rumson, N. J., last summer, while the late Tex Rickard twisted uneasily in his chair and prattled, "'Tom ain't tryin' to hurt them fellers."

This demonstration and the next morning's banner lines in the papers announcing that Thomas Heeney's sparring partners had hammered him silly in a public workout militated vigorously against the financial success of the Tunney-Heeney production in the Yankee Stadium a few days later, in the same way. The defeat of Paavo Nurmi by Ray Conger in a mile run 5 seconds away from Nurmi's old record will affect the business done on the night when Paavo and Edwin run their 2-mile race, if they should run at all.

Foreign Stars Could Have Run Together in Millrose Games.

Nurmi and Wide could have run their 2-mile race in the Millrose games, for both of them were entered. But, like the leading prize fighters in the heavyweight elimination tournaments, the boys seemed to be saving the showdown for a date when the build-up had been properly attended to. Wide ran in the 2-mile race and made good in his assignment, but the ballyhoo failed when Conger drew up with a sprint in the last two laps overcoming Nurmi's lead of three yards and passing him for an 8-yard lead of his own. Of course, this was a very creditable race for an American runner, but they reckon such matters by split seconds on the tracks, and the fact remains that Nurmi ran about 6 seconds behind his record of four years ago.

Dempsey Feared a Similar Disaster Would Spoil Bout.

Jack Dempsey, in his preparations for the Stribling-Sharkey prize fight, which is to confirm the social position to Miami Beach, was wary of something on the order of the Nurmi-Conger episode. He objected stoutly to Sharkey's fulfillment of his recent date with K. O. Christner, of Akron, for fear that Christner would tap Sharkey on the chin. He even objected to Stribling's fighting an old Artillery sergeant by the name of Jack League, on the ground that League might tap William on the chin. As a matter of fact, Jack League did let fly a swing, probably the first punch he has landed in the last four years and clipped William's jaw, sending him down for a few seconds.

A few seconds more would have ruined Dempsey's production. Although the punch merely would have confirmed the well-known fact that they all tumble when they are hit just so. Yet one tap on William's chin would have set completely at naught all the taps which William has delivered on some 65 or 70 chins in various parts of the country.

Soccer League Game Ends In Fight

Rockville, Arcadians Reach No Decision. Carr Breaks Leg.

British Put Concords Out of Cup Tie Event, 2-1.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THE Arcadia-Rockville soccer game played on the Monument Grounds yesterday for the championship of the Capital City Soccer League was halted about ten minutes before its completion by a free-for-all fight, with several players of both teams and more than a score of spectators being involved.

In the same contest Bruce Carr, outside left of Rockville, received a broken leg and was removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Edward Kelly, of the hospital staff.

Rockville was leading, 2 to 1, at the time the melee started. A member of the Maryland team resented what he considered an illegal charge on the part of one of the Arcadian players. The two exchanged blows and then several spectators rushed on the field and the big scramble was on.

Players and spectators fought for about five minutes before a policeman put in his appearance and when he arrived he was faced by a smiling group, all of whom had apparently enjoyed the set-to, and, since none was in action at the time, no arrests were made.

Game Likely to Be Replayed; Both Teams Claim Victory.

The referee had disappeared and no official statement could be obtained anent the status of the game. Both sides claimed victory, the Arcadians basing their right to the game on the fact that Rockville put a substitute in the place of Carr, and substitutions are not permitted in soccer. Rockville claims the decision and the championship because it was leading when the game ended.

Officials of the soccer association last night expressed the opinion that the game would be replayed as Rockville undoubtedly erred in using a substitute.

British United eliminated Concord from the association's cup tie tourney by scoring a hard-fought 2 to 1 victory in the other contest of the day. Both matches were played under adverse conditions, the mud hampering the players as much as at any time this season.

Carr Breaks Leg While Leading Attack on Arcadian Goal.

The Arcadians scored in the first five minutes of play in the hectic tilt against Rockville. The Fourteenth street boys, led by Earl Clark, whom many thought was taking a foolish chance with his baseball career with the Boston Braves by playing on the slippery field, launched a strong offensive before the sound of the opening whistle had died away.

Earl and Tom Clark, aided by Wolf and Endress, peppered the Marylanders' goal from every angle and then Tom Clark dragged one over to the center of the field and crashed it through Poole for the first counter.

From then until about five minutes before half time the Arcadians pressed hard, but in the waning minutes of the period Rockville staged a comeback and made several desperate tries for a marker. It was in the midst of these efforts that Bruce Carr, the leader of the attack, received his broken limb. The accident occurred in the thick of a scramble near the Arcadian goal.

Two Arcadian Goals Disallowed Before Fight Halts Contest.

Rockville assumed the offensive in the second half and held it for about twenty minutes, when Bob Collins, Maryland outside right, made one of the longest goals of the season when he equalized from about midfield.

The Arcadians then scored twice in rapid succession, but both goals were disallowed when the referee ruled offside. Then the desperate efforts of the Arcadia crowd pressed Rockville to their goal and the fracas started that ended the contest.

British United demonstrated conclusively yesterday its superiority over Concord, although it had taken it three hours and a half of play to do so. Two weeks ago the teams fought through the regulation 90 minutes and two extra 15 minute periods to a 1-to-1 tie. By winning yesterday, the Uniteds won the right to play Clan MacLennan in the finals for the cup championship. The Englishmen were in better form yesterday and did not weaken in the closing minutes as on the occasion of the first game.

Dempsey Sees $50,000 as Profits

Notables Outnumbering Hoi-Polloi; 500 See Stribling.

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor).

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10 (U. P.).—Jack Dempsey furnished figures to the United Press today indicating that the Sharkey-Stribling fight, originally undertaken by the present promoters on sentimental grounds, is paying its way, and the Madison Square Garden Corporation now looks forward to profits which may not fall far short of the $50,000 mark.

Sunday at Miami Beach is visitors' day, and the box office windows had not been up half an hour before there was $1,800 in the till. With more than $300,000 in cash on hand and seventeen days remaining before the fight, sales are averaging $15,000 a day. The demand inevitably will increase as the day of the bout approaches, but it will be cheaper seats which will be sold then.

At present the demand is for $25 ringside seats, and these will be gone before the end of the week, unless Mike Carey, the genial constructor of the big arena over in Flamingo Park, decides to move the raised stands still farther back and float them on pontoons in Biscayne Bay. There are 30 rows of ringside seats now, and if the orders keep coming in there may be more.

Notables Outnumbering Hoi-Polloi In Requests for Seats.

As was the case of the big fights staged in recent years by the late Tex Rickard, whose pattern his successors have followed in the promotion of the forthcoming Sharkey-Stribling affair, the notables nearly outnumber the hoi-polloi. Certainly that will be the case around the ringside, for there will be seen such celebrities as used to delight Tex when he strolled among them on the night of the fight.

Already it is known that the following will be there: Richard Hoyt, Harvey Gibson and Charles Hayden, millionaire New York bankers; Irene Castle McLaughlin, Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. G. L. Rickard; George F. Getz, who helped Tex promote the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago, and Lester Watson, Chicago banker; Col. Jake Ruppert, John Ringling, James J. Cofroth, John McCormick, the tenor; Bud Fisher, Rube Goldberg, Paul Block, Roy Howard, Gov. Green of Michigan, Gov. Carlton of Florida, and Gov. Emerson of Illinois; Irving Berlin, James I. Rush, Mars Cassidy, One-Eye Connolly, and Al Smith. One could go on without end reeling off names of the prominent personages who are either here now or coming for the fight.

Fight to Be Biggest Show Florida Has Ever Known.

This in itself assures the interest of the patrons who will have to be content with cheaper seats. It will be the biggest show Florida has known.

Jack Dempsey returned yesterday from Tampa, reporting that he was nearly mobbed there for not having held the fight on the west coast.

"There's more interest in the fight over there than there is here," Jack said. "They're all coming over, but they're sore because I couldn't take the fight to Tampa.

"However, we are now through the woods and every additional dollar coming our way represents an unexpected profit. We may clear $50,000 on the fight, but that's not important. We will be happy to break even.

Young Stribling worked out this afternoon, going through eight rounds of bag punching, rope skipping and light boxing for the edification of a crowd of about 500 at 50 cents per spectator.

Explaining why the Georgian resorts to clowning rather than to serious work, Dempsey said:

"Stribling is down pretty fine now and in good shape. I wouldn't want to risk having him go stale and having to postpone the fight, so I told him to go easy."

GEORGETOWN IN 2 TRACK MEETS

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY silks again will be seen on Northern wooden tracks tonight and tomorrow night. Coach John D. O'Reilly's pupils will compete in the Manhattan College games tonight in New York City and the classic Meadowbrook A. C. meet in Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Jim Kennedy, promising freshman middle distance runner who has won a goodly portion of the laurels in competition with Northern stars already this season, will run in the celebrated Jaspar three-quarters mile tonight. Eddie Hoctor, veteran quarter-miler and member for the last two years of the Hilltop relay team, will try to show his heels to a formidable field of opponents in a special 500-yard event.

The first competitive effort of the G. U. freshmen medley relay team also is carded tonight. Prominent in this quartet is Jack Mara who finished third in a 1,000-yard race at the Millrose games Saturday. He will handle the anchor assignment of 880-yards.

2-Mile Varsity Relay Makes Debut Tomorrow Night.

The first three were stars as schoolboys—Artie Briggs, Jimmy Carlin and Jimmy Kelly. Briggs will lead off in a leg of 220 yards, with Carlin running a quarter and Kelly doing 660. Briggs was a member of the championship DeLasalle interscholastic mile and medley relays teams in 1928.

Tomorrow night the varsity 2-mile team will make its bow. O'Reilly has selected John Carney, Jay Julicher, Larry Milstead and Jerry Gorman for this race and they will run in the order named. All but Julicher are tried performers in varsity competition.

Dave Adelman, G. U.'s intercollegiate 12-pound shot-put titleholder, also will show his wares for the first time of the season at Philadelphia. Leo Sexton, high jumper extraordinary, who won the Millrose event at a height of 6 feet 4 inches, is entered in the Meadowbrook high jump and shot put, too.

Maryland Enters Quinn in Dash Feature at Meadowbrook.

Karl Wildermuth, consistent runner-up to the Canadian Olympic champion sprinter Percy Williams, will compete in the 50-yard dash and will be accompanied by Morris Lerner, a freshman, formerly of Vineland (N. J.) High School. Bernard Bonniwell, freshman high jumpjer, will get a chance for major honors in the event with Sexton.

Bob Quinn, of Maryland University, last year's winner of the Meadowbrook "50," is entered again tomorrow night. He defeated the Pennsylvania ace, Folwell Scull, last year.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—If any of the 100 or more delegates to the United States Lawn Tennis Association's annual meeting started for Boston last week spoiling for a good old-fashioned row, he must have lost his belligerency en route. Complete harmony hung like a pall over the proceedings.

Vincent Richards stalked the lobby of the Copley-Plaza with a bushel of chips on his coonskin-coated shoulders. They were still there when he stumbled disconsolately out into the night after it was all over and his pet project of an open tournament had not been so much as mentioned. The overlords of amateur tennis were polite enough to the apostle of the professional game; they meticulously withheld the raspberry when he was routed in an exhibition match at Longwood Saturday morning, but they would have no truck with him in a business way.

Hangers-on Looking for Fight Bitterly Disappointed.

A pious wish telegraphed by the newly shriven Tilden, "may the coming year be one of peace and progress," was in keeping with the atmosphere of the occasion. Everything they did the delegates seemed to do unanimously, even if it were only slipping over to one of the better class Back Bay speakeasies. Hangers-on who hoped that the delegates might be goaded into banging each other over the head in the Pier Six manner over something or other saw a ray of hope when the bald, eagle-faced head of J. C. Stewart, president of the Western association, reared among the delegates. Mr. Stewart only a few days before had rapped the California association for demanding 50 per cent of the gate receipts for sanctioning the appearance of Helen Wills in an exhibition match in Detroit.

If Harmony Wins International Matches, U. S. Is Davis Cup Winner.

It was hoped that Mr. Stewart would start something and that the gamecock of the courts, little Bill Johnson, representing the California Association, would finish it.

But such a devoutly wished-for consummation was not to be; all that Mr. Stewart did was to stride to the rostrum to bow acknowledgement of the applause which greeted his unanimous election to the office of secretary, applause in which the gamecock of the courts joined heartily. Applause also greeted the reelection of President Samuel H. Collom, Vice President Louis B. Dailey and Treasurer Louis J. Carruthers. The ap-

DUDAK PLANS TO LEAVE HILLTOP

Coach Will Practice Law; Connaughton Is Considered.

BILL DUDAK, freshman football and basket ball coach for the past four years, probably will be among those missing next fall from the staff of Georgetown University athletic coaches who started the present academic year.

The former Hilltop all-around star is the authority for this statement. He will finish his postgraduate law course in June and is contemplating going West to seek a field for practice. He probably will hang out his shingle somewhere in Oklahoma.

While nothing definite has leaked out, Athletic Director Lou Little is believed to be considering Harry Connaughton, All-American guard of the 1926 eleven, for a post in the coaching department next fall and the going of Dudak lends support to this belief which is popularly advanced by close Georgetown followers.

Two Vacancies on Georgetown Coaching Staff Now.

At the present there are two vacancies on Little's staff of assistants. Tom McNamara, varsity back-field coach in 1928, already has dropped out, while Otto Saur, of the freshmen department, has made known his intention of going into law practice following his graduation in June.

Frank Murray, varsity scout and one of the freshmen mentors, is thinking of entering the legal profession, too. He will join a firm in Boston if he leaves the Hilltop.

Thus it would seem there is plenty of room for Connaughton (not referring to his bulky stature) and since he will be taking a second year of postgraduate work next fall his presence at the Hilltop makes him all the more a logical choice for an assistant coach's job, according to those who follow Georgetown doings closely.

Nurmi, Wide Entered In Michigan Games

Detroit, Feb. 10 (A. P.).—Paavo Nurmi, fleet Finn, and Edvin Wide, Swedish middle distance runner, will competet in the Michigan A. A. U. indoor track and field championships, to be held at the Olympia February 20.

Whether Nurmi and Wide will enter the same events has not been determined, but signed entry blanks for both were received today.

Pin Body Selects April 15 As Opening Title Event Date

INDORSING the success that the three-year assignment cycle adopted in 1927, the Washington City Duckpin Association yesterday decided at its regular meeting held at the Raleigh Hotel to continue the plan. Accordingly the 1930 tournament will be held at the Convention Hall Alleys or such other alley as is controlled by that interest. The 1931 tournament goes to King Pin with a similar reservation, while the 1932 event will be staged at the Coliseum Alleys or some alley controlled by the same interest. Provision was made for the inclusion in this cycle of a new establishment under a new management. In case any such establishment should arise it shall take its position fourth in the cycle.

H. Z. Greer was reelected to the office of president, while Perce Ellett was chosen vice president of the association. The office of secretary was again tendered to Arville Ebersole, while the treasurership went to R. C. Miltner.

The association voted to open the 1929 tourney on Monday, April 15, with the event being staged at the Coliseum Alleys. This date, however, is subject to the approval of the alley management.

The association presented the prizes to the winners of the Howard Campbell sweepstakes and to the ten ranking bowlers that were named last season by the local bowling committee.

The association members took up the subjects of enforcing the foul line rule and changing the classification of bowlers. The foul line question will be brought about by an intensive educational campaign along these lines, while the matter of classification was left to the committees to be named to conduct the title tournament. The association, however, went on record as in favor of strict observance of the foul-line rule.

McLean Brothers Lose Florida Net Exhibition

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 10.—Playing before a large gallery, Neddie and "Jock" McLean, youthful brothers, of Washington, D. C., lost a thrilling two-set battle last night to Zarian and Bartlett, the Orlando boys championship team, in an exhibition on the electrically-lighted tennis court at the Water Witch Club.

After scoring a 6-to-4 victory in the first set, the Orlando champions managed to eke out an 8—6 triumph in the second set to win the match despite the brilliant play of Freddie McLean. In another exhibition, "Jock" McLean and Paul Heston, Washington professional, defeated Hickey and Hutchinson, 8—6, 6—0.

Tilden Returns to Courts And Wins in All Matches

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Fresh from his six-month exile, Bill Tilden returned today to bona fide amateur competition as the first seeded player of the Brooklyn Heights Casino indoor invitation tournament, where he played in morning, afternoon and evening matches and with Tildenesque joviality, won everything.

His spirits were of a much higher order than his tennis, though every once in a while he drove a ball across so hard that it evoked gasps and whistles of admiration from the gallery.

From 10 in the morning until 8 o'clock tonight Tilden was in tennis togs. About an hour before he went on the court with Frank Hunter to meet McCaulliff and Lewis, Tilden talked about things that concern his immediate tennis future.

He prefaced everything by saying that he was dead tired. In the morning he barely escaped defeat at the hands of Perrine Rockafellow, 2—6, 6—3, 6—4, and in the afternoon, playing in much better form, Tilden went after every ball and poured out his best strokes to win, 6—3, 6—3, from Elmer Griffin. Rockafellow and Griffin are local tournament players capable of giving any man a run.

Tilden Says Game He Played Was Not Tennis.

Wearing the familiar white felt tennis coat and blue silk scarf around his neck, Tilden was sitting in the locker room waiting for Hunter, who had just won a singles match, to change his shirt.

"I would like to know what you call that game I was playing—it certainly wasn't tennis," Tilden said, and by way of emphasis shook a racquet at Hunter.

HANDLERS GIVE SCHMELING LESSONS ON DEMPSEY

German Star Now Copies His Dress

By BENNY LEONARD,
(Retired Lightweight Champion of the World.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—If Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight, does not become a second Jack Dempsey, it will not be the fault of those gentlemen who are molding his fistic destiny in this country. Taking advantage of the point that Schmeling resembles the old Manassa mauler in racial and general physical build, Joe Jacobs, who has a "piece" of the German, is resorting to every artifice to enhance that resemblance.

The other night, Friday, in Madison Square Garden, Schmeling was introduced to the twenty-odd thousand fight fans who packed the place. The act began as soon as Max stepped through the ropes. He took two or three little hopping steps, like Dempsey used to do, and then draped himself in true Dempsey fashion on the ropes while he waited his turn to be introduced by Joe Humphries.

Naturally, Joe saved Max for his final peroration, and, just as naturally, he gave the German a whale of a send-off. Max didn't understand a single word of what it was all about; nevertheless he grinned amiably, and at the proper moment sprang into action, stepping out to the center of the ring and shaking his clasped hands above his head in acknowledgement of the salvos of the crowd.

Schmeling Is Copying Dempsey In Actions and Clothes.

But not only in actions was Schmeling copying our Jack. In his clothes the resemblance was even more marked. Joe Jacobs, I find, has sought out the tailor who made Dempsey's garments and had him fashion a suit that would make anybody look like Dempsey if he wore a veil.

Jack Dempsey may not have set the example of popping over his heavyweight opponents. It might be claimed that he aped the great John L. Sullivan in this respect. But Dempsey did set the example of what the boys call "sartorial splendor" for heavyweight fighters.

The Manassa mauler was easily the best dressed of all our heavyweight champions—not even excepting the gentlemanly Jim Corbett. The trait was instilled in Dempsey by Jack Kearns, who thought it good showmanship to have his champion pointed out as a shining example of what the well-dressed man will wear.

Leonard Says German Appears Frail Despite Resemblance.

And so Schmeling looked the perfect picture in that ring the other night. In fact, Schmeling, if anything, outlooks Dempsey in mufti. With all his strong experiences, &c., somehow he appears frail to me in comparison with the power-exuding Dempsey.

Jack always impressed me with the idea of compact power. The word "dynamite" just naturally occurred to me every time I met him. There was nothing suggestive of "puny" about him. And with his rugged face even smiling at you, you couldn't help but feel that there was latent power there.

Strangely enough, Schmeling does not impress me this way. There is a delicacy in his face which prevents you from associating the old "killer instinct" with it. I guess that's it. It's the expression, not so much the build of the face.

But then, it is well to remember that you don't win a championship in the ring with your face. Packy McFarland, Joe Thomas and a host of other really great fighters could have made good in the moving pictures on their faces alone.

However, in the present heavyweight puddle, Schmeling will probably do until a better imitation of Jack Dempsey comes along.

American Horses Picked For British Steeplechase

AINTREE, England, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Only one American race horse in 89 years has won the Grand National, noted British turf classic held here every year, but at least four of them are to try March 22 to bring victory once more to an American owner.

Moreover, these four are already placed among the favorites. Altogether eleven American-owned horses have been entered.

Last year's favorite, Master Billy, and Great Span are the only two English favorites so far for this year's race. The other favorites are owned by Americans. They are Howard Bruce's Billy Barton, Stephen Sanford's Bright Boy and John J. Whitney's Easter Hero and Maguelonne.

Victor Emanuel's Phosphore and Royal Sport, Gordon Selfridge's Ruddyman, A. C. Schwartz's Darracq, J. B. Balding's Drinmond, R. B. Strassburger's The Ace II and S. Sanford's second string, Mount Etna.

Easter Hero has the top weight of 175 pounds and Maguelonne is the champion French mare which made the bold bid last year and subsequently won the big Auteuil chase for the late M. Loewenstein.

Animals "sprung from nowhere" have won it; horses bought "for a song" have won it; it has been won by a horse that had drawn a market cart; by horses little bigger than ponies; by horses that "hadn't a chance" and whose owners had not backed them for a shilling; by badly shaped animals which, according to the accepted creed of which constitutes a good jumper, ought to have fallen at the first fence.

Perhaps one of the most exciting races on record was run in 1891, when Maj. Roddy Owen, on Cloister, after covering the 4½ miles and jumping the 30 fences without a fault, was beaten by Come Away by only half a length. Maj. Owen won the race in the following year on Father O'Flynn.

The first "authorized" National was run in 1839 and was a most sensational event, for Capt. Becher, riding a horse called Conrad, crashed into a fence consisting of a solid rail, a stiff hedge and beyond the hedge a brook 6 feet wide.

As he lay unconscious on the ground on the landing side fourteen horses jumped just over him or a foot or two on either side of him, yet not a hoof touched him.

Since that day the jump, now bigger still, has been known as Becher's brook.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BO, if you don't follow the chatter it's a pipe to fa' down and go boom. Also, and for your further information, I reiterate the info slipped you Saturday—"For Monday I'm going to slip you ALL UPSET from the Southland Stable to win—the stake at the Fair Grounds." Listens like high-class gab to me. If you lamp the entries from Crawfish town you will note that the son of Upset, which has outworked everything in this division at the track—is coupled as an entry. Let your conscience be your guide.

THISTLE STAR after that splendid performance last time should repeat right back in the second, in which a very ordinary band is named to bear colors.

Tight fit in the fifth between AFTERGLOW and LANE ALLEN with the Four Oaks entry dangerously close up. Close attention should be paid to riders in this race—they will be the deciding factor.

Of the mediocre lot of hash hounds named to go in the closing spasm, I am taking JACK O'LEEN. This one has a pull of about 3½ pounds.

Over at Miami, where the D. O. P. is giving the lawn mowers the old run, lamp the comment appended by the chief of staff: "Unless this trick breaks a leg, it should be Katy bar the door." FLYING SWEEP, which is at the top of his very best form, is taken to beat the top-heavy favorite, SUN ALTOS. Personally, I don't believe the issue will even be close. The sleeper is GOLD COIN, which has been showing real smart trials—in private.

The boy wonder, "Wee Charlie" Koerner, who seems to be in his stride, has the long end of the fourth in his vest pocket with BRIAR BROOM. The latter is fit as hands can make him and "Chas" has the boss down, hook, line and sinker in St. Louis. Try that one on your radio.

Oh yes all but forgot to tell you there is a commission planted here on NOINE in the fifth. Now too much gab has been known to spoil the coup. An' dat's dat.

J. C. C. LOSES TO SILVER SPRING

31-30 Defeat Breaks Streak of Center's Fast Quintet.

THE Jewish Community Center Unlimited Team's long winning streak over local teams was broken yesterday afternoon in the Silver Spring Armory Gymnasium when the Silver Spring Service Company Five won in a 31-to-30 game. The encounter was one of the best played in the Silver Spring gymnasium this season and was easily the most exciting because of the J. C. C. Team's first defeat.

It was not until the last four minutes of play that the Service Company Five realized its opportunity of victory. Playing an uphill game all the way, the Springers finally got to even terms and into the van on excellent work by Lafesky and Wanley. Lafesky tied the score by inserting a basket from side court while he put his team ahead with a telling shot from underneath the basket. Wanley made things certain, then, with a shot from the center of the floor.

Jewish Team Loses Out in Final Minutes of Game.

The Center team had matters well in hand for the most part and looked to be good for another victory to add to their list. They found out differently, as the final score and those final four minutes demonstrated to them. At half time they led by 13 to 10.

Lafesky scored 9 points in all to lead the Springers in victory, while Wanley came next with 7 points. Kramer was the high scorer for J. C. C., collecting four baskets and three foul tosses for 11 points. Deboskey, Chatlen and Abramson counted 5 points each to rank next.

SCHOLASTIC QUINTETS PLAY 18 GAMES THIS WEEK

Prep Contests To Feature Program

Gonzaga - Devitt and St. John-Emerson Play Wednesday.

Two Contests Today; Tech Relay Team Makes Debut.

EIGHTEEN games and an indoor track meet face local scholastic teams in their athletic program this week. The track meet will be the occasion of the Meadowbrook games at Philadelphia on Tuesday and will find the Tech Relay Team the only local representative entered. Incidentally, this meet will mark the debut of the Tech Team for the year and the first meet in which any of the local track teams will be entered.

The regular weekly basket ball games will begin today with Eastern engaging Hyattsville High in the latter's gymnasium, and Central playing St. John's at Central. Three contests are booked for tomorrow, St. John's and Western playing in the Western Gymnasium, Catholic University Freshmen playing the Maryland Yearlings at College Park and St. Alban's meeting Leonard Hall at Leonardtown, Md.

Prep School League Games Feature Week's Play.

Wednesday, the District Prep School League games will hold the spotlight. A double-header is on tap, with Gonzaga meeting Devit beginning at 3:15 o'clock and Emerson tackling St. John's immediately after. The only encounter listed for the day has Georgetown Prep against Loyola High at Baltimore.

Devitt will invade College Park TThursday for a game with the Maryland Freshmen, while the champion Tech High Five will play the Episcopal High School Five at Alexandria. Six tilts are on tap for Friday, which will be the busiest day of the entire week.

Six Games Are Scheduled For Teams on Friday.

St. Alban's will entertain the Donaldson School Five of Baltimore at St. Alban's. Georgetown Prep will play host to Hyattsville High at Garrett Park. Tech will engage the Catholic University Eastern at St. John's, and Benjamin Franklin will invade Silver Spring for a game with the Bliss Electrical School Quintet in the Silver Spring Armory Gymnasium. The Central High Five will journey to Atlantic City for a game with the Atlantic City High School Five to complete the list of Friday games.

Two games on Saturday will close the program for the week. The Maryland University Freshmen will engage the Navy Plebes at Annapolis, while the Catholic University Yearlings will entertain the Harriman & Co. Basketers at Brookland.

Regular Weekly Meeting For Prep League Today

Officials of the District Prep School League will hold their regular weekly meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the offices of the Boys Club, Third and C streets northwest. Appointment of a referee to succeed Orrel Mitchell will be made as will rules be discussed for the better knowledge of all concerned.

Plans for the baseball series will also be discussed. It is the plan of the officials to branch out in the baseball series, teams from nearby Maryland and Virginia towns having been invited to enter. The several teams invited would have to play under the strict rules of the circuit should they enter. The invited teams include George Mason, Alexandria High, Hyattsville High, St. Albans, Georgetown Prep, Swavely and Episcopal, Devitt, Gonzaga, Emerson and St. John's. The "big four" in the basketball circuit now in progress are already in line.

Columbus and Franklin Fives to Clash Friday

Columbus and Benjamin Franklin University teams, latest additions to the collegiate group hereabouts, will clash Friday night on the former's court. Indications point to a closely contested game. The Benjamin Franklin five has been strengthened by the recent acquisition of Lester Singman, former Business High star.

The Accountants also will play tomorrow night, meeting Hyattsville High in the Langley High gymnasium. Both Columbus and Benjamin Franklin have experienced difficulty scheduling games with college teams owing to the fact that they started the season late and have not as yet proved they are in a class with regular college outfits.

Busy Athletic Program For Potomac Boat Club

Potomac Boatmen have a busy athletic program this week begining tonight when they play the Bolling Field Basketers at Bolling Field at 9 o'clock. Tomorrow the Strayers Business College Five will be met in the St. Martins gymnasium at 7:30 o'clock.

On Thursday the Old Dominion Boat Club Tossers will be engaged at Alexandria in a game which will go a long way in deciding the local representative in the Nautical League tournament in Philadelphia next month. Wednesday night the team will meet at its clubhouse at 9 o'clock while on Saturday a benefit dance and card party will be held in the same clubrooms.

Washington, Richmond Teams in Second Block

The Western Union bowling leagues of Richmond and Washington will roll the second block of five games in their ten game series, this coming Saturday on the Convention Hall Alleys. The series is for the inter-city championship.

The Washington Team in the men's division got the jump on Richmond last Saturday when they took all five games of the first block while the Washington Women's Team took three out of the five in the women's class at Richmond on January 27.

STANTON BASKETERS WIN.

In an uphill game, the Stanton Basketers nosed out the K. of C. Scholastics yesterday afternoon in the K. of C. gymnasium. Cinotti and Daugherty were the players who registered points for the margin for the Stantons. The Stantons engage the Naval Air Station Five tomorrow night at Bolling Field. For games, phone Manager Jordan at Lincoln 6977-J.

THE GUMPS

OH! THE GARBAGE MAN IS HERE— ANY OLD CLOTHES OR OLD RAGS TODAY?
I WANT YOU TO SAVE ALL THE OLD SHOES AND TIN CANS FROM NOW ON— I WANT TO START THAT WEDDING COUPLE OFF WITH A BANG!

What a Wedding That Would Be

THE CANS I'D LIKE TO TIE TO HIM— WHAT A BANG I'D LIKE TO START HIM OFF WITH— HE'S SO IN LOVE WITH HIMSELF— WHY DON'T HE GET MARRIED TO HIMSELF? AND HOW I'D LIKE TO START THEM ON THEIR HONEYMOON — I'D SEND THEM ACROSS THE GREAT SAHARA DESERT IN A WHEELBARROW— WITH NOTHING BUT A BAG OF SALTED PEANUTS AND A SACK OF DRIED APPLES— THEY COULD TAKE TURNS WHEELING THEMSELVES— AND FOR A WEDDING GIFT— I'D LIKE TO PUT A BIRD CAGE OVER HIS HEAD— AND LET HIM CHIRP—
SIDNEY SMITH

BUCK ROGERS, 2429 A. D.

Desert Robbers.

By Phillip Nowlan and Richard Calkins

THIS IS NO CINCH! I MUST BE JUMPING TWENTY M.P.H. BUT THOSE HILLS KEEP RUNNING AWAY! I HOPE THERE'S WATER IN THEM—
MY SMALL SUPPLY OF WATER AND RATIONS WAS DESTROYED WITH MY PLANE.
WHEN I REACHED THE HILLS, I FOUND THEM AS DRY AS THE DESERT. BUT I WAS SO UTTERLY EXHAUSTED I FELL ASLEEP— HAVING REMOVED MY EQUIPMENT, AND ANCHORED MY JUMPING BELT TO A ROCK.
TWO DESERT HALF-BREEDS WERE PROWLING IN THE NEARBY ROCKS
LOOK, MATE, AN ORG MAN! HERE'S OUR CHANCE TO SNAKE HIS OUTFIT—HE'S SNOOZIN!
SHALL I BUMP HIM OFF?
NAH! THE SUN WILL DO THAT. ALL WE WANT IS HIS STUFF.

BILLS FOR DISTRICT PROJECTS COMING UP IN HOUSE TODAY

Airport, Free Books in Schools and Municipal Center Held Major Plans.

CONTROVERSY EXPECTED ON WOMAN-POLICE UNIT

Other Measures May Provide Twelve Bathing Pools and Children's Sanitarium.

This is supposed to be District of Columbia day in the House and, providing the leaders recognize it as such, a number of local bills should be acted on.

The bill to legalize and enlarge the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department has priority on the program, but it is such a controversial measure that it may be laid aside to make way for others.

Airport Bill Important.

So far as the members of the District committee are concerned, the most important of the local bills is the Capper-Stalker bill to establish a municipal airport at Gravelly Point. They hope to take it up today.

Another important measure is the Capper-Zihlman bill to provide free textbooks for students in the junior and senior high schools. Fifteen States already have enacted such legislation.

Municipal Center Plan.

The Simmons bill to authorize the purchase of land for the proposed new municipal center also is on the calendar. This provides for the acquisition of four squares just south of Judiciary Square, the area in which it is proposed to erect a beautiful array of buildings for the use of the District government.

Among other bills that will be awaiting attention are the Zihlman bill to authorize twelve bathing pools here, a bill providing for a sanitarium for tubercular children, a bill to drive out medical quacks and a bill compelling the payment of taxes on intangible personal property.

Driver Arrested After Man Is Struck by Auto

Mammele, 54 years old, ... Kenilworth City, Md., was struck by an automobile last night as he was crossing a street in Bladensburg, Md., near the Peace Cross. He was brought to Casualty Hospital by the Prince Georges County rescue squad, and treated there for possible broken ribs and internal injuries, and for contusions about the body.

Louis T. Granath, of 3251 Hagen street northwest, said to have been driving the automobile which struck Mammele, was arrested by Constable Gasch, of Bladensburg, on a charge of reckless driving, taken before Justice of the Peace Phillips and released under $250 bond.

California Society Seeks New Members

In an effort to enroll all Californians in Washington in the California State Society, Charles William Freeman, president, has appointed a special committee on membership which includes Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Maj. Gen. Amos R. Fries, and Thomas J. Flaherty, secretary of the National Association of Postal Clerks.

The society is planning many activities during the year, chief of which will be a reception during the later part of March in honor of President-elect Hoover and his wife. Announcement also is made that the society has opened offices in the National Press Club Building, where all affairs of the organization will be transacted.

Two Bills to Liberalize Immigration Opposed

(Associated Press.)

Passage of either of two bills pending in Congress to liberalize naturalization was described yesterday by Representative Box, of Texas, a leading Democratic member of the House immigration committee, as threatening to break down the immigration laws by admitting to citizenship "probably hundreds of thousands" of aliens.

Mr. Box said he would oppose the measures when they reach the House. The bills, which are similar, would permit the naturalization of certain aliens and grant them the privilege of bringing into this country certain relatives as quota and non-quota immigrants.

Motorcyclist Hits Auto At Gate of Cemetery

Leslie A. Piller, 19 years old, of 3119 South Dakota avenue northeast, was injured last night when he rode his motorcycle into the automobile of Martin Wroth, of 420 H street northwest, as Wroth was coming out onto Bladensburg road northeast from Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Capital Youth Elected Wesleyan Argus Editor

De Ford C. Mills, of 812 Whittier street northwest, a junior at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., has been elected managing editor of the Argus, the school's weekly undergraduate publication, according to advices received here.

Mills has won other collegiate distinctions, being a member of the varsity debating team, a member of the college senate, chairman of the college body by-laws committee and a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity.

Thieves Break Jewelry Shop Window for Loot

Thieves broke a window in the Castleberg Jewelry Co.'s store at 1004 F street northwest yesterday and stole watches and jewelry valued at $343, Paul P. Bachschmidt, manager, reported to police yesterday.

The loot included five wrist watches, two cameo brooches and a pearl necklace. No one was on the street at the time to witness the robbery, police reported yesterday after investigating.

Y. W. C. A. Official Resigns.

Mrs. Lula E. Lawson, formerly a teacher in divisions 10 to 13 of the District public schools, who for five years has been executive secretary of the South Parkway branch of the Young Women's Christian Association of Chicago, has resigned, it was announced last night, to accept the post of assistant director of the Rosenwald Michigan Avenue Housing Project, a cooperative apartment enterprise.

OFFICERS TO HONOR REBEL CHIEF

Emilio Aguinaldo (left) once gave the United States Army plenty of trouble. Saturday the Military Order of the Carabao, of which Col. J. M. Heller (right) is head, will honor him at its banquet.

ORDER OF CARABAO WILL HONOR REBEL

Aguinaldo, Peaceful and Loyal Citizen Now, Unable to Attend Banquet.

FILIPINOS SEND GREETING

The Military Order of the Carabao, composed of approximately 80 members of the Army, Navy and Forty-ninth Marine Corps, will honor at its third Saturday annual banquet, to be held at the Willard Hotel, a picturesque character of the Philippine jungles who led American Army 30 years ago has on his trail. He is Emilio Aguinaldo, now 62 years old. Emilio is living quietly in Manila.

Aguinaldo was sent an urgent invitation to attend the banquet, but he was unable to accept, according to an announcement made last night by Col. Joseph M. Heller, commander of the Carabao order. Col. Heller also announced that Henry L. Stimson, governor general of the Philippines, had accepted honorary membership in the order. There are only two honorary members of the order, the other being Chief Justice William Howard Taft, who served at one time as governor general of the Philippines.

The days when they chased Aguinaldo 30 years ago for the disturbances he created will be lived over again in memory by the several hundred officers who will attend the dinner.

The Carabao order recently received from officers of the Veterans of the Philippine Revolution, an association of native officers who fought with Aguinaldo, greetings and assurances of "their unbroken loyalty to the representatives of America, both in the Philippines and in America."

Aguinaldo, after eluding the army for some time, was captured by a clever strategy executed by Gen. Funston.

Pay Cut Feared By Lehlbach Bill

Mrs. M. H. Worrell Points Out How Board Would Make Reductions.

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, president of the League of the American Civil Service, which will meet tonight at 8:15 o'clock to discuss progress of the fight against the Lehlbach salary revision bill, last night declared that the measure is a pay reduction instead of a pay increase bill.

"The Personnel Classification Board, which under the bill is granted sole jurisdiction over positions and salaries of all employes, has gathered data with the avowed purpose of opposing any further increases in salaries for rank and file Federal workers. Mr. McReynolds, of the board, states that salaries in the lower grades are 32 per cent too high now.

"We advocate the abolition of the Personnel Classification Board and transfer of its functions to the Civil Service Commission. We favor substitution of the old efficiency rating system for the one now in effect, and the establishment of a board of arbitration and appeal. We also favor the Sirovich bill granting a flat increase of $300 to the poorly paid workers and request that it be brought out of committee and put to a vote in the House."

One Man Injured When Pair of Autos Collide

One automobile was overturned and the second crashed into a tree as a result of a collision yesterday afternoon at Seventh and C streets southwest, in which Edgar H. Myers, 24 years old, of 142 Kentucky avenue southeast, operator of the latter car, was injured.

Myers was removed to Emergency Hospital and treated by Dr. Leonard D. McCarthy for lacerations to the scalp and ear. Ross Morgan Bright, of 1371 Massachusetts avenue southeast, who police say was driving the machine that turned over, escaped uninjured.

Match Ignites Gasoline; Man Seriously Burned

Howard Richardson, colored, 25 years old, of 1410 Fourteenth street northwest, was seriously burned early yesterday morning at Connecticut avenue and Van Ness street northwest when he struck a match while filling the gasoline tank of his automobile. The open flame ignited the gas, which set his clothing afire.

Policemen Theodore W. Patterson and Walter N. Cook, of the Fourteenth Precinct, wrapped him in their overcoats, extinguished the flames and took him to Emergency Hospital for treatment of body burns. His condition is reported serious.

ILL, VISITOR DIVES UNDER CAR WHEELS

John W. Coleman's Life Saved by Motorman, Says That Mother Had Died.

CAME HERE ON EXCURSION

John Wesley Colman, 35 years old, of 210 West 199th street, New York City, yesterday evening tried to commit suicide, according to police reports, by hurling himself under the wheels of a moving street car on C street, between North Capitol street and Delaware avenue northeast.

He is reported to have approached the car, bound for Rosslyn, and dived to throw himself underneath the center of the car. He truck his head on the lower edge of the car, Irving Handback, 32 years old, of 3320 Prospect avenue northwest, the motorman, brought the car to a stop and notified police of the Sixth Precinct.

He told the police, they say, that he came to Washington yesterday on an excursion, after being seriously ill with influenza three weeks ago. He said that after arriving here he learned his mother, who lived in Lynchburg, Va., had died suddenly. His wife, Mrs. Frances Colman, lives with him in New York City, he said.

Capital Will Observe Save-Your-Vision Week

Under the auspices of the District of Columbia Optometric Society, Washington this week is observing "save your vision week." The observance is national in scope, being sponsored nationally by the American Optometric Association.

Dr. Lewis H. Kraskin, president of the District Society, announces that the local observance will be primarily of an educational nature. Radio talks and lectures will play a large part in the program.

Maj. H. O. Segrave Will Visit Capital

On Way to Florida, With Goal of 220-Mile Speed in Auto.

Maj. H. O. D. Seagrave, the first man to travel more than 200 miles an hour in an automobile, will come to Washington today to discuss with American Automobile Association officials the final details of his attempt to regain for England the world's automobile speed title. The high-speed mark is now held in the United States.

The major, who is en route to Daytona Beach, Fla., where the speed test will be held, will be tendered a dinner this evening at the Carlton Hotel by Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the association. Following the dinner, Maj. Seagrave and his retinue will leave immediately for Florida.

Maj. Seagrave will make his new attempt in his Golden Arrow, which he confidently expects will attain a speed of not less than 220 miles an hour.

Boys Snatch Girl's Purse.

Edward L. Moody, of 2140 N street northwest, reported to the police of the Third Precinct that yesterday afternoon his young daughter, Lois Moody, had a small purse, containing 64 cents, taken from her hand by two young colored boys about 12 years old, near her home.

Woman, 107, Believed Oldest Capital Resident, Is Dead

Although born at Petersburg, Va., in 1822 during the height of slavery and in a slave State, she was free born. She was married three times, but never had children of her own, but was a mother to children of two of her husbands, who were widowers.

Her stepchildren, many of whom live in Washington, regarded her with deep affection, and said one of the happiest events of her life was when she was permitted to shake the hand of Abraham Lincoln.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at 1221 Fairmont street northwest. Interment will be in Lincoln Cemetery.

SPEAKERS EULOGIZE ABRAHAM LINCOLN IN ANNIVERSARY TALKS

TRIBUTE TO POLICY IS PAID BY PASTOR

Other Services in Memory of Former President Planned Tomorrow.

Abraham Lincoln was eulogized at two services in Washington yesterday, in the afternoon by Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National United committee for law enforcement, at the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, and last night by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church.

Both services were in recognition of the 119th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln, which is tomorrow. Exercises will be held at noon tomorrow at the Lincoln Memorial.

Punctuating his remarks with a comment on liquor law enforcement in this country, Mr. Howard declared that another Abraham Lincoln is needed in the White House today.

Nation Needs New Lincoln.

"Lincoln put down nullification and rebellion," he said. "If he were living today he would do the same thing. He would demand obedience to the law of the land, and would call out the Federal forces if necessary to suppress this modern whisky insurrection in rebellion against the Constitution.

"If Abraham Lincoln were living today," said Mr. Howard, "he would take the same stand on the liquor question that he took on the slavery question. He would say: 'This nation can not endure half drunk and half sober.' He would deny the right of any citizen to say that a thing is right which the Constitution of the nation says is wrong."

Mr. Howard also quoted Lincoln as saying "The next great problem of the Nation is the abolition of the saloon."

Dr. Montgomery's address was of a different type. He did not picture Lincoln as living today, but sang his praise to the man whose memory, he said, belongs not only to America, but to the ages and centuries of all the world. He pointed out that more books have been written about Lincoln than of any other man save the Man of Galilee. He described the history of Lincoln "as dear as poetry, dark as tragedy and revealing as sunshine."

Model to Public Men.

"He was a pioneer," Dr. Montgomery said, "on the borderline of the Republic. In a single sentence he set a fine example to the public men of this Nation, and this was it: 'I authorize no bargains and will be bound by none.'"

Dr. Montgomery's eulogy was supplemented with a prayer and hymn service. A responsive reading was conducted by Senator Rice Mears. At the conclusion of Dr. Montgomery's address the congregation joined in the singing of "America the Beautiful." The Rev. Edmund P. Easterbrook, chief of chaplains of the United States Army pronounced the benediction.

Last night's service was held under the auspices of the Hoover and Curtis Club and under the direction of the Republican State committee.

Services at Memorial.

Tomorrow's exercises, at the Lincoln Memorial, will be in charge of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, of California, will be the principal speaker. Patriotic music will be rendered by the Army Band. Dignity will be added to the exercises by the presence of color and standard bearers and a guard of eight men composed of two marines, two soldiers, two sailors and two coast guard men under arms. The Loyal Legion committee will also be in attendance.

The Loyal Legion has asked all business establishments to display their sidewalk flags tomorrow. Authority for the display of these flags has been granted by the District Commissioners.

Taxi Driver Hunted In Hit-Run Crash

Cab Turns Over When Hit by Second Auto; Police Seeking Operator.

Police today are searching for a hit-and-run driver who fled early yesterday evening when the taxicab he was driving was upset as he collided with the automobile of Henry J. Peterson, 24 years old.

Papers found by police in the taxi gave the name and address of a driver, but police were unable to locate him at the address given and patrolmen were notified to watch for him.

The taxicab was speeding just before it reached the intersection, police report, where it hit Peterson's automobile and turned over. No one was injured. The taxi is owned by George W. Banks, of 1324 Fourteenth street northwest.

Woman, Struck by Auto, Suffers Fractured Leg

Mrs. Belle Bryan, 45 years old, of 1508 Irving street northwest, was seriously injured last night when she was struck by an automobile at Sixteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Charles H. Lacey, of 509 Twenty-second street northwest, operator of the machine that struck Mrs. Bryan, took the injured woman to Sibley Hospital, where she was treated for fractures of the arm and leg, lacerations of the scalp and possible internal injuries.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

EARLE

By NELSON B. BELL.

"The Wolf of Wall Street" would have proved an engrossing picture even without recent stock market developments to accentuate its timeliness. As the first audible medium for the robust talents of George Bancroft, Baclanova and, I think, Paul Lukas it would have commanded, and amply repaid, minute attention, especially with Nancy Carroll emphasizing the charm of earlier articulate screen performances in a lesser role.

The plot and the dialogue, both devised by Doris Anderson, are simple and direct and both move unerringly to a climax and denouement that are wholly in consonance with the characters involved and the emotional and financial predicament in which they find themselves. It is again the familiar story of the domestic triangle, with ramifications leading to the blackboards and the ticker tape.

A young speculator betrays the trust of his unscrupulous partner, intent on working the Wall street "sucker racket" for all it is worth. So also does his wife, a former Russian trapeze artiste, with whom Jim Bradford is blindly and overpoweringly in love. When the infidelity of his pampered helpmeet is revealed to him by a maid whose sweetheart has been ruined in his fabulous get-rich-quick scheme, Bradford traps the pair, tortures them with the relentless pangs of their own consciences and then permits all their fortunes to be wiped out. However, when he goes short 10,000 shares in the final fadeout, there is rather more than an intimation that his own financial embarrassment will be anything but permanent.

Bancroft, in the title role, sounds just about as you thought he would. His reading of the lines is intelligent and dramatically effective and the strength of his voice not out of proportion to the size of his body.

Baclanova speaks with far less accent than I had expected, and sings a song or two in a soprano voice of excellent quality and obvious cultivation which I think I can safely say was not "doubled" for her before the microphone. Paul Lukas also contributes a polished performance with scarcely a trace of Hungarian accent, although I understand he is an importation from the stage of that country. Nancy Carroll, in the comparatively small part of the maid, and Arthur Rankin, Brandon Hurst, Crauford Kent and numerous others in minor parts play efficiently. In one or two sequences Saturday afternoon the recording seemed unfortunately weak.

The short Vitaphone subject, "Lincoln," in which George Billings offers a forceful reading of the Gettysburg address, was impaired by momentarily defective sound equipment, but, upon being rewound and run again disclosed itself as one of the high spots of a consistently excellent bill.

Frank Orth, Florence Vernon and Joseph E. Bernard are featured in a slightly risque Vitaphone skit, "Meet the Wife," and Donald Brian sings three songs through the same medium that prove him younger and in better voice than when he played Prince Danilo opposite Frances Cameron in "The Merry Widow" 20 years ago.

An interesting, but seemingly interminable, newsreel and the "Dance of the Hours," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," played as overture under Mr. Breeskin's direction, augment the entertainment.

COLUMBIA

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound-picture, with dialogue sequences, starring William Haines, supported by Lelia Hyams, Lionel Barrymore, Karl Dane and Tully Marshall. Directed by Jack Conway. Reviewed (second week) by Mary Porter Russell.

If "Alias Jimmy Valentine" is typical of crook plays as they once were, in contrast with those of the present era, then here is one more voice lifted in praise of the good old days. There is not a single murder in the entire production. Neither are there gang wars or bootlegging or deadly rivalry over a "dame." The idea seems to have been to entertain people rather than to give them nervous breakdowns. A commendable, though quaint, point of view.

For half its length, or more, this study of the profession now known as "the racket" proves to be a pleasant and not particularly stirring story of how a nice young safe cracker named Jimmy, endowed with sensitiveness of fingertips and quickness of brain, harkens to the call of love and decency, and becomes the hard-working cashier of the bank he had planned to rob. The thrills come after this point has been reached, and the fact that they are brought about by a dramatic situation as quiet as it is tense adds a feeling of genuineness that no amount of gunfire could equal.

It is here that the players become vocal. Jimmy has just become engaged to the banker's daughter, who believes he has always been the eminently respectable young citizen she has inspired into being, when there enters, from out the shadowy past, Detective Doyle. Jimmy battles, then, for everything that life holds dear, battles with all his wit and with all his charm, battles so valiantly that he wins his cause—only to reveal himself voluntarily a moment later, in a gesture so heroic as to break through the steel armor that is said to protect a detective's heart.

Lionel Barrymore plays the detective with naturalness and rich humor. Lelia Hyams is The Girl, and Tully Marshall and Karl Dane fellow crooks of Jimmys—nice crooks, with hearts of gold. One of the happy features of the picture is that it contains no "menace."

The picturization of the Graf Zeppelin's flight has been held over with the feature for a second week, together with Lady Grace Drummond Hay's pleasing account of the journey. There are also the news reels and music by the house orchestra.

Pair Suffers Razor Wounds in Battle

Henry Weber, 27, of 922 K street northwest, and Lewis Arrata, 30, of Seat Pleasant, Md., were in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of an argument at the apartment of Miss Helen Weber, 405 Eighth street northeast, shortly after 3 o'clock, according to reports to police.

Weber and Arrata are said to have started a quarrel which precipitated the clash. A razor was brought into the fight, according to police, and both men were severely cut.

Weber has a bad slash on the left side of his face and Arrata is suffering from cuts and bruises on the face and back. Both men were taken to the hospital in an automobile by Dr. Louis Jimal.

PALACE

"THE SHOPWORN ANGEL." A Paramount sound-picture with dialogue and song sequences, adapted from the story by Dana Burnet, with Nancy Carroll, Gary Cooper and Paul Lukas featured. Directed by Richard Wallace. Reviewed Saturday night.

In point of sustained merit, I should say that there is little to choose between the screen and the stage at the Palace this week. Both click.

The splendid performance offered by Nancy Carroll in the title role of "The Shopworn Angel," I had more or less taken for granted, but I was not prepared for so deft an impersonation of an awkward, lonesome and intensely earnest young soldier in the army headed for the bloody fields of France as was unfolded by Gary Cooper in what I am tempted to look upon as a flawless characterization. There is nothing of the typical fighting man of the A. E. F., in this deeply sympathetic figure of young Mr. Tyler so perfectly limned by Mr. Cooper. There is nevertheless, at least one of him in every army—the kid who has never had any folks, anything tangible to tie to or any particular reason for staying alive—until he meets the girl.

The girl who was a little shopworn when he met her is, in this instance, a red-headed chorine from the first row of the chorus of "Red, White and Blues," a Broadway hit. He happened to meet her purely through the ingenuity of a smart crossing cop and then had to again, to still the taunts of his buddies at the camp. And then it started. The rookie perceived in Daisy the only beautiful thing that had ever entered his life. In him, she recognized all of the homely virtues that her rich "daddy" failed to possess. After Tyler has sailed overseas, we find Daisy once more in the back row, beginning all over again, and Mr. Bailey, with all of his diamond bracelets, out of her life.

A simple and unadorned tale, gripping in its unaffected genuineness and agreeably leavened by a strong vein of comedy and a subdued musical accompaniment that has been skillfully assembled and expertly synchronized.

The three leading roles are faultlessly played by Mr. Cooper, Miss Carroll and Paul Lukas, with Roscoe Karns, as a hard-boiled stage manager, and a crowd of soldiers impersonated by a bunch of boys who might be a crowd of soldiers completing the ensemble.

"Southern Belles" is a unit-show that considerably surpasses many of its predecessors. It is so spectacularly staged that Saturday night's audience frequently burst into applause for no other reason. Its personnel is exceptional. The Dictators, a male quartet; Eddie Mathews, an extraordinary dancer; Will Aubrey, "the last of the minstrels," with a smart guitar and a real voice—even in yodels—and the Ormonde Sisters, who persist in using a "March of the Wooden Soldiers" opening to introduce a bit of superlative close harmony and a clever tap dance, all score hits. Wesley Eddy, after taking the Palace Syncopators "High Up On the Hilltop," steps down to the organ console and plays "Mighty Lak' a Rose" well enough to stop the show. Just to prove that this is an unusual revue, the Albertina Rasch Girls wear silk tights instead of a coat of violet-ray sunburn!

Organ recessional, orchestral prelude and the M-G-M and Fox Movietone newsreels round out the two hours.

PRESIDENT

"FIGHTING THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC." A Marathon picture with an unnamed cast, directed by Jaap Speyer. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

For its first week the Bertad Picture Corporation offers a picture based on a report of the League of Nations committee and made with the cooperation of the Geneva National Society to Combat the White Slave Traffic and the police departments of Germany, Hungary, Greece and Turkey.

As a prologue to the picture George Figg, in a short lecture, points out that, while the film deals with the conditions existing in foreign countries, the same evils obtain here, implying that the 60,000 young girls annually reported as missing have been victimized.

The film gets off to a slow start, showing the League of Nations committee in conference and reporting its findings, which are then merged into the main part of the picture. There is a plot, but it is submerged under the principal motif which concerns the insidious methods involved in luring those to be degraded away from home—illustrated by the cases of a false vaudeville contract and of the position as companion to an elderly woman traveler.

The pivotal characters are not outstanding either in the portrayal of their roles or in ability. An exception must be made, however, of the part of Wolf Sanka, the suave white-slave racketeer, played by a master of hirsute make-up as well as of acting.

As entertainment, the picture leaves much to be desired, although as a powerful expose of the methods employed and the resulting menace of white slavery it ranks very much higher. Like other similar worthy efforts, it fails to reach those who might best profit from its message.

In more capable hands, a far more powerful and effective drama could be made from the same material.

A Mack Sennett Taxi Comedy, an Aesop's Fable and a release of Pathe News complete the bill.

One Man Is Injured In Crash of Three Autos

Emile Spahn, 63 years old, of 1715 C street southeast, was slightly injured in a triple collision at Ninth street and Maryland avenue northeast yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock, when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by an automobile, owned by Charles E. Hetzel, Newark, N. J., and, according to police, driven by Karl A. Kullin, East Orange, N. J., forcing the Spahn machine into the automobile of Raymond Brook, 1112 Staples street northwest.

The injured man was riding with Bernard Spahn, of the same address. Emile Spahn was treated at Casualty Hospital for bruises and a dislocated finger. Kullin was arrested and released on $25 collateral. Damage to the automobiles was estimated at $250.

FOX

"THE GHOST TALKS." Fox all-dialogue farce, featuring Charles Eaton and Helen Twelvetrees, supported by Earle Foxe and Carmel Myers. Adapted from Max Marcin's play, "Badges," and directed by Lew Seller. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

The successful visualization of farce-comedy has always been one of the silent screen's most difficult problems. Usually at least half of the fun has been found to be dependent upon the humor of spoken lines and only recently has the silver sheet found it possible to command that element of drama. Now that the screen as well as the ghost talks, things are looking up.

If pressed, I should catalogue "The Ghost Talks" as perhaps the happiest attempt so far made to harmonize dramaturgy's most frivolous form with the limitations of the camera. In places it is hilariously funny—this is after the ghost really gets to talking and a young colored bride and groom are its only auditors—and in other spots it is merely mildly interesting. At least, it moves with rather more accelerated tempo than the earlier picturized mystery farces and is not altogether hackneyed in situation. Two groups of crooks, a young girl intent upon protecting her dead uncle's good name, stolen bonds to the tune of a million and a kid hotel clerk just graduated from a correspondence detective school are the ingredients.

Charles Eaton, the youngster of what is probably Washington's most famous theatrical family, and Helen Twelvetrees, a charming ingenue borrowed from the legitimate stage, are cast in the principal roles and acquit themselves surprisingly well. Their voices record without blemish and their lines are skillfully handled, although at times the temptation to squelch young Franklin Green, the camera-eyed flycop who finally makes good, is almost irresistible. It is the part, however, and not Mr. Eaton.

Stepin Fetchit and Baby Mack are the purported names of the Ethiopian victims of an eerie frame-up from which the comedy derives its name, and others who add to the picture's voltage are Henry Sedley, Joe Brown, Mickey Bennett and Clifford Dempsey.

Quite overshadowing everything else on the program in authentic merit is Chic Sale's Movietone skit, "Marching On," in which this genius of characterization impersonates the pathetic and at the same time convulsingly comic "man who knew Lincoln." A short gem, this, embodying a mighty tribute to the martyred President whose birthday anniversary will be observed tomorrow.

"In the Spotlight," the brief stage revue, introduces the Lester Irving Trio, gymnasts; Omar and Nagle, in a feline novelty from the English music halls; Al Norman, a dancer with whalebone legs, and Llora Hoffman, the brilliant soprano who is no stranger to Washington audiences.

The orchestral overture directed by Leon Brusiloff is notable. Keler Bela's "Hungarian Lustspiel" affords many colorful ensemble passages and a splendid solo opportunity for Henri Sokolove, concertmaster, who executes an intricate double-stop cadenza that was enthusiastically applauded yesterday.

METROPOLITAN

"THE REDEEMING SIN." Warner Bros. sound and dialogue picture, costarring Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Reviewed Sunday afternoon (second week) by C. Ransom.

The names and voices of the popular stars may be what brings the fans crowding into the Metropolitan at the beginning of a second week of "The Redeeming Sin," or there may be some less obvious reason. There is a stressed religious element in the story that offers food for speculation as to how far this enters into its drawing power. Some such explanation seems to be a crying need of this reviewer, for he is committed to the opinion that there is some direct relation between the merit of moving pictures and the attendance upon them.

For the honesty of the record it must be set down that this story of Parisian underworld is unreal and falsely sentimental. It is, in this writer's opinion, unworthy of the genuine talents of the charming Dolores and the capable Conrad. Talking sequences merely emphasize its faults. Sonorous voices no more than personable actors or penetrating cameras, can give it a proper relish.

The trick of being entertained by mediocre films is one that much could be written about. In the picture at hand, as in any other ever made, there are endless interesting things to look at, and that is all that saves many a hopeful fan from discouragement. Apache types, as selected by this director, are amusing and more or less credible. So are the street scenes of the Latin quarter and the obscure beauties of the dives and sewers of Paris. In addition to counting the several ways in which Miss Costello expresses emotion and keeping tab on her changes of costume, we can now notice the varying success of the voices in the magic of coming through, and count the different ways of pronouncing "Jetteur," which is the name of the bad Apache leader.

The really clever and amusing all-talking comedy, "The Eligible Mr. Bangs," is also carried along in the second-week program. The Pathe sound news film completes the program, except for the interesting Vitaphone announcement by Fannie Brice of her approaching new picture.

Suffrage Question Debated by Forum

Grover Ayers in Address to Members on Vote in District.

Debate on the question of suffrage for the District of Columbia marked the regular session of the Washington Open Forum yesterday afternoon at 808 I street northwest.

Grover W. Ayers was the principal speaker of the afternoon, addressing the gathering on "Why I Am Against District Suffrage." At the conclusion of his speech, Linn A. E. Gale, president of the forum, asked for a discussion of the subject, and a number of those present advanced their views.

Gale announced that a debate will be held in the near future on "Is There a God?" with Baron Eugene Persen, formerly of Russia, representing the affirmative, and Charles Lee Smith, president of the Association for the Advancement of Atheism, of New York, taking the negative.

She was taken to Casualty Hospital later by the rescue squad. Police believe she was accidentally overcome by gas.

CHINESE OF CAPITAL OBSERVE NEW YEAR FETE WITH FEASTING

JAZZ BAND RATTLES WEIRD SELECTIONS

Music, feasting and payment of debts marked the celebration of the Chinese New Year in Washington's Chinatown yesterday.

Although the new Nationalistic Chinese government has decided to observe New Year on January 1, and abandon the mid-February celebration, a number of the local Chinese showed that they were determined to follow the custom of their forefathers.

The celebration here was confined to one small locality—on the third story of the Quen Chong company, importers and grocers, about half way down the 300 block of Pennsylvania avenue. In a front room decorated with Chinese masks and festoons, a Chinese jazz band was going in full blast. The din, devoid of tune so far as an American's ears could determine, was deafening. And it was surprising that the celebrants present could make themselves understood—but they appeared to be completely aware of everything that was being said.

Feast Laid for Guests.

On a nearby table the feast was spread. The menu consisted of a strange assortment of foods—the like of which no Angle Saxon will ever see in one of the popular Chinese restaurants where so called Chinese food is served. This array of dishes was decidedly unappetizing to a palate accustomed to griddle cakes and fried chicken. In fact, to eat the oriental dainties on view is about the last infliction a white man would dare commit upon himself.

The edibles were left to cool until night, when the business of feasting brought the New Year to a grand finale. In the meantime, however, throughout the afternoon and early part of the evening a steady stream of celebrants flowed into the room and exchanged greetings with those already present. As soon as a newcomer arrived he approached a small table in a corner, where an official presided. Here the dotted line received the signatures of all the Chinese who were ready to settle their overdue debts. This meeting of debts is one of the most important customs of the Chinese New Year and any Chinese who fails to "come across" at this time is blackballed in commercial houses and clubs for the rest of the year.

Celebration Is Peaceful.

The celebration throughout the day and night was peaceful despite the fact that the local Chinese, together with those in other parts of this Nation and in the home country, are divided into two factions—those who want the old new year and those who are determined to abide by the nationalistic government order.

Because of the position taken by the new government, there was no celebration at the Chinese Legation. And even the Chinese who were celebrating decided to cut the old custom of a five-day revelry to one day. A few of the old order who do not favor this curbing of the time unit journeyed to New York, where the Chinatown of that city, undisturbed by the trend of its government, has planned to continue music, feasting and payment of debts far into the night of five consecutive days.

Two "Sailors" Hold Up And Rob Truck Drivers

Two armed men jumped on the running board of a truck owned by the Jewel Tea Co., 743 Eighth street southeast, as it slackened speed for a curve near Bowie, Md., early Saturday night, and robbed Andrew B. Morris, 726 F street northeast, of the truck and merchandise and $124 in currency belonging to the company, Morris reported yesterday to police of the Ninth Precinct.
